NAZIS FAIL TO REACH LONDON OBJECTIVES

Rumania Forced To Give Up Large Part of Country

Accepts Axis Ultimatum To Surrender Valuable Transylvania Province

Way Provided for Nazi Soldiers To Occupy Eastern Frontier Face to Face with Russians

By The Associated Press

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 30 — Rumania, obeying the orders of Germany and Italy, gave up between 17,000 and 21,000 square miles of her territory today in a swift drama of power politics that will permit Nazi soldiers to occupy her eastern frontier and stand face to face with the restless Soviet armies.

Confronted with an "or else" ultimatum from the Axis, she agreed to suffer one more dismemberment—to hand over about half of the World War-won province of Transylvania to Hungary — with the understanding that what is left of the country will be protected by Germany herself.

The effect of all this was not only to greatly lengthen the Nazi line of troops across southeastern Europe — a line that could become instantly a barrier to Russia — but to improve Hungary's own position in the same connection. For the part of Transylvania given back to her encompasses the Carpathian mountain region which is her traditional barrier against invasion from the east.

Rumania Feared Invasion

Rumania gave in in the face of a threatened invasion that might have smashed her for good and all — invasion by the vast armies of Germany, by those of Hungary, and by a march from the east by Soviet Russia.

The negotiations were carried on at Vienna, in a meeting headed by Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, and his Italian colleague, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

All during last night they went on, while here in Bucharest King Carol received a long line of distinguished advisers who one after another told him that there was only one thing to do.

Just after midnight, according to authoritative accounts of what went on in the palace, the king got an urgent telephone call from Vienna. He was told that he had five minutes more to decide. The Rumanian high command reported it could not possibly defend the country against three simultaneous thrusts, and Rumania capitulated.

Rumania had gained Transylvania after the World War; now she has lost it, or half of it, under the threat of war.

Back to World War Days

Last June, she gave up Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Russia under the Soviet's ultimatum; she has agreed to return southern Dobruja to Bulgaria. Thus she shrinks now from 113,884 square miles by about 40,000 square miles and falls back to about her size before the World War.

For saying goodbye to part of Transylvania, Rumania was understood to have got even more than a German guarantee against further encroachments. Some Balkan politicians thought that Rumania now is under the actual "military protection" of the Reich.

There was one widespread report that the Rumanian-German minority which recently has been forming an armed militia under general staff officers of German blood might immediately take over the guarding of the oil fields and other strategic points.

Meanwhile it was understood, the Germans will send motorized troops to the Russian frontier.

The decision to capitulate was

Willkie Repeats His Demand FDR State Opinions

Believes President Should Give Views on Pending Bills

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 30 (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie, again demanding President Roosevelt's opinion of conscription of industry, said today it was the chief executive's "clear duty" to state his position on important pending bills.

The Republican presidential nominee was commenting on Mr. Roosevelt's refusal to announce his views on the Overton-Russell amendment to the Senate-approved draft bill.

This amendment would permit government operation of plants needed for defense when the secretaries of war and navy could not reach agreements with their owners.

Willkie first called upon Mr. Roosevelt yesterday to say where he stood on it.

Cites "Old Rule"

The president told reporters at Hyde Park, N. Y., today an attempt was being made to involve him in political discussion. He asked whether they remembered an old rule of 1933 and whether the chief executive commented on legislation, amendments or rules pending in congress.

"If my memory serves me correctly," Willkie said in a statement afterward, "the president has commented many times on pending legislation."

But he added that even if the president had not commented, he had "the clear duty" to do so, particularly when he was seeking a third term.

Willkie said the chief executive and his running mate, Henry A. Wallace, were "one hundred per cent wrong in implying that the Republican party is the party of appeasement."

"The reverse is completely true," he said, adding that he hoped Mr. Roosevelt would read his acceptance speech and the Republican platform.

Wallace, notified of his nomination for vice president on the Democratic ticket last night at Des Moines, Ia., termed the Republicans the "party of appeasement."

Informed by reporters that president Carter Davidsen, of Knox college had invited Mr. Roosevelt and Willkie to debate from the steps of "old main", scene of a Lincoln-Douglas debate, Willkie said he would be delighted to go to Galesburg, Ill., for such a meeting.

Limit Debate on Burke-Wadsworth Bill to Two Days

House Vote Cuts Down Time over Protests of Republicans

By DONALD A. YOUNG

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Over protests from Republicans, administration forces in the House decided today to limit general debate on the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill to two days and to seek a final vote before next week-end.

The Rules Committee and Democratic chieftains agreed that the controversial measure should be called up at noon Tuesday, that general discussion should be permitted until Wednesday night, and that amendments should be considered starting Thursday. There will be no restriction on debate on amendments.

Democratic Leader Rayburn of Texas said he hoped that a final vote could be reached by Friday but told the House that he was prepared to devote a fifth day to the legislation if necessary.

Equipment Contracts Let

While the House leaders concluded these arrangements to speed passage of the conscription bill, the war department announced it had let contracts totaling $7,952,028 for camp equipment, at least part of which is expected to be used by men drafted under the measure.

Distributed among dozens of firms, the orders included large quantities of tents and folding cots.

The war department also announced agreements had been reached with the Wright Aeronautical Company for the manufacture of 20,000 airplane engines and with the Curtiss-Wright Corporation for 14,000 propellors. They are to be delivered during 1941 and 1942. The navy made a similar agreement yesterday for purchase of 17,000 Pratt and Whitney motors.

Republicans Complain

The Republican complaint against restriction of House debate on conscription were aimed particularly at the decision to limit it to "two days."

Representative McChesney (R-Pa), and Allen (R-Ill), argued that the House might remain in session only an hour or two each day, and demanded, instead, that at least twelve hours of general debate be permitted.

Legislation, closely resembling the bill approved by the Senate except for age brackets, would require the registration of men from twenty-one to forty-four inclusive, and would make them liable for a year's military training at a minimum salary of $30 a month. The Senate chose age limits of twenty-one to thirty, inclusive.

Plan To Develop Strategic Areas As Defense Move

Army Officials Enlarge upon Statement from Roosevelt

By E. C. DANIEL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Enlarging upon a statement made by President Roosevelt, officials disclosed today defense plans for development of five interior strategic areas to be made at least partially self-sufficient in arms production.

The president said at Hyde Park, N. Y., that action had been taken to locate vital defense establishments in the interior.

Already, the army has received $244,000,000 from Congress to expand armaments facilities, and contracts have been signed for four government-owned, privately-operated plants. Negotiations are under way for some sixty more.

Plans for Plants

Officials said that wherever plants were built by the government and, insofar as possible, wherever private industry used government funds, the policy would be to place the plants in an area whose borders were at least 200 to 250 miles from any international boundry or coast.

A map of the United States has been drawn, with the interior area demarcated, and the whole region has been divided into five cross-country strips. In each one of those

Floods Again Sweep North Carolina Area

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 30 (AP)—For the second time within three weeks the swift creeks and rivers of western North Carolina went on a rampage today, inundating industrial plants, sweeping away many homes, and isolating towns and communities.

At least six persons were reported missing. Albert McCall, his two children and an unidentified man were missing in Jackson county, and the Rev. Bill Hampton and his wife were unaccounted for in Haywood county. Both the McCall and Hampton homes were swept away.

Gorged by torrential rains, the streams were turned into muddy, raging currents within a few hours, and reached all-time high water marks, even higher than during the flood a few weeks ago which claimed twenty-four lives in the western part of the state.

British Bombers Raid Berlin and Start Fire

BERLIN, Aug. 31 (Saturday) (AP)—British bombers raided Berlin this morning, dropping bombs which started at least one large fire.

The fire, in the southeastern section of the German capital, was visible for many blocks. It was the southeastern section which also was bombed on Thursday morning, when ten civilians were killed.

Explosion Follows Fire

Half an hour after the fire started there was a big explosion which sent sparks flying high into the sky.

The air raid alarm lasted an hour and thirty-seven minutes, from 1:39 a. m. (6:39 p. m., Friday, e.s.t.) until 3:16 a. m. (8:16 p. m., e.s.t.).

Girl Cigar Plant Strikers Hug and Muss Up Manager

Several Hundred Stage Ludicrous Demonstration in Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 30 (AP)—Girl cigar plant strikers, jitterbugging to company - furnished music, today turned womanly wiles on a vice president in an effort to win concessions which two days of formal negotiation had failed to get.

Several hundred young women employees of the John Swisher and son cigar factory—one of the biggest in the world—are demanding increased pay and the reinstatement of a plant manager.

So far, the strike has been on "happy family" terms, the girls dancing to music from a company sound truck in the plant yard, making speeches and picnicking on ice cream and cold drinks furnished by the factory.

Carl Swisher, vice president and general manager was swarmed by the girls when he came into the plant yard today. They hugged him, mussed his hair, kidded him, tried to get him to make a speech and smilingly pressed their demands.

Swisher laughed and took his kidding but was unable to get back into the plant until police came to his aid.

Strike leader Otto Nolte said at least 2,000 of the 3,000 Swisher em-

Find Spitfires Waiting And Are Forced To Give Up Attack upon Capital

But Invaders Continue To Raid Many Other Ports of Great Britain; Make Three Attacks on London Friday and One Early Today; Two Bombers Believed Badly Crippled

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 31 (Saturday)—British Spitfire fighting planes, coordinating a spectacular defense with hundreds of anti-aircraft guns and searchlights, beat off early today a persistant attack by German night raiders which subjected the capital to its second longest air raid of the war.

The Germans carried out their nightly "pest patrol" singly or in small groups.

The raiders loosed salvos of bombs on the suburban areas and were given a surprise when they found British Spitfire fighters waiting to engage them in the web of searchlights as they sought to penetrate the heart of the city. There were no reports of bombs falling in the mid-city.

The alarm was in effect six hours and thirty-nine minutes. The signals screamed London's fourth alarm since yesterday at 9:11 a. m. (3:11 p. m., EST) and all clear was not given until 3:50 a. m. (9:50 p. m., EST Friday night).

The raiders also prowled over a wide area, their drones being heard in thirteen towns in England and one in Wales.

Early today, the air ministry reported the Germans had lost sixty-two planes to nineteen for the British during the fighting yesterday in which hundreds of planes swept to the assault on vital British plants around the capital.

ATTACKERS PERSISTENT

As the night raid went beyond its fourth hour, a roll of bombs from the outskirts signalized the persistance of the Germans. The sky was lighted for a few moments but the blaze didn't last long.

The Germans dumped explosive and fire bombs.

Thousands of Londoners stayed up for the long air raid but most of the Metropolitan area's 10,000,000 residents turned in, weary of the marathon raids.

The fighter planes pounced on the German bombers caught like flies in a web spun by searchlight beams.

At least two bombers, prowling singly over London, were believed to have been crippled so badly that they would be unable to return to their bases, presumably in German-occupied France.

The British press association said a hospital was hit but it was not learned whether it was set ablaze. Another institution was fired.

Street Machinegunned

In one metropolitan area machine gun bullets, apparently intended to destroy a balloon barrage, whined down upon the streets.

It was the fourth London raid since Friday morning. It was the first time yet that more than three visitations had occurred in one day.

The raiders moved cautiously at a great height above London—more than 20,000 feet—and in small groups.

They appeared Friday night at 9:10 o'clock, with a punctuality that has become habitual, after a day that had seen vastly heavier assaults by more than 700 planes on airdromes and industrial plants in the home counties all about the metropolis.

But the daylight attacks had been far heavier numerically; at least 700 Nazi raiders were estimated to have been engaged in assaults directed mainly at airports over the home counties—those around London.

The ministries of air and home security declared tonight that no "serious damage" had been suffered by British airdromes, but acknowledged that at one town "industrial premises" were damaged and that a number of persons had been killed there and elsewhere.

British plane losses for the day were put at ten up to early evening. (In Berlin the Germans put British losses during the day at eighty planes and acknowledged twenty-one of their own.)

Many Planes in Action

The roar of Nazi dive bombers and the thud of the bombs they released in the outskirts in the third attack were plainly heard in the city's center. Two previous attacks of perhaps 400 planes were broken up after fierce aerial duels.

London's ring of anti-aircraft forts set up a wall of bursting shrapnel against the invaders. British fighter defenders did the rest.

Nazi planes also pounded British industrial centers in the northwest, the southeast and south Wales, giving Manchester, great textile center, its worst drubbing of the war.

The heaviest fighting occurred over a London suburb where hundreds of shoppers saw a force of British fighters pounce on a formation of about twenty-five Nazi planes. They dived and looped in a free-for-all battle which speedily split up the formation. Some of the invaders quickly jettisoned their bomb racks and fled for home. Three of them, caught in a cross-

Germany and Italy Reserve Final Say over the Breakup of Rumania

By EDWIN SHANK

VIENNA, Aug. 30, (AP) — Germany and Italy, self-proclaimed co-authors of a "new Europe," gave Hungary approximately half of Rumania's Transylvania territory in an arbitration award handed down here today and reserved for themselves the final say in any argument arising from the dictated settlement.

In the same post-Munich setting of 1938 in which they settled in Hungary's favor the latter's territorial dispute with Czecho-Slovakia, Foreign Ministers Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano of Germany and Italy reached today's decision after stepping abruptly into the stalemated Hungarian-Rumanian negotiations.

The decision, to which Rumania made it plain she was bowing reluctantly, gave to Hungary the territory she lost after the World War and to which she never renounced her claim.

In return, Rumania, received an Axis guarantee of her borders, not only with Hungary and Bulgaria but also with Russia.

Dozen Senate Democrats Want To Debate Issues with Mr. Willkie

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie's demand that President Roosevelt state his views on government seizure of industrial plants for national defense brought offers from half a dozen Senate Democrats today to debate the issue with the Republican presidential nominee.

And Senator Burke (D-Neb), who has declared his opposition to a third term and support for Mr. Willkie, suggested in turn that the Democrats might arrange to debate the third term question with President Roosevelt.

Senator Russell (D-Ga), one of the sponsors of a provision in the Burke-Wadsworth bill which would permit the government to take over industrial plants under certain conditions, set off the exchange.

He said in the Senate that Willkie apparently "is a strong advocate of drafting the blood and lives of American youth, without the consent of the individuals affected, but is violently opposed to any action whatever by the government not suggested by business itself, which will assure the boys drafted the proper implements and machinery of warfare to defend themselves."

Russell said he would be happy to debate this issue with the Republican nominee "anywhere at any time, including before the board of directors of the power combine."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30. (AP)—Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and the Maryland congressional delegation invited Speaker Bankhead today to open the 1940 Democratic campaign in Maryland at a rally in Baltimore in about ten days.

The speaker said he was taking the invitation under consideration.

The governor and a large group of Democratic leaders from Maryland attended a meeting here to discuss the state campaign, and spokesmen expressed confidence of victory "in every congressional district of the state."

Truman B. Cash, chairman of the State Democratic Campaign Committee said the meeting was called

Several Hundred Stage Ludicrous Demonstration in Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 30 (AP) —Girl cigar plant strikers, jitterbugging to company - furnished music, today turned womanly wiles on a vice president in an effort to win concessions which two days of formal negotiation had failed to get.

Several hundred young women employees of the John Swisher and son cigar factory—one of the biggest in the world—are demanding increased pay and the reinstatement of a plant manager.

So far, the strike has been on "happy family" terms, the girls dancing to music from a company sound truck in the plant yard, making speeches and picnicking on ice cream and cold drinks furnished by the factory.

Carl Swisher, vice president and general manager was swarmed by the girls when he came into the plant yard today. They hugged him, mussed his hair, kidded him, tried to get him to make a speech and smilingly pressed their demands.

Swisher laughed and took his kidding but was unable to get back into the plant until police came to his aid.

Strike leader Otto Nolte said at least 2,000 of the 3,000 Swisher em-

Vivien Leigh and Her New Husband Honeymooning Following Divorces

Keep Destination Secret as They Leave California in Motor Car

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Aug. 30 (AP)—The Laurence Oliviers—she's Vivien Leigh, or perhaps you know her better as Scarlett O'Hara—were honeymooning today on either land or sea.

The English acting couple, who had to wait for two divorces before they could be married, took their vows after last midnight on the terrace of a friend's home in nearby Montecito.

They had intended to be married in Al C. Weingands' living room, but Katherine Hepburn, who was Vivien's attendant, suggested the terrace after taking a look at the moon.

After the ceremony, the Oliviers got in their car and said they were

But Invaders Continue To Raid Many Other Ports of Great Britain; Make Three Attacks on London Friday and One Early Today; Two Bombers Believed Badly Crippled

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 31 (Saturday)—British Spitfire fighting planes, coordinating a spectacular defense with hundreds of anti-aircraft guns and searchlights, beat off early today a persistant attack by German night raiders which subjected the capital to its second longest air raid of the war.

The Germans carried out their nightly "pest patrol" singly or in small groups.

The raiders loosed salvos of bombs on the suburban areas and were given a surprise when they found British Spitfire fighters waiting to engage them in the web of searchlights as they sought to penetrate the heart of the city. There were no reports of bombs falling in the mid-city.

The alarm was in effect six hours and thirty-nine minutes. The signals screamed London's fourth alarm since yesterday at 9:11 a. m. (3:11 p. m., EST) and all clear was not given until 3:50 a. m. (9:50 p. m., EST Friday night).

The raiders also prowled over a wide area, their drones being heard in thirteen towns in England and one in Wales.

Early today, the air ministry reported the Germans had lost sixty-two planes to nineteen for the British during the fighting yesterday in which hundreds of planes swept to the assault on vital British plants around the capital.

ATTACKERS PERSISTENT

As the night raid went beyond its fourth hour, a roll of bombs from the outskirts signalled the persistance of the Germans. The sky was lighted for a few moments but the blaze didn't last long.

The Germans dumped explosive and fire bombs.

Thousands of Londoners stayed up for the long air raid but most of the Metropolitan area's 10,000,000 residents turned in, weary of the marathon raids.

The fighter planes pounced on the German bombers caught like flies in a web spun by searchlight beams.

At least two bombers, prowling singly over London, were believed to have been crippled so badly that they would be unable to return to their bases, presumably in German-occupied France.

The British press association said a hospital was hit but it was not learned whether it was set ablaze. Another institution was fired.

Street Machinegunned

In one metropolitan area machine gun bullets, apparently intended to destroy a balloon barrage, whined down upon the streets.

It was the fourth London raid since Friday morning. It was the first time yet that more than three visitations had occurred in one day.

The raiders moved cautiously at a great height above London—more than 20,000 feet—and in small groups.

They appeared Friday night at 9:10 o'clock, with a punctuality that has become habitual, after a day that had seen vastly heavier assaults by more than 700 planes on airdromes and industrial plants in the home counties all about the metropolis.

But the daylight attacks had been far heavier numerically; at least 700 Nazi raiders were estimated to have been engaged in assaults directed mainly at airports over the home counties—those around London.

The ministries of air and home security declared tonight that no "serious damage" had been suffered by British airdromes, but acknowledged that at one town "industrial premises" were damaged and that a number of persons had been killed there and elsewhere.

British plane losses for the day were put at ten up to early evening.

Many Planes in Action

The roar of Nazi dive bombers and the thud of the bombs they released in the outskirts in the third attack were plainly heard in the city's center. Two previous attacks of perhaps 400 planes were broken up after fierce aerial duels.

London's ring of anti-aircraft forts set up a wall of bursting shrapnel against the invaders. British fighter defenders did the rest.

Nazi planes also pounded British industrial centers in the northwest, the southeast and south Wales, giving Manchester, great textile center, its worst drubbing of the war.

The heaviest fighting occurred over a London suburb where hundreds of shoppers saw a force of British fighters pounce on a formation of about twenty-five Nazi planes. They dived and looped in a free-for-all battle which speedily split up the formation. Some of the invaders quickly jettisoned their bomb racks and fled for home. Three of them, caught in a cross-

Germany and Italy Reserve Final Say over the Breakup of Rumania

By EDWIN SHANK

VIENNA, Aug. 30, (AP) — Germany and Italy, self-proclaimed co-authors of a "new Europe," gave Hungary approximately half of Rumania's Transylvania territory in an arbitration award handed down here today and reserved for themselves the final say in any argument arising from the dictated settlement.

In the same post-Munich setting of 1938 in which they settled in Hungary's favor the latter's territorial dispute with Czecho-Slovakia, Foreign Ministers Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano of Germany and Italy reached today's decision after stepping abruptly into the stalemated Hungarian-Rumanian negotiations.

The decision, to which Rumania made it plain she was bowing reluctantly, gave to Hungary the territory she lost after the World War and to which she never renounced her claim.

In return, Rumania, received an Axis guarantee of her borders, not only with Hungary and Bulgaria but also with Russia.

Dozen Senate Democrats Want To Debate Issues with Mr. Willkie

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie's demand that President Roosevelt state his views on government seizure of industrial plants for national defense brought offers from half a dozen Senate Democrats today to debate the issue with the Republican presidential nominee.

And Senator Burke (D-Neb), who has declared his opposition to a third term and support for Mr. Willkie, suggested in turn that the Democrats might arrange to debate the third term question with President Roosevelt.

Senator Russell (D-Ga), one of the sponsors of a provision in the Burke-Wadsworth bill which would permit the government to take over industrial plants under certain conditions, set off the exchange.

He said in the Senate that Willkie apparently "is a strong advocate of drafting the blood and lives of American youth, without the consent of the individuals affected, but is violently opposed to any action whatever by the government not suggested by business itself, which will assure the boys drafted the proper implements and machinery of warfare to defend themselves."

Russell said he would be happy to debate this issue with the Republican nominee "anywhere at any time, including before the board of directors of the power combine."

Townsend Charges New Dealers Try To Alarm Country

Senator Sees Effort To Scare People into Electing FDR and Wallace

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — Senator Townsend (R-Del) asserted today that President Roosevelt and Henry A. Wallace "are going to try to scare the country into voting them into office."

Townsend was one of several GOP legislators who commented, in statements issued through the Republican National Committee, on Wallace's speech at Des Moines last night accepting the Democratic nomination for vice president.

Democratic legislators lauded the former agriculture secretary's address, however. Senator Barkley (D-Ky) said that Wallace had discussed domestic and international issues in a manner "which the American people can thoroughly understand." Senator McKellar (D-Tenn) declared:

"As long as Hitler is fighting democracy, the country will agree with Mr. Wallace that it is no time for us to change presidents."

Rep. Short (R-Mo) observing that Wallace had mentioned Hitler twenty-one times, said that the Iowan's effort "to convince the country that it will fall into Hitler's clutches unless Roosevelt is reelected is sheerest poppycock."

Asserting that Wallace's main argument was that Mr. Roosevelt had been constantly warning the country against Hitler for seven years, "while the Republicans have been sleeping or plotting appeasement," Short asked why the president "broke up" the London disarmament conference in 1933 and had advocated a disarmament conference among the United States, Great Britain and Japan in 1935.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said that if the president was so well informed, "why did he wait until four months ago to start his defense program?"

"And even then," he continued, "how does it happen that he so underestimated the needs of adequate armament that he chided Congress at a press conference on June 4 because it didn't adjourn and go home?"

Plan To Develop

strips, it is intended eventually to place a group of industries such as a small arms plant, an ammunition loading plant and perhaps an aircraft factory.

Additional areas may be mapped, and the present ones may be changed, but, roughly speaking, the present areas have been delimited as follows:

Areas Enumerated

A—Northern Indiana, Northern Illinois, Southern Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and thence Westward.

B—Ohio, Southwestern Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Western Virginia, and Eastern Kentucky.

E—Western Tennessee, Northern Mississippi, Arkansas, Northern Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and Westward.

Prime strategic purposes are to locate new plants out of range of air attack, and to avoid a highly vulnerable concentration of industry such as exists today in the "industrial triangle" which has Pittsburgh, Boston and Wilmington, Del., as its three points.

Communists Barred By O'Conor Pending State Investigation

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30 (AP) — Under Governor O'Conor's orders the Communist party in Maryland was refused a place on the state ballot today until an investigation of alleged fraud in petitions supporting the party candidates is completed.

If evidence of fraud is found, the candidates will be barred from the ballot and party members who certified the petition signatures will be liable to criminal prosecution.

If the signatures are found to be valid the petition will be certified by the secretary of state and the party will be represented in the November election.

The governor's order will halt the sending of Communist party petitions to the state law department for examination.

State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells of Baltimore started summoning persons whose names appear on the Communist petitions to determine whether there were any irregularities.

Ferryboat and Tanker in Crash

NEW YORK, Aug. 30, (AP) — The municipal ferryboat "New York", enroute from Staten Island to Manhattan, and an oil tanker collided late today about 1,000 yards out in the upper bay from the ferry's terminal at the battery. One person was injured.

The ferry proceeded to its dock.

The tanker was the 9,511-ton Magnolia of the Standard Oil Co.

New Susquehanna River Bridge Is Doing Business

Traffic Is Heavier Than Originally Figured, Whitman Says

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Aug. 30 (AP)—Traffic—in greater volume than expected—is rolling steadily across the Susquehanna river bridge, one of two new spans costing $5,000,000 each.

In the first eight hours, 3,100 cars crossed the bridge, dedicated Wednesday. The number is part of the basis for a prediction by Ezra B. Whitman, State Roads Commission chairman, that the two bridges may pay for themselves in twelve to fifteen years, or sooner than anticipated.

Bonds worth $6,000,000 were issued to cover part of the cost of the Susquehanna bridge, and the Potomac river bridge at Morgantown.

High Tolls Charged

Tolls here are twenty cents per car, twenty-five cents to $1.45 for trucks. Roads officials said they expected 2,334,000 machines to use the bridge the first year, for gross revenue of $423,000.

In Baltimore, Whitman said the Potomac bridge was expected to yield $133,000 the first year through 128,000 vehicles, charged at seventy-five cents per car and a higher rate for trucks. This bridge will "be open before the end of the year if we have good weather."

Traffic over both spans is expected to increase yearly, and Whitman said several years might be cut from the original estimate of fifteen to twenty years before the bridges will pay for themselves, and tolls will be stopped.

Elmer J. White of Salisbury is acting superintendent of the bridge here. He ranked third on an examination given by the roads commission, and was named to the post here, while the Potomac superintendency went to Abram S. Wilson, Havre De Grace.

Schaefer's Job Held Up

Elwood E. Schaefer, Cumberland war veteran who ranked second in the tests, protested, and the employment commissioner ordered his appointment to one of the new bridge jobs. Whitman said today "we shall probably not be able to find out until next week what we will be able to do" about the Schaefer order.

General Election and Krupp Indicted

NEW YORK, Aug. 30, (AP)—A special federal grand jury investigating alleged anti-trust law violators in war industries today indicted the General Electric Company and the Krupp Company of Essen, Germany, of conspiracy to fix prices and control supply of hard metals and tools vital to the nation's defense program.

The indictment, described by federal investigators as the most important defense-monopoly bill yet returned, was the second naming General Electric Company, and the fourth war industry indictment by the grand jury in as many days.

The first charged four firms with price-fixing in the airplane fabric industry, the second accused four companies of monopolistic practices in the glass bulb field, and the third accused five corporations of conspiring to control production and sale of bentonite—a moulding clay. Individual officers were also named in each case; General Electric was cited in the second.

plete his remarks, a dozen other Senate Democrats were up clamoring for a chance to join in the attack.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) suggested that "if Mr. Willkie is hankering so for a debate he might debate this issue in ten different states of Republican senators who favored it." Barkley read the list of Republicans voting for the provision.

Senator Lee (D-Okla) observes that a "new popular song should be written for Mr. Willkie about I didn't raise my dollar to be a soldier.

Minton Joins in Attack

Senator Minton (D-Ind) said Mr. Willkie was protesting as an "extraordinary power" for government the same power that any power utility exercised of eminent domain.

Senator Overton (D-La), co-sponsor of the provision, observed with irony that "Mr. Willkie has found an issue."

"He did not have an issue in his accepting speech because he practically endorsed the whole New Deal in that," the Louisiana senator said.

Senator Clark (D-Mo) said Mr. Willkie apparently was anxious "to protect" the munitions manufacturers and wartime millionaires.

At this point, Senator Burke commented that sixteen Democrats now in the Senate had voted for an anti-third term resolution during the administration of the late President Coolidge.

The Nebraska senator said these Democrats might explain now why they voted then that a third term "for any president was undemocratic, unAmerican, and fraught with peril."

A Republican, Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, had the last word. He conceded that the Democrats "held a field day today but Mr. Willkie will have his on the November election day."

Company officials said McCorkhill resigned and declared the strike resulted from "a misunderstanding." McCorkhill told reporters he had been "fired."

Town of "Random" Unknown to Swiss

BERN, SWITZERLAND, Aug. 30 (AP)—Baffled Swiss thumbed through their maps and Lexicons today, trying to find the English town of "Random" which, according to German and Italian broadcasts, was heavily bombed yesterday.

It developed, however, that the Axis broadcasters had misinterpreted a British agency report to the effect that "the Germans dropped bombs at random" on England.

Defective Vision Blamed for Many Auto Accidents

Fifteen Per Cent of 212 Re-Examined Must Wear Glasses

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30, (AP)—Fifteen per cent of 212 persons given re-examinations after accidents were "restricted to wearing glasses while driving," Motor Vehicle Commissioner W. Lee Elgin said today.

The re-examinations bore out his belief that "faulty vision and mechanical faults in cars" are the "major causes of highway accidents," Elgin declared.

The 212 were all Baltimoreans. Thirty-two of them were required to wear glasses while driving. Elgin said some of them "wore glasses only for reading, others said they wore them when driving."

Elgin declared that on that basis, at least ten per cent of all Maryland's 500,000 to 600,000 drivers should be restricted to glasses.

Starting next week, similar re-examination intervals will be held in "the major cities and counties," and especial attention will be paid to vision.

Of the 212 interviewed and tested here, fifty-five per cent had had more than one accident, forty-five per cent had just had their first accidents.

None was physically disabled, and none were required to take drivers' examinations, Elgin continued, but "a few had their licenses suspended."

The re-examinations "were not designed for punishment, but were given to collect statistics on the causes of accidents. If we had the money to do it, we would like to examine every driver who has an accident."

"Forgotten Men" Now Getting Jobs

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30, (AP)—National defense is giving industry's "forgotten men," the unemployed workers over 45, a "break," David L. B. Fringer, Maryland state employment service director, said today.

The skill and experience of these older men is opening the doors—once barred by their age — to jobs in certain skilled trades, he explained.

Last month in Baltimore, twenty per cent of workers placed in private industry were forty-five or older. Last January, only fifteen per cent were older men.

Fringer said this trend obtains in other industrial centers as well, and can be expected to continue.

Older men may soon have "an even break with other age groups in getting jobs," Fringer said, for a survey last April showed twenty-eight per cent of the service's applicants were men forty-five or older.

Defense Council Opposed to New Agencies at Present

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 30 (AP) — The newly formed state council of defense and resources expressed opposition today to the creation of new agencies in developing the national defense program and said that the bulk of the work should be carried on through existing offices.

At the same time the council, through its director, Isaac George, said it would act in an advisory capacity only and would assume no executive powers.

"A state council of defense should advise, not execute," said a bulletin issued by the council. "Its advice should go to the governor, in capacity as chief executive and commander in chief of the state's armed forces."

The bulletin was sent to all state departments which may be affected by the defense program, and to some private agencies.

The council will advise quasi-public or private agencies and accept offers of cooperation the bulletin said "but in no sense will it try to 'run' them."

George said the bulletin was issued to clarify the council's aims.

Brig. Gen. Kilner Found Dead in Home

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 —Brig. Gen. Walter G. Kilner, 52, who was decorated for heroism during the World War and later became assistant to the chief of the air corps, was found dead today in the gas-filled kitchen of the apartment of Col. J. De F. Larner, a friend whom he was visiting.

The war department announced Kilner's death and said that he had been living at Buffalo, N. Y., since his retirement from active service last Nov. 30.

President Roosevelt appointed Kilner to succeed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics last December.

Kilner, a native of Shelby, N. Y., was graduated from West Point in 1912 and served at Maxwell Field, Ala., Langley Field, Va., and Washington.

Detective Sergeant Fred Rawlinson of the homicide squad said that four gas jets in the kitchen stove were open when the body was found.

Business Better During July in Fifth Distirct

Federal Reserve Bank Issues Encouraging Report

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 30, (AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank reported today that business during July in the fifth district was above the seasonal level and showed substantial improvement in nearly all lines over the same month in 1939.

The bank's research and statistics department said that probably a considerable part of the increased activity was due either directly or indirectly to the preparedness program.

Distribution of goods to consumers continued higher than a year ago, but showed some seasonal decline from June. Department store sales dropped nine per cent from the previous month, July usually being a relatively poor month in wearing apparel, but averaged fourteen per cent more than sales in July last year, the bank reported.

The Fifth district covers the states of Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and the District of Columbia.

In industry, developments were somewhat conflicting during July, the bank said. Textile mill activity declined slightly from the level of the preceding month, and production exceeded sales of textile products. On the other hand, said the report, rayon manufacturers shipped more yarn than they made, and further reduced already small reserve stocks.

Coal mines increased output further, and production during July was twenty-three per cent higher than producion of coal in July of last year.

Shipyards and airplane plants operated at capacity. Construction expanded sharply in July and building permits issued in thirty-one fifth district cities rose thirty-two per cent higher than figures for July 1939. Contract awards in the district in July nearly doubled June figures, and were sixty-three per cent above awards in July last year.

Storms and floods around mid-August did serious damage to some crops, the extent of which is yet undetermined, said the bank report.

Raiders Come in Waves

The raiders came in waves, possibly in several groups.

At least one was caught in searchlight beams flying at comparatively low altitude.

This plane released a bomb which landed two blocks from the Associated Press office in the center of the city. No fire followed this explosion.

Another machine appeared headed for the southeast district lighted by the first fire.

Sergeant D. T. DeLong.

Privates H. W. Dullinger, T. H. Stitt and W. A. James.

Army men said the plane was a "wash out," with the feselage badly wrecked.

fire of British machine-guns crashed almost in the same spot.

But it was apparent a few of the invaders broke through to their goals.

(Berlin spokesmen claimed great fires were left in Liverpool and Birkenhead and the Midlands. Dundee, Leith, and Hartlepool also were attacked as were the Weybridge airdrome southwest of London, and other airdrome and aviation plants.)

Many of Friday's raiders apparently just feinted at London, then skirted it to attack industrial targets farther north.

A formation of about twenty raided Manchester, killing a mother and her two children.

Overnight, until Friday dawn, Britain's long-distance bombers had attacked the Krupp armament works at Essen and other military targets in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France.

These attacks followed daylight forays Thursday on airdromes in German-held Holland and on convoys and shipping along the Dutch coast.

Besides the big Krupp works, oil refineries and plants at Gelsenkirchen, Bottrop and St. Nazaire were attacked; power stations at Duisberg and Reisholz, freight yards at Hamm and Soest, plants in the Ruhr district, and airdromes over a wide area also were raided.

British officials said the Germans "indiscriminately" bombed districts in Kent and Surrey, counties bordering London, but said the casualties were small, and damage slight.

DRAFT WEALTH AS WELL AS MAN

Germany and Italy

when Moscow said its aspirations had been satisfied by Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, ceded to Russia earlier.

It was indicated they considered, however, that Chauvinistic Magyars might still hope to realize their "unfulfilled dream of the crown of St. Stephen" and seek more former Hungarian soil, and also that nationalistic Bulgarians might not be satisfied with southern Dobruja alone.

Today's settlement was described as a sort of "swap" with Rumania giving up an extra large slice of northern Transylvania, including some of her own people, and retaining in return a number of Hungarians in the south who could not be returned to Hungary except by an awkward corridor. Included in the ceded territory is the Szekler area, which formed a sack in the very heart of Rumania, and which the Hungarians particularly were determined to get.

Swap in Vague Sense

It was a swap, of course, only in the sense that Rumania gave up a group of Rumanians in the north for the purpose of consolidating scattered Hungarians and kept a number of Hungarians whose return would have involved surrendering also a large number of Rumanians.

It must be kept in mind, authorized sources emphasized, that the Rumanians also are keeping approximately 500,000 Germans in the southern Transylvania regions. Some 100,000 other Germans are included in the territory handed to Hungary.

Twenty years of strife between Hungary and Rumania over Transylvania reached its high point in mid-afternoon at Belvedere Palace, in the middle of Vienna.

After some delay in beginning the day's session, apparently while Rumanian and Hungarian delegates made their last contacts with their governments, the final negotiations were concluded quickly in the palace's ornate gold room.

It was in a neighboring room that von Ribbentrop and Ciano awarded Hungary a portion of Slovakia in their post-Munich arbitration. Czecho-Slovakia since has vanished as a republic.

Meet for First Time

The Hungarians and Rumanians, who broke off their direct negotiations at Turnu-Severin, came face to face here for the first time when they were summoned to the gold room conference table.

Hungarian Premier Pal Teleky along of the seven men seated at the conference table was dressed in civilian clothes.

Rumanian Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu appeared pale as he listened to von Ribbentrop read a statement announcing the decision. Nazi chief of protocol von Doerenberg hastened to his side with a glass of water.

Ribbentrop in a brief speech stressed that the last territorial problem now has been settled in the Danube area and indicated the axis would stand for no further revision.

He characterized the decision as "impartial and just" and as serving the best interests of Hungary and Rumania in aiming at "lasting and friendly relations" between the two neighbors.

The axis powers again have proved that they are in a position to snuff out the "torch the English are trying to throw into the Danube area," he said.

The Hungarians, sources close to the Magyar delegation said, received roughly two-thirds of their original demands.

In the conferences Germany took the opportunity to put into writing measures to secure in Hungary and Rumania the right of German minorities to organize along Nazi lines in sports, youth training, liberal arts and other activities.

Greece Calls Up Practically All Reserve Officers

Takes Action as Precaution against Italian Threats

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 30 (AP) — Greece called up substantially all of her reserve officers tonight, while informed quarters were predicting that Italy might use a projected session of the Albanian Parliament tomorrow as a sounding board for new oral attacks on this pro-British country.

Greek officials said the meeting would be watched anxiously for some sign of Italy's intention toward this kingdom. The Fascist press has carried on a violent press campaign against Greece, alleging that the Greeks now hold territory rightfully belonging to Albania. That country is now a part of the Italian empire.

The reservists were called up for service Sept. 11. The scope of the summons will make it possible, said military observers, to put the nation completely under arms within a few hours. Some reserve classes already are in service.

on short notice "and it was not possible to invite a great many."

Rep. Byron on Hand

Among those attending were Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore; Senators Tydings and Radcliffe; Congressmen Ward, Cole, D'Alesandro, Kennedy, Sasscer and Byron; National Committeeman William Preston Lane; John A. Meyer, Democratic nominee for the fourth congressional district; E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery county, and Philip B. Perlman, Balticore attorney.

Cash said another meeting would be held Tuesday in Baltimore, when a general advisory campaign committee would be named.

Mayor Jackson, whose speech before a convention of fraternal organizations earlier this week was interpreted by some as an "anti-New Deal stand," asserted today he would "cooperate in every way 'I can" with the Democratic Campaign Committee.

Is Jackson for Willkie?

He declined to comment on reports that he favored Wendell Willkie, but said he did not think "anyone ought to doubt my Democracy—I am a Democrat." He steadfastly refused, however, to amplify the remarks in the speech.

Cash scoffed at the idea of Jackson's "taking a walk," and said the mayor's speech had been misunderstood. In the extemporaneous speech, which Jackson later had printed from a stenographic report and issued to reporters, the mayor said he wasn't worried about Hitler but "what I am concerned about is that this government is spending $2 and taking in $1. . . ."

Senator Tydings also labelled as "pure surmise" a rumor that he would support Willkie. "I haven't yet made a statement of my stand in the campaign," he said.

Plan Hearings on Excess Profits Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the Senate Finance committee decided today to hold hearings on the proposed new excess profits taxes and invite affected corporations to criticize them.

"The country is entitled to express its opinions on how this would operate," Harrison said. He described the excess profits legislation rushed through the House yesterday as the "most intricate tax bill ever presented to Congress."

At the same time, Harrison predicted that the Senate would speed action on the bill. President Roosevelt and defense leaders have asked early enactment of an excess profits measure, saying that some concerns were holding off from defense contracts until questions involved in the legislation were settled.

Resignation of Sec. Perkins Is Demanded by VFW

Veterans Also Demand Deportation of Harry Bridges

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30 (AP)—The National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars adopted resolutions today demanding resignation of Secretary of Labor Perkins and the deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast maritime union leader.

The Perkins resolution termed her "an appointee who knows but little if any of the sacrifices made by laboring classes" and asked her displacement with "a secretary who will have a true and accurate feeling and sympathy for the needs of American labor in the Democratic precesses through which American labor has gained so much."

The Bridges resolution demanded also the deportation of "all other aliens whose continued residence here is an encouragement to sabotage and treason."

Dr. Joseph C. Mendenez, New Orleans, was advanced from senior vice-commander to commander-in-chief, and Max Singer of Brighton, Mass., was promoted from junior vice-commander to succede him.

Robert T. Merrill of Havre, Mont., was elected junior vice-commander. Rev. E. F. Austin of Richmond, Calif., was chosen chaplain.

taken over the opposition of Julio Maniu, the peasant party leader, but he arrived at the palace too late to participate in the last vote. It was breakfast time before the fevered conferences ended at last and the government's officials walked glumly out into the day.

Early this afternoon a communique told the outside world of the surrender.

In the late afternoon, after the city had aroused from its post-luncheon siesta, Bucharest's people heard the news.

It was news much greater than the Transylvanian issue itself; it was the end of a kingdom as Rumanians had known it for a fifth of a century.

The seven-point arbitration agreed upon in Vienna to accomplish the major operation upon Rumania's geographical body provided this in essence:

Arbitration Provisions

1. The fixing of the new frontier itself, putting about half of Transylvania into Hungarian hands, but leaving the details to a Rumanian-Hungarian commission. Therefore precise estimates of the territory involved could not be made.

2. Rumanian soldiers to move out of the ceded territory within two weeks; to hand it over "in orderly condition."

3. Rumanian citizens now living in the ceded area to become Hungarians "automatically," with the provision, however, that they be given six months to select one citizenship or the other. If they decide to remain as Rumanians they must leave the new Hungarian Transylvanian state within an additional period of twelve months, taking all their movable property and "liquidating" that which cannot be moved. For this "liquidation" they are to be compensated by Hungary in a "broad-minded and conciliatory fashion."

4. Hungarians who now are Rumanian citizens may do the same thing in reverse—go back to Hungarian citizenship under the same conditions.

5. Hungary is to give to Rumanians becoming Hungarian citizens "the same rights" as Hungarian citizens, Rumania to do likewise for those going the other way around.

6. Questions arising under all this to be negotiated directly between Rumania and Hungary.

7. If settlements cannot thus be made, the issues will be settled by Germany and Italy.

Axis Works Quickly

The axis, with the celerity of action that has become characteristic, accomplished in this heavy formula the two aims which the world attributed to the Vienna conference from the moment it was hurriedly summoned early this week.

It forced a continuing peace, if perhaps an uneasy one, so that the Balkans might continue producing for the German-Italian war effort against Britain.

It erected a new and formidable wall—to add to that already erected in Poland—against any further westward March of the Red armies.

Only a few days before the conference was called, Rumanian and Soviet troops clashed on the new frontier created by Russia's absorption of northern Bucovina.

And even as the settlement was reached today, the Rumanian government had before it—in addition to everything else—two notes from Russia protesting "provocative action" on the frontier and predicting "grave" consequences if there were any further incidents.

Today also, the Soviet army began maneuvers in a region described only as "the western special military district."

Townsend Charges New Dealers Try To Alarm Country

Senator Sees Effort To Scare People into Electing FDR and Wallace

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — Senator Townsend (R-Del) asserted today that President Roosevelt and Henry A. Wallace "are going to try to scare the country into voting them into office."

Townsend was one of several GOP legislators who commented, in statements issued through the Republican National Committee, on Wallace's speech at Des Moines last night accepting the Democratic nomination for vice president.

Democratic legislators lauded the former agriculture secretary's address, however. Senator Barkley (D-Ky) said that Wallace had discussed domestic and international issues in a manner "which the American people can thoroughly understand." Senator McKellar (D-Tenn) declared:

"As long as Hitler is fighting democracy, the country will agree with Mr. Wallace that it is no time for us to change presidents."

Rep. Short (R-Mo) observing that Wallace had mentioned Hitler twenty-one times, said that the Iowan's effort "to convince the country that it will fall into Hitler's clutches unless Roosevelt is reelected is sheerest poppycock."

Asserting that Wallace's main argument was that Mr. Roosevelt had been constantly warning the country against Hitler for seven years, "while the Republicans have been sleeping or plotting appeasement," Short asked why the president "broke up" the London disarmament conference in 1933 and had advocated a disarmament conference among the United States, Great Britain and Japan in 1935.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said that if the president was so well informed, "why did he wait until four months ago to start his defense program?"

"And even then," he continued, "how does it happen that he so underestimated the needs of adequate armament that he chided Congress at a press conference on June 4 because it didn't adjourn and go home?"

Plan To Develop

strips, it is intended eventually to place a group of industries such as a small arms plant, an ammunition loading plant and perhaps an aircraft factory.

Additional areas may be mapped, and the present ones may be changed, but, roughly speaking, the present areas have been delimited as follows:

Areas Enumerated

A—Northern Indiana, Northern Illinois, Southern Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and thence Westward.

B—Ohio, Southwestern Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Western Virginia, and Eastern Kentucky.

E—Western Tennessee, Northern Mississippi, Arkansas, Northern Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and Westward.

Prime strategic purposes are to locate new plants out of range of air attack, and to avoid a highly vulnerable concentration of industry such as exists today in the "industrial triangle" which has Pittsburgh, Boston and Wilmington, Del., as its three points.

Communists Barred By O'Conor Pending State Investigation

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30 (AP) — Under Governor O'Conor's orders the Communist party in Maryland was refused a place on the state ballot today until an investigation of alleged fraud in petitions supporting the party candidates is completed.

If evidence of fraud is found, the candidates will be barred from the ballot and party members who certified the petition signatures will be liable to criminal prosecution.

If the signatures are found to be valid the petition will be certified by the secretary of state and the party will be represented in the November election.

The governor's order will halt the sending of Communist party petitions to the state law department for examination.

State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells of Baltimore started summoning persons whose names appear on the Communist petitions to determine whether there were any irregularities.

Ferryboat and Tanker in Crash

NEW YORK, Aug. 30, (AP) — The municipal ferryboat "New York", enroute from Staten Island to Manhattan, and an oil tanker collided late today about 1,000 yards out in the upper bay from the ferry's terminal at the battery. One person was injured.

The ferry proceeded to its dock.

The tanker was the 9,511-ton Magnolia of the Standard Oil Co.

NO GAS -- IT'S STILL "HOME JAMES!"

The use of gasoline in Denmark limited to cars on official business, doctors, and a few buses, bicycles have come into wide use. In Copenhagen, this wealthy Dane must read his paper on his way home from work, has acquired a tandem, with his chauffeur doing most of pumping.

New Susquehanna River Bridge Is Doing Business

Traffic Is Heavier Than Originally Figured, Whitman Says

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Aug. 30 (AP)—Traffic—in greater volume than expected—is rolling steadily across the Susquehanna river bridge, one of two new spans costing $5,000,000 each.

In the first eight hours, 3,100 cars crossed the bridge, dedicated Wednesday. The number is part of the basis for a prediction by Ezra B. Whitman, State Roads Commission chairman, that the two bridges may pay for themselves in twelve to fifteen years, or sooner than anticipated.

Bonds worth $6,000,000 were issued to cover part of the cost of the Susquehanna bridge, and the Potomac river bridge at Morgantown.

High Tolls Charged

Tolls here are twenty cents per car, twenty-five cents to $1.45 for trucks. Roads officials said they expected 2,334,000 machines to use the bridge the first year, for gross revenue of $423,000.

In Baltimore, Whitman said the Potomac bridge was expected to yield $133,000 the first year through 128,000 vehicles, charged at seventy-five cents per car and a higher rate for trucks. This bridge will "be open before the end of the year if we have good weather."

Traffic over both spans is expected to increase yearly, and Whitman said several years might be cut from the original estimate of fifteen to twenty years before the bridges will pay for themselves, and tolls will be stopped.

Elmer J. White of Salisbury is acting superintendent of the bridge here. He ranked third on an examination given by the roads commission, and was named to the post here, while the Potomac superintendency went to Abram S. Wilson, Havre De Grace.

Schaefer's Job Held Up

Elwood E. Schaefer, Cumberland war veteran who ranked second in the tests, protested, and the employment commissioner ordered his appointment to one of the new bridge jobs. Whitman said today "we shall probably not be able to find out until next week what we will be able to do" about the Schaefer order.

General Election and Krupp Indicted

NEW YORK, Aug. 30, (AP)—A special federal grand jury investigating alleged anti-trust law violators in war industries today indicted the General Electric Company and the Krupp Company of Essen, Germany, of conspiracy to fix prices and control supply of hard metals and tools vital to the nation's defense program.

The indictment, described by federal investigators as the most important defense-monopoly bill yet returned, was the second naming General Electric Company, and the fourth war industry indictment by the grand jury in as many days.

The first charged four firms with price-fixing in the airplane fabric industry, the second accused four companies of monopolistic practices in the glass bulb field, and the third accused five corporations of conspiring to control production and sale of bentonite—a moulding clay. Individual officers were also named in each case; General Electric was cited in the second.

Dozen Senate

plete his remarks, a dozen other Senate Democrats were up clamoring for a chance to join in the attack.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) suggested that "if Mr. Willkie is hankering so for a debate he might debate this issue in ten different states of Republican senators who favored it." Barkley read the list of Republicans voting for the provision.

Senator Lee (D-Okla) observes that a "new popular song should be written for Mr. Willkie about I didn't raise my dollar to be a soldier.

Minton Joins in Attack

Senator Minton (D-Ind) said Mr. Willkie was protesting as an "extraordinary power" for government the same power that any power utility exercised of eminent domain.

Senator Overton (D-La), co-sponsor of the provision, observed with irony that "Mr. Willkie has found an issue."

"He did not have an issue in his accepting speech because he practically endorsed the whole New Deal in that," the Louisiana senator said.

Senator Clark (D-Mo) said Mr. Willkie apparently was anxious "to protect" the munitions manufacturers and wartime millionaires.

At this point, Senator Burke commented that sixteen Democrats now in the Senate had voted for an anti-third term resolution during the administration of the late President Coolidge.

The Nebraska senator said these Democrats might explain now why they voted then that a third term "for any president was undemocratic, unAmerican, and fraught with peril."

A Republican, Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, had the last word. He conceded that the Democrats "held a field day today but Mr. Willkie will have his on the November election day."

Nolte summed the strike pay demands: Increases from twenty-two to twenty-five cents a thousand cigars for packers, from eighty to ninety a thousand for rollers, from ten to twelve cents a thousand for wrappers, a week vacation with pay.

Company officials said McCorkhill resigned and declared the strike resulted from "a misunderstanding." McCorkhill told reporters he had been "fired."

Town of "Random" Unknown to Swiss

BERN, SWITZERLAND, Aug. 30 (AP)—Baffled Swiss thumbed through their maps and Lexicons today, trying to find the English town of "Random" which, according to German and Italian broadcasts, was heavily bombed yesterday.

It developed, however, that the Axis broadcasters had misinterpreted a British agency report to the effect that "the Germans dropped bombs at random" on England.

Defective Vision Blamed for Many Auto Accidents

Fifteen Per Cent of 212 Re-Examined Must Wear Glasses

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30. (AP)—Fifteen per cent of 212 persons given re-examinations after accidents were "restricted to wearing glasses while driving," Motor Vehicle Commissioner W. Lee Elgin said today.

The re-examinations bore out his belief that "faulty vision and mechanical faults in cars" are the "major causes of highway accidents," Elgin declared.

The 212 were all Baltimoreans. Thirty-two of them were required to wear glasses while driving. Elgin said some of them "wore glasses only for reading, others said they wore them when driving."

Elgin declared that on that basis, at least ten per cent of all Maryland's 500,000 to 600,000 drivers should be restricted to glasses.

Starting next week, similar re-examination intervals will be held in "the major cities and counties," and especial attention will be paid to vision.

Of the 212 interviewed and tested here, fifty-five per cent had had more than one accident, forty-five per cent had just had their first accidents.

None was physically disabled, and none were required to take drivers' examinations, Elgin continued, but "a few had their licenses suspended."

The re-examinations "were not designed for punishment, but were given to collect statistics on the causes of accidents. If we had the money to do it, we would like to examine every driver who has an accident."

"Forgotten Men" Now Getting Jobs

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30, (AP)—National defense is giving industry's "forgotten men," the unemployed workers over 45, a "break," David L. B. Fringer, Maryland state employment service director, said today.

The skill and experience of these older men is opening the doors—once barred by their age — to jobs in certain skilled trades, he explained.

Last month in Baltimore, twenty per cent of workers placed in private industry were forty-five or older. Last January, only fifteen per cent were older men.

Fringer said this trend obtains in other industrial centers as well, and can be expected to continue.

Older men may soon have "an even break with other age groups in getting jobs," Fringer said, for a survey last April showed twenty-eight per cent of the service's applicants were men forty-five or older.

Defense Council Opposed to New Agencies at Present

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 30 (AP) — The newly formed state council of defense and resources expressed opposition today to the creation of new agencies in developing the national defense program and said that the bulk of the work should be carried on through existing offices.

At the same time the council, through its director, Isaac George, said it would act in an advisory capacity only and would assume no executive powers.

"A state council of defense should advise, not execute," said a bulletin issued by the council. "Its advice should go to the governor, in capacity as chief executive and commander in chief of the state's armed forces."

The bulletin was sent to all state departments which may be affected by the defense program, and to some private agencies.

The council will advise quasi-public or private agencies and accept offers of cooperation the bulletin said "but in no sense will it try to 'run' them."

George said the bulletin was issued to clarify the council's aims.

Brig. Gen. Kilner Found Dead in Home

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 —Brig. Gen. Walter G. Kilner, 52, who was decorated for heroism during the World War and later became assistant to the chief of the air corps, was found dead today in the gas-filled kitchen of the apartment of Col. J. De F. Larner, a friend whom he was visiting.

The war department announced Kilner's death and said that he had been living at Buffalo, N. Y., since his retirement from active service last Nov. 30.

President Roosevelt appointed Kilner to succeed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics last December.

Kilner, a native of Shelby, N. Y., was graduated from West Point in 1912 and served at Maxwell Field, Ala., Langley Field, Va., and Washington.

Detective Sergeant Fred Rawlinson of the homicide squad said that four gas jets in the kitchen stove were open when the body was found.

Business Better During July in Fifth Distirct

Federal Reserve Bank Issues Encouraging Report

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 30. (AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank reported today that business during July in the fifth district was above the seasonal level and showed substantial improvement in nearly all lines over the same month in 1939.

The bank's research and statistics department said that probably a considerable part of the increased activity was due either directly or indirectly to the preparedness program.

Distribution of goods to consumers continued higher than a year ago, but showed some seasonal decline from June. Department store sales dropped nine per cent from the previous month, July usually being a relatively poor month in wearing apparel, but averaged fourteen per cent more than sales in July last year, the bank reported.

The Fifth district covers the states of Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and the District of Columbia.

In industry, developments were somewhat conflicting during July, the bank said. Textile mill activity declined slightly from the level of the preceding month, and production exceeded sales of textile products. On the other hand, said the report, rayon manufacturers shipped more yarn than they made, and further reduced already small reserve stocks.

Coal mines increased output further, and production during July was twenty-three per cent higher than producion of coal in July of last year.

Shipyards and airplane plants operated at capacity. Construction expanded sharply in July and building permits issued in thirty-one fifth district cities rose thirty-two per cent higher than figures for July 1939. Contract awards in the district in July nearly doubled June figures, and were sixty-three per cent above awards in July last year.

Storms and floods around mid-August did serious damage to some crops, the extent of which is yet undetermined, said the bank report.

Raiders Come in Waves

The raiders came in waves, possibly in several groups.

At least one was caught in searchlight beams flying at comparatively low altitude.

This plane released a bomb which landed two blocks from the Associated Press office in the center of the city. No fire followed this explosion.

Another machine appeared headed for the southeast district lighted by the first fire.

The others who reached ground safely were:

Second Lieut. Henry P. King.

Sergeant N. A. Davis.

Sergeant D. T. DeLong.

Privates H. W. Dullinger, T. H. Stitt and W. A. James.

Stitt, second man to jump, came down in a tree.

Army men said the plane was a "wash out," with the feselage badly wrecked.

Find Spitfires

fire of British machine-guns crashed almost in the same spot.

But it was apparent a few of the invaders broke through to their goals.

(Berlin spokesmen claimed great fires were left in Liverpool and Birkenhead and the Midlands. Dundee, Leith, and Hartlepool also were attacked as were the Weybridge airdrome southwest of London, and other airdrome and aviation plants.)

Many of Friday's raiders apparently just feinted at London, then skirted it to attack industrial targets farther north.

A formation of about twenty raided Manchester, killing a mother and her two children.

Overnight, until Friday dawn, Britain's long-distance bombers had attacked the Krupp armament works at Essen and other military targets in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France.

These attacks followed daylight forays Thursday on airdromes in German-held Holland and on convoys and shipping along the Dutch coast.

Besides the big Krupp works, oil refineries and plants at Gelsenkirchen, Bottrop and St. Nazaire were attacked; power stations at Duisberg and Reisholz, freight yards at Hamm and Soest, plants in the Ruhr district, and airdromes over a wide area also were raided.

British officials said the Germans "indiscriminately" bombed districts in Kent and Surrey, counties bordering London, but said the casualties were small, and damage slight.

DRAFT WEALTH AS WELL AS MAN

Their amendment would give the government power to conscript industry if defense needs require it and industry does not cooperate.

when Moscow said its aspirations had been satisfied by Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, ceded to Russia earlier.

It was indicated they considered, however, that Chauvinistic Magyars might still hope to realize their "unfulfilled dream of the crown of St. Stephen" and seek more former Hungarian soil, and also that nationalistic Bulgarians might not be satisfied with southern Dobruja alone.

Today's settlement was described as a sort of "swap" with Rumania giving up an extra large slice of northern Transylvania, including some of her own people, and retaining in return a number of Hungarians in the south who could not be returned to Hungary except by an awkward corridor. Included in the ceded territory is the Szekler area, which formed a sack in the very heart of Rumania, and which the Hungarians particularly were determined to get.

Swap in Vague Sense

It was a swap, of course, only in the sense that Rumania gave up a group of Rumanians in the north for the purpose of consolidating scattered Hungarians and kept a number of Hungarians whose return would have involved surrendering also a large number of Rumanians.

It must be kept in mind, authorized sources emphasized, that the Rumanians also are keeping approximately 500,000 Germans in the southern Transylvania regions. Some 100,000 other Germans are included in the territory handed to Hungary.

Twenty years of strife between Hungary and Rumania over Transylvania reached its high point in mid-afternoon at Belvedere Palace, in the middle of Vienna.

After some delay in beginning the day's session, apparently while Rumanian and Hungarian delegates made their last contacts with their governments, the final negotiations were concluded quickly in the palace's ornate gold room.

It was in a neighboring room that von Ribbentrop and Ciano awarded Hungary a portion of Slovakia in their post-Munich arbitration. Czecho-Slovakia since has vanished as a republic.

Meet for First Time

The Hungarians and Rumanians, who broke off their direct negotiations at Turnu-Severin, came face to face here for the first time when they were summoned to the gold room conference table.

Hungarian Premier Pal Teleky along of the seven men seated at the conference table was dressed in civilian clothes.

Rumanian Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu appeared pale as he listened to von Ribbentrop read a statement announcing the decision. Nazi chief of protocol von Doerenberg hastened to his side with a glass of water.

Ribbentrop in a brief speech stressed that the last territorial problem now has been settled in the Danube area and indicated the axis would stand for no further revision.

He characterized the decision as "impartial and just" and as serving the best interests of Hungary and Rumania in aiming at "lasting and friendly relations" between the two neighbors.

The axis powers again have proved that they are in a position to snuff out the "torch the English are trying to throw into the Danube area," he said.

The Hungarians, sources close to the Magyar delegation said, received roughly two-thirds of their original demands.

In the conferences Germany took the opportunity to put into writing measures to secure in Hungary and Rumania the right of German minorities to organize along Nazi lines in sports, youth training, liberal arts and other activities.

The principal difference is the Senate's insistence on $100,000,000 for defense housing construction.

Greece Calls Up Practically All Reserve Officers

Takes Action as Precaution against Italian Threats

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 30 (AP) — Greece called up substantially all of her reserve officers tonight, while informed quarters were predicting that Italy might use a projected session of the Albanian Parliament tomorrow as a sounding board for new oral attacks on this pro-British country.

Greek officials said the meeting would be watched anxiously for some sign of Italy's intention toward this kingdom. The Fascist press has carried on a violent press campaign against Greece, alleging that the Greeks now hold territory rightfully belonging to Albania. That country is now a part of the Italian empire.

The reservists were called up for service Sept. 11. The scope of the summons will make it possible, said military observers, to put the nation completely under arms within a few hours. Some reserve classes already are in service.

on short notice "and it was not possible to invite a great many."

Rep. Byron on Hand

Among those attending were Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore; Senators Tydings and Radcliffe; Congressmen Ward, Cole, D'Alesandro, Kennedy, Sasscer and Byron; National Committeeman William Preston Lane; John A. Meyer, Democratic nominee for the fourth congressional district; E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery county, and Philip B. Perlman, Balticore attorney.

Cash said another meeting would be held Tuesday in Baltimore, when a general advisory campaign committee would be named.

Mayor Jackson, whose speech before a convention of fraternal organizations earlier this week was interpreted by some as an "anti-New Deal stand," asserted today he would "cooperate in every way I can" with the Democratic Campaign Committee.

Is Jackson for Willkie?

He declined to comment on reports that he favored Wendell Willkie, but said he did not think "anyone ought to doubt my Democracy—I am a Democrat." He steadfastly refused, however, to amplify the remarks in the speech.

Cash scoffed at the idea of Jackson's "taking a walk," and said the mayor's speech had been misunderstood. In the extemporaneous speech, which Jackson later had printed from a stenographic report and issued to reporters, the mayor said he wasn't worried about Hitler but "what I am concerned about is that this government is spending $2 and taking in $1. . . ."

Senator Tydings also labelled as "pure surmise" a rumor that he would support Willkie. "I haven't yet made a statement of my stand in the campaign," he said.

Plan Hearings on Excess Profits Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the Senate Finance committee decided today to hold hearings on the proposed new excess profits taxes and invite affected corporations to criticize them.

"The country is entitled to express its opinions on how this would operate," Harrison said. He described the excess profits legislation rushed through the House yesterday as the "most intricate tax bill ever presented to Congress."

At the same time, Harrison predicted that the Senate would speed action on the bill. President Roosevelt and defense leaders have asked early enactment of an excess profits measure, saying that some concerns were holding off from defense contracts until questions involved in the legislation were settled.

Resignation of Sec. Perkins Is Demanded by VFW

Veterans Also Demand Deportation of Harry Bridges

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30 (AP)—The National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars adopted resolutions today demanding the resignation of Secretary of Labor Perkins and the deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast maritime union leader.

The Perkins resolution termed her "an appointee who knows but little if any of the sacrifices made by laboring classes" and asked her replacement with "a secretary who will have a true and accurate feeling and sympathy for the needs of American labor in the Democratic precesses through which American labor has gained so much."

The Bridges resolution demanded also the deportation of "all other aliens whose continued residence here is an encouragement to sabotage and treason."

Dr. Joseph C. Mendenez, New Orleans, was advanced from senior vice-commander to commander-in-chief, and Max Singer of Brighton, Mass., was promoted from junior vice-commander to succede him.

Robert T. Merrill of Havre, Mont., was elected junior vice-commander. Rev. E. F. Austin of Richmond, Calif., was chosen chaplain.

taken over the opposition of Julius Maniu, the peasant party leader, but he arrived at the palace too late to participate in the last vote. It was breakfast time before the feverish conferences ended at last and the government's officials walked glumly out into the day.

Early this afternoon a communique told the outside world of the surrender.

In the late afternoon, after the city had aroused from its post-luncheon siesta, Bucharest's people heard the news.

It was news much greater than the Transylvanian issue itself; it was the end of a kingdom as Rumanians had known it for a fifth of a century.

The seven-point arbitration agreed upon in Vienna to accomplish this major operation upon Rumania's geographical body provided this, in essence:

Arbitration Provisions

1. The fixing of the new frontier itself, putting about half of Transylvania into Hungarian hands, but leaving the details to a Rumanian-Hungarian commission. Therefore precise estimates of the territory involved could not be made.

2. Rumanian soldiers to move out of the ceded territory within two weeks; to hand it over "in orderly condition."

3. Rumanian citizens now living in the ceded area to become Hungarians "automatically," with the provision, however, that they be given six months to select one citizenship or the other. If they decide to remain as Rumanians they must leave the new Hungarian Transylvanian state within an additional period of twelve months, taking all their movable property and "liquidating" that which cannot be moved. For this "liquidation" they are to be compensated by Hungary in a "broad-minded and conciliatory fashion."

4. Hungarians who now are Rumanian citizens may do the same thing in reverse—go back to Hungarian citizenship under the same conditions.

5. Hungary is to give to Rumanians becoming Hungarian citizens "the same rights" as Hungarian citizens, Rumania to do likewise for those going the other way around.

6. Questions arising under all this to be negotiated directly between Rumania and Hungary.

7. If settlements cannot thus be made, the issues will be settled by Germany and Italy.

Axis Works Quickly

The axis, with the celerity of action that has become characteristic, accomplished in this heavy formula the two aims which the world attributed to the Vienna conference from the moment it was hurriedly summoned early this week.

It forced a continuing peace, if perhaps an uneasy one, so that the Balkans might continue producing for the German-Italian war effort against Britain.

It erected a new and formidable wall—to add to that already erected in Poland—against any further westward March of the Red armies.

Only a few days before the conference was called, Rumanian and Soviet troops clashed on the new frontier created by Russia's absorption of northern Bucovina.

And even as the settlement was reached today, the Rumanian government had before it—in addition to everything else—two notes from Russia protesting "provocative action" on the frontier and predicting "grave" consequences if there were any further incidents.

Today also, the Soviet army began maneuvers in a region described only as "the western special military district."

Drifting or Being Shoved into War

WITHOUT DOUBT much if not most of the opposition to peace-time conscription has been based on the fear that this nation is being shoved into war, or at least drifting into it. That, of course, ought to favor conscription, but the opposition, aside from the apprehension of possible dictatorial government, rests upon the theory that delay in conscription would have a restraining influence on war possibility.

Various views obtain as to that possibility. Wise ones in Washington think that we will get into the European conflict if Great Britain can hang on until spring. Other wise ones think that if Britain holds out that long we will not get into it, but that if it does not we will.

The Hearst newspapers are fearful of the present national policy. William Randolph Hearst, their head, expresses the conviction that President Roosevelt will do something before election day that will, as the American, of Somerset, Pa., says, "catapult the United States into the maelstrom to insure his re-election."

Commenting on that, the Connellsville, Pa., Courier correctly says it is not easy for even a bitter partisan to conceive of a president willfully doing anything that would plunge his people into war. It should be his first interest, of course, to keep them out. Hearst sees, however, in the president's demand for immediate passage of the conscription bill, his conferences with Premier Mackenzie King, of Canada, setting up an unauthorized defense act and the recent firebrand speech of Ambassador Bullitt in Philadelphia, the workings of the Roosevelt mind.

"It must be evident to the average citizen," comments the Connellsville Courier, "that linking the United States and Canada is alignment with the British Empire; that leasing of air, and possibly naval, bases in the British possessions this side of the Atlantic from Newfoundland into the Caribbean, laudable as a defensive measure, is another step toward that end.

"The president cannot, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, be censured for taking all necessary steps for protection of the country against invasion, but there is a widespread suspicion that his haste is directly connected with his desire to perpetuate himself and the New Deal by victory at the polls. There is a feeling that events will have so crowded in upon the nation by November that opposition to 'mid-stream' change of leadership will become the slogan of the interests opposed to the election of Wendell Willkie."

It cannot be taken for granted that neither Roosevelt nor any other president would deliberately plunge this nation into war. Rather must one credit him with the belief that his defense moves and related actions are grounded on the belief that such things serve rather as a preventative. Nevertheless, there is reason to believe that the prsiednt has of late been overwhelmed by unreasonable fears of the actual situation and that he is being stampeded by them into a panic and is doing many things that a more level headed executive would not do, or at least would do in an entirely different and more logical manner.

Heavy Artillery Takes A Back Seat

HEAVY ARTILLERY has suffered a decline in this war as a determining factor of comparative strength between combatants which curiously corresponds with the increase in the use of the plane as a decisive implement.

Recently when the Germans brought into play their big guns between Boulogne and Calais, shelling the English coast, the act gave a picturesque touch to the contest, but none of the military experts believes that it gave Germany an advantage to compensate for the heavy cost of such fire.

In the first place, accuracy of fire from big guns is very difficult unless planes are on hand to correct ranges for the gunners. That is a service which the German flyers find the air too hot to give the German artillery.

In the second place, continued bombardment by big guns is expensive performance. The barrels of big guns, such as the Germans used on the French coast, have to be relined when they have fired around 100 shots. Relining takes not only money but time. The damage caused in enemy territory in modern war isn't worth it.

No one arm of military service will win the war, but the new airplane will come nearer doing it than the old ordnance, once so powerful that Napoleon was led to declare that God was on the side with the heavier artillery.

One Year of War Fails To Bring Its Climax

AS the war concludes its first year of action which has encompassed most of Europe, its climax is still to be reached. The climax is the attempted conquest of England. The preliminary stage has been set for that attempt. It is unlikely Hitler could avoid it if he would.

Initial air raids on England which the Nazis called exploratory, were followed by a perceptible pause. Now Hitler's sky devils are again raining death and destruction on English towns. Royal Air Force bombers are retaliating effectively in Germany and in German-occupied territory.

Two developments at least may be covering up operations. One of them is the Berlin announcement that all of Britain is to be blockaded by air and sea. This may be to fix in the minds of the British that the war will continue largely in the air with no land invasion attempted. Another development is the placing in sporadic action of batteries of Big Berthas along the Channel coast. That can be for the purpose of directing British resistance to that quarter while the real blow slants to another point.

Some indications are reported that the forces of invasion are concentrating behind the Frisian islands for a thrust at the lowlands of the southeastern coast.

Whatever the Hitler blueprints call for, the British await the crisis with a confidence born of the fact that they have held their own in the air, that their sea supremacy is unbroken and that they are ready in arm and in heart for any blow at the seat of their empire.

School Safety Campaigns Reduce Child Accidents

PROOF that the educational safety campaigns conducted regularly in the schools of this country are beginning to pay wholesome dividends is contained in the National Safety Council's 1940 yearbook, Accident Facts. Just off the press, this enlightening document reports that the elementary and high school students of the nation established another safety mark in 1939.

These youngsters between the ages of 5 and 14 set the lowest estimated accidental death total in the records, which extend back to 1913. The accidental death total for this group was 6,250 — a decrease of five per cent under 1938.

Since 1922, when a definite national program of safety education was inaugurated, accidental deaths to children between 5 to 14 years of age have decreased thirty-seven per cent. This is substantially more than twice the reduction shown by any other age group. Among persons 15 to 24 years of age the 1939 rate was only one per cent less than 1922. The 25-44 age group showed a decrease of fourteen per cent, but the 45-64 age group's accidental death rate for 1939 was up six per cent above the 1922 figure.

Since all age groups have been exposed to these national safety campaigns, it would look from the facts as if the youngsters of this country are a lot more adept than their elders at learning how to stay safe and avoid accidents. Or perhaps there's some truth in that old adage that an old dog cannot be taught new tricks.

The WPA dumped 300 new pick-handles on the dump at Los Angeles and told the caretaker to burn them and not tell anybody. He didn't—until he had sold 'em all.

Italian soldiers, we read, now are studying German. One wonders if this is to avoid the possibility of misunderstanding their next orders.

The Browser's Findings

By MARSHALL MASLIN

What the Browser likes about Elliot Paul's adventure-detective stories is their frank frivolousness. The man is gay, unconscionable, shrewd, ingenious—and naughty. They make very little sense indeed, but who cares as long as an author has the ability to write exciting trash and doesn't pretend to be writing anything else?

Marshall Maslin

Elliot Paul's hero is a manly fellow, as those who have read "The Mysterious Mickey Finn" and "Hugger-Mugger in the Louvre" already know. His women are feminine, most of his men are huge, lusty and tremendous tosspots, and when he kills off his villains he slaughters them by the dozen—except those he is saving for his next book. So if you have read the stout gentleman's previous books, you know what to expect in "Mayhem in B-Flat" (Random House), a title which has nothing at all to do with the book (but, again, who cares?)

The Browser wouldn't dream of bothering you with the plot of this thriller. It suffices to say that it wanders helterskelter all over the gay France that is now temporarily gone—and that it is rich in street battles, naval engagements and love encounters. The author himself says: "all characters, poisons, hotels, or other commercial establishments or goods in the story are imaginary and readers are cautioned against trying to get in touch with the persons or to purchase the goods or livestock mentioned".

Which almost persuades the Browser from refraining to remark that Mr. Paul's mysterious poison is an utterly fanciful concept. He invents a new and impossible poison device by having tarantulas whose bite is never fatal to human beings feed upon a deadly toadstool and become instant death at the hands of the villain. Which is strictly nonsense. But, for the third time, who does care? (The Browser recommends the book highly).

The Browser is all the more regretful over his inability to say even half a dozen kind words about Alan Clark's first novel "Firewall" (Random House, too). . . Basically this is probably a good book, but the author has created such a tortured and eliptical style that he wears out the reader and makes it impossible for him to understand what Mr. Clark is trying to say.

The Browser THINKS this is a story about two men of old New England families. One tries to help the other, who cannot endure the fancied patronage and at the end of the book cracks violently. There's a lot of stuff in the book about motorcycles and motorcycle clubs and hill-climbing contests and it would be very good if it were only five times as intelligible as it actually is.

Mr. Clark himself is the son of a newspaper man who went to Harvard, of a newspaper woman who went to Wellesley. He himself never finished high school and at the age of 24 is a carpenter's helper. He says: "I don't write; I rewrite. For me, writing is just hard work, as tiring as manual labor." And reading his book is nearly as tiring as a twelve hour shift on the end of a shovel.

The Browser suggests "Firewall" as required reading for other ambitious young writers—as a horrible example of how not to put words end to end.

BOOKENDS: Recommended: Those "Living Biographies of the Great Painters" that the Garden City Publishing Co. is putting out. . . Little Brown & Co. report that the first edition of C. S. Forester's "To the Indies" is sold out and the second edition is about exhausted. If it's a hit, the Browser will still continue to insist that Mr. Forester rested on his thornless laurels when he wrote it. . . James Norman Hall and Charles Nordhoff are both in America now, working on their new book "Botany Bay", about the famous Australian penal colony. The outline is finish. Did either of them ever read G. A. Henty's "The Final Reckoning"? When the Browser was about ten years old he thought that story about a lad who was shipped to Botany Bay was just about perfect? . . . John Strachey who was refused admission to this country a couple years ago on the ground that he was a communist, is now in the British flying corps. . . And this is enough for now from Marsh Maslin.

Lee and Pepper Reverse Henry, Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Senator Pepper wants the president to have the power to "suspend all statutes" in preparing for defense and, imagining that he is Patrick Henry, shouts: "If this be dictatorship, make the most of it." It happens to be Patrick Henry in reverse.

Hugh Johnson

Senator Josh Lee wants the president to have power to take the newspapers and radio for "propaganda"—in other words, to suppress truth and tell lies to the American people. Josh says in effect, that we must become Nazis to fight Hitler.

All this was in debate on amendment to the selective service law, to permit the government to condemn and "take over" any existing manufacturing plant when it is unable to arrive at an agreement with the "owner of such plant or facility for its use or operation."

Starving for Publicity

Nobody ought to take Senators Lee and Pepper seriously. They haven't enough on the ball to be listened to or make the news in orderly debate in ordinary times when they wouldn't dare pull any such nonsense as a screaming proposal to destroy democracy and Hitlerize America in a supposed defense of democracy and nationwide rejection of the whole philosophy of the Nazis. These poor boys are under-privileged senators—publicity starved. They don't even get any exercise except hurdling the constitution and jumping at conclusions.

It is niggardly to begrudge them this rare chance to put their names in print by shrieking as war-maddened a lunacy as Chief Crazy Horse in an old-time Siouz sundance.

Important as a Warning

If it is important at all, it is only as a warning to what a sane Senate can be incited to do and suffer in the growing mania—which is centered mostly on Capitol Hill and not in the country. That which is centered mostly on Capitol Hill and not in the country. That feverish atmosphere is a poisonous one in which to plan and legislate our preparation for defense. It has already resulted in a selective service bill that may be later improved but is now as full of holes as a cane chair bottom.

The debate from which these two quick odors rose was hardly more sanitary. It was on the amendment for permitting the commandeering of manufacturing plants. It was rushed in to permit senators up for election who were politically terrified about voting for necessary selective service, to lay the ground for a fake campaign alibi by saying: "I would not vote for conscripting men until I had voted for conscripting wealth. I value a life more highly than a lathe." The latter hypocritical inanity was actually used in the debate.

Correct in Principle

The actual amendment was perfectly correct in principle and will be objected to by no informed person although hastily—and, therefore, nonsensically — worded. The fake or fraud in it is that it is no more a "conscription of wealth" than the usual and frequent peacetime process of condemning a right-of-way for a railroad across a farm is a "conscription of wealth." It authorizes the taking of private property for public use exactly as contemplated by the Constitution.

But also, as specially provided by the constitution, the owner is entitled to "just compensation" and if the statute had not provided for that—as it did—it would be waste-paper. Just another hunk of hypocritical hokum to impose upon the trust and credulity of a long-suffering people. There are few more discreditable episodes in recent legislative history.

Is Sterile

On top of all that, the amendment is perfectly sterile. The government isn't asking people for their plants. It wouldn't know what to do with them if it got them. It is blunderingly seeking favorable contracts for production. It might use the commandeering of a plant as threat to get lower prices, but it would be a bluff. It wouldn't get lower costs for the government to take, pay for, and operate any plant. It would make the final cost of the product much higher.

What this contract situation needs is a statuatory power of priority and compulsory orders—but this panicky, politically terrified Congress doesn't seem to have the time or the courage or something—to study, learn and attack our real problems of defense head on.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Hurja Straw Poll Also Shows Trend Over Nation toward Wendell Willkie

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Speaking of presidential straw polls. We were discussing Dr. George Gallup's polls a few days ago. Emil Hurja is addicted to the straw polling habit, too. He does his straw polling through a national magazine which he publishes.

Emil Hurja

Like Dr. Gallup's service, Emil's periodical indicates, up to date, that our national trend is Willkieward.

However, Doc Gallup's service qualifies its reports with the suggestion that the tendency may be reversed between now and election day. Emil says the same thing. I never met Doc Gallup personally. Emil I have. I see him every day or two.

Emil, drawing his conclusions from his magazine's tally told me recently that he assessed the situation as about 55-45 in Willkie's favor.

"But," he added, "the whole thing doubtless depends upon war developments before Nov. 5. There can be a complete switch by then."

Hurja's an Expert

What attracts one's attention to Emil is the fact that, until compartively lately, he was chief statistican for the Democratic national committee.

He calculated Franklin D. Roosevelt's majorities in advance and he calculated them with uncanny accuracy. He won the reputation of a political wizard. The Democrats swore by his predictions and they scared the opposition.

The chap is a downright marvel, with his knowledge of popular and electoral votes, down to the merest local whistling posts. In casual conversation he can tell, almost county by county, how many ballots each precinct cast the last time and how each precinct casts them. Then he analyzes as to the future and makes his forecasts.

There doesn't seem to me to be much partisanship about him. He's a scientist.

A Ford Peach Traveler

I've been accused of referring tiresomely to the Ford peace trip 25 years ago. Nevertheless, it was a notable event and it has its application to the situation of today.

So I can't refrain from remarking that my first acquaintance with Emil Hurja was made on that voyage.

I was along as a newspaperman. Emil was along as a student.

The expedition's management had an idea that it would be desirable to include in its personnel a delegation of college undergraduates, by way of making pacifists out of them. So there were a dozen or fifteen of them in the party—exceptionally bright boys and girls, chosen because of the intelligence they'd manifested in their exams.

Emil was one of the bunch.

Only a Student

I, who was pretty prominent, didn't know that Emil Hurja was one of the aggregation until a few weeks back, when the fact was mentioned in some newspaper, whereupon, encountering him at the National Press Club in Washington, I charged him with it.

"Oh," he countered, apologetically, "I was only a student."

Now he is one of the foremost political statisticians and analyists of our era.

"Of course," Emil remarks, in his magazine, "this is no time to bet one's shirt on the outcome, since numerous factors still are in a developing stage and since many things can happen to change the outlook after the campaign really grows hot.

"Even so, one thing appears definite—the race is going to be a mighty tight one."

A Poor Diet Candy Sticks

From the Industrial News Review

Few doubt the capacity of America to arm against any aggressor, once her marvelous industrial machine moves into its stride. But it takes far more than a tough military nation to live and prosper permanently as in independent sovereign power in the world of today. The world of today is a world of reality. Natural laws of survival, which during the past decade had been submerged in a mist of theory and reform, have suddenly reappeared like grim headlands on a rocky coast. France was wrecked on one of these headlands, and in the words of Wendell Willkie, was crushed "like an eggshell." She was wrecked because she "had adopted a candy stick theory of government. When a child cries you give him a piece of candy and try to quiet him."

This country has been living on the "candy stick" theory also. A $20,000,000,000 deficit in less than a decade is mute proof of that. Aside from the money that has been spent legitimately to relieve unavoidable distress, billions have inexcusably squandered. The best alibi in creation cannot hide the fact that America has been decaying internally much the same as France did. Under the plea of reform, our politicians have passed out the "candy" to thoughtless millions who naively believe that they have been getting something for nothing. Is there a community that has not bragged of its new airport, parks, swimming pools, palatial schools, public buildings, new streets, and what not, built with Federal funds? If during the past few years there existed a community that did not anxiously reach for "candy sticks" it was indeed a rarity.

Was has moved the day of reckoning forward. No one denies that more huge government deficits are in the offing. It is predicted that the Federal debt will rise at least to $60,000,000,000, and probably more before the end. This debt and the trend back of it will ultimately result in utter destruction of all that America stands for — freedom of opportunity, freedom of speech, freedom of religion—unless we are tough enough morally to face the reality which France failed to face. Armaments alone won't save us. Democracy collapses when it becomes soft internally and when its people forget how to work. "Candy sticks" are not a strengthening diet.

Profit Keeps Wheels Turning

From the Industrial News Review

A large life insurance company recently informed its policyholders that it had become necessary to reduce dividends. Reason: the return on the company's investments had been so sharply cut in late years that it was impossible to longer maintain the old dividend rates. And taxes were higher.

That is true of hundreds of companies. And it is an excellent example of how unfavorable economic conditions, legislation and taxation which reduce earnings, hit the whole country, directly and indirectly. Profit is what keeps the wheels turning—profit is what makes jobs and opportunities and good times. We all live from profits, laborer and capitalist alike. Reduce or destroy profit and you reduce the income of a life insurance policyholder, as well as every other investor or worker. Purchasing power goes down—men find it harder to get jobs—business goes hungry for orders. When you take the profit out of business, you take wages out of the average man's pockets at the same time.

Time and Speeches

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The president has declined to meet Mr. Willkie in joint debate on the ground that he cannot spare time from handling of the international situation to engage in political campaigning.

But now comes from Washington the statement that the White House, following a conference between Mr. Wallace and Mr. Roosevelt, announced that the president will make two "non-political" speeches on Labor day. He will dedicate a dam at Chattanooga, and open the Great Smoky National Park at Newfoundland Gap.

If the president is pressed for time, it would seem to this newspaper that the discussion of vital public issues in a campaign such as this is more important than dedicating dams or parks. It might be more enlightening and satisfactory all the way 'round were Mr. Roosevelt to make the political speeches himself and let Mr. Ickes do the dedicating.

Guzzling Contests Among Children Not Edifying

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

These cataclysmic days are blasting hard at many of the good old stereotypes of publicity and supposed sure-shot reader interest. For instance, here's the old stand-by of the grinning pickininny working his way through a mountainous slab of watermelon, in an eating contest.

The Children's Aid Society, at its annual watermelon carnival, refused to let the photographers stage the usual picture. Both dietetic reasons and requirements for seemly behavior were given in explanation of this startling break with precedure.

Second Thoughts Needed

Our idea when we saw the story was that the Children's Aid Society was altogether too fussy about a small matter. What's the harm in a happy pickaninny stepping into a big watermelon? But these are days when people are given to second thoughts and this secondary lubrication, if that's what it is, raised some misgiving in our minds about circusing up children's doings and staging eating contests and the like. The kids have a world of their own, with their own idioms, their own codes of chivalry, and their own unerring sense of when its tops or marble season. Aren't we intruding? A guzzling contest is quite apt to be merely a press agent's idea.

Are No Bargain

When you think it over, these freckles tournaments in which children participate are not particularly edifying. A warm sentiment for the carefree, freckled lad we will always have, and a dash of freckles is all right in its place but doctors know a lot more about them than they used to, and a bad case means certain glandular or skin aberrations which are no bargain for anybody—except perhaps for the promoter of the tournament. Nor is the fat boy so funny as he used to be. We can remember when the "Our Gang" comedies were first out, the comedy motif was apt to be obesity or freckles or a squirrel-headed boy wolfing watermelon or pie. In deference to another hallowed tradition, the gang was usually barefooted, and there wasn't much sense in theat either. One thing that has set us apart from any other countries has been the fact that here all God's chillun got shoes.

Gounded on Science

The Children's Aid Society has given great care and much research to the matter of properly balanced meals for children. Their work has been grounded on modern scientific knowledge of diet which is all but revolutionary. It is understandable that they would not wish to dramatize or advertise an eating contest of any kind, even if it does, incidentally, publicize the society.

The popular appeal of the one-suspendered, barefoot freckled boy, with his mutt dog looking on as the boy wolfs pie or watemelon, is obviously explained by the eternal and universal desire of adults to escape to an untroubled youth. Just about all of us have an infantile hangover which makes us want to duck responsibility and get back to the security and safety which our parents both provided and symbolized.

Horrendous Dosing Era

Those were golden days, but they also were the days of more different kinds of gripes and colics, or more malnutrition and bad teeth than children of this generation will ever know about. Back in the days when Huckleberry Finn stencil of boyhood was taking shape, salad was hay and a square meal was a big slab of pork, fried potatoes, hot cakes and a big slug of pie. It was eaten with gusto and we were proud of our appetites. But that also was the era of the most horrendous dosing for stomach ailments in the history of man.

Back at the peak of the patent medicine era a Pittsburgh vendor wired to a New York house, "what is your price for 5,000 gross white pills? I have a name." Just a backward glance at this era will give one a sympathetic idea of what the doctors and dietitians and the Children's Aid Society are driving at.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Drifting or Being Shoved into War

WITHOUT DOUBT much if not most of the opposition to peace-time conscription has been based on the fear that this nation is being shoved into war, or at least drifting into it. That, of course, ought to favor conscription, but the opposition, aside from the apprehension of possible dictatorial government, rests upon the theory that delay in conscription would have a restraining influence on war possibility.

Various views obtain as to that possibility. Wise ones in Washington think that we will get into the European conflict if Great Britain can hang on until spring. Other wise ones think that if Britain holds out that long we will not get into it, but that if it does not we will.

The Hearst newspapers are fearful of the present national policy. William Randolph Hearst, their head, expresses the conviction that President Roosevelt will do something before election day that will, as the American, of Somerset, Pa., says, "catapult the United States into the maelstrom to insure his re-election."

Commenting on that, the Connellsville, Pa., Courier correctly says it is not easy for even a bitter partisan to conceive of a president willfully doing anything that would plunge his people into war. It should be his first interest, of course, to keep them out. Hearst sees, however, in the president's demand for immediate passage of the conscription bill, his conferences with Premier Mackenzie King, of Canada, setting up an unauthorized defense act and the recent firebrand speech of Ambassador Bullitt in Philadelphia, the workings of the Roosevelt mind.

"It must be evident to the average citizen," comments the Connellsville Courier, "that linking the United States and Canada is alignment with the British Empire; that leasing of air, and possibly naval, bases in the British possessions this side of the Atlantic from Newfoundland into the Caribbean, laudable as a defensive measure, is another step toward that end.

"The president cannot, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, be censured for taking all necessary steps for protection of the country against invasion, but there is a widespread suspicion that his haste is directly connected with his desire to perpetuate himself and the New Deal by victory at the polls. There is a feeling that events will have so crowded in upon the nation by November that opposition to 'mid-stream' change of leadership will become the slogan of the interests opposed to the election of Wendell Willkie."

It cannot be taken for granted that neither Roosevelt nor any other president would deliberately plunge this nation into war. Rather must one credit him with the belief that his defense moves and related actions are grounded on the belief that such things serve rather as a preventative. Nevertheless, there is reason to believe that the prsiednt has of late been overwhelmed by unreasonable fears of the actual situation and that he is being stampeded by them into a panic and is doing many things that a more level headed executive would not do, or at least would do in an entirely different and more logical manner.

Heavy Artillery Takes A Back Seat

HEAVY ARTILLERY has suffered a decline in this war as a determining factor of comparative strength between combatants which curiously corresponds with the increase in the use of the plane as a decisive implement.

Recently when the Germans brought into play their big guns between Boulogne and Calais, shelling the English coast, the act gave a picturesque touch to the contest, but none of the military experts believes that it gave Germany an advantage to compensate for the heavy cost of such fire.

In the first place, accuracy of fire from big guns is very difficult unless planes are on hand to correct ranges for the gunners. That is a service which the German flyers find the air too hot to give the German artillery.

In the second place, continued bombardment by big guns is expensive performance. The barrels of big guns, such as the Germans used on the French coast, have to be relined when they have fired around 100 shots. Relining takes not only money but time. The damage caused in enemy territory in modern war isn't worth it.

No one arm of military service will win the war, but the new airplane will come nearer doing it than the old ordnance, once so powerful that Napoleon was led to declare that God was on the side with the heavier artillery.

One Year of War Fails To Bring Its Climax

AS the war concludes its first year of action which has encompassed most of Europe, its climax is still to be reached. The climax is the attempted conquest of England. The preliminary stage has been set for that attempt. It is unlikely Hitler could avoid it if he would.

Initial air raids on England which the Nazis called exploratory, were followed by a perceptible pause. Now Hitler's sky devils are again raining death and destruction on English towns. Royal Air Force bombers are retaliating effectively in Germany and in German-occupied territory.

Two developments at least may be covering up operations. One of them is the Berlin announcement that all of Britain is to be blockaded by air and sea. This may be to fix in the minds of the British that the war will continue largely in the air with no land invasion attempted. Another development is the placing in sporadic action of batteries of Big Berthas along the Channel coast. That can be for the purpose of directing British resistance to that quarter while the real blow slants to another point.

Some indications are reported that the forces of invasion are concentrating behind the Frisian islands for a thrust at the lowlands of the southeastern coast.

Whatever the Hitler blueprints call for, the British await the crisis with a confidence born of the fact that they have held their own in the air, that their sea supremacy is unbroken and that they are ready in arm and in heart for any blow at the seat of their empire.

School Safety Campaigns Reduce Child Accidents

PROOF that the educational safety campaigns conducted regularly in the schools of this country are beginning to pay wholesome dividends is contained in the National Safety Council's 1940 yearbook, Accident Facts. Just off the press, this enlightening document reports that the elementary and high school students of the nation established another safety mark in 1939.

These youngsters between the ages of 5 and 14 set the lowest estimated accidental death total in the records, which extend back to 1913. The accidental death total for this group was 6,250 — a decrease of five per cent under 1938.

Since 1922, when a definite national program of safety education was inaugurated, accidental deaths to children between 5 to 14 years of age have decreased thirty-seven per cent. This is substantially more than twice the reduction shown by any other age group. Among persons 15 to 24 years of age the 1939 rate was only one per cent less than 1922. The 25-44 age group showed a decrease of fourteen per cent, but the 45-64 age group's accidental death rate for 1939 was up six per cent above the 1922 figure.

Since all age groups have been exposed to these national safety campaigns, it would look from the facts as if the youngsters of this country are a lot more adept than their elders at learning how to stay safe and avoid accidents. Or perhaps there's some truth in that old adage that an old dog cannot be taught new tricks.

The WPA dumped 300 new pick-handles on the dump at Los Angeles and told the caretaker to burn them and not tell anybody. He didn't—until he had sold 'em all.

Italian soldiers, we read, now are studying German. One wonders if this is to avoid the possibility of misunderstanding their next orders.

The Browser's Findings

Marshall Maslin

What the Browser likes about Elliot Paul's adventure-detective stories is their frank frivolousness. The man is gay, unconscionable, shrewd, ingenious—and naughty. They make very little sense indeed, but who cares as long as an author has the ability to write exciting trash and doesn't pretend to be writing anything else?

Elliot Paul's hero is a manly fellow, as those who have read "The Mysterious Mickey Finn" and "Hugger-Mugger in the Louvre" already know. His women are feminine, most of his men are huge, lusty and tremendous tosspots, and when he kills off his villains he slaughters them by the dozen—except those he is saving for his next book. So if you have read the stout gentleman's previous books, you know what to expect in "Mayhem in B-Flat" (Random House), a title which has nothing at all to do with the book (but, again, who cares?)

The Browser wouldn't dream of bothering you with the plot of this thriller. It suffices to say that it wanders helterskelter all over the gay France that is now temporarily gone—and that it is rich in street battles, naval engagements and love encounters. The author himself says: "all characters, poisons, hotels, or other commercial establishments or goods in the story are imaginary and readers are cautioned against trying to get in touch with the persons or to purchase the goods or livestock mentioned".

Which almost persuades the Browser from refraining to remark that Mr. Paul's mysterious poison is an utterly fanciful concept. He invents a new and impossible poison device by having tarantulas whose bite is never fatal to human beings feed upon a deadly toadstool and become instant death at the hands of the villain. Which is strictly nonsense. But, for the third time, who does care? (The Browser recommends the book highly).

The Browser is all the more regretful over his inability to say even half a dozen kind words about Alan Clark's first novel "Firewall" (Random House, too). . . Basically this is probably a good book, but the author has created such a tortured and elliptical style that he wears out the reader and makes it impossible for him to understand what Mr. Clark is trying to say.

The Browser THINKS this is a story about two men of old New England families. One tries to help the other, who cannot endure the fancied patronage and at the end of the book cracks violently. There's a lot of stuff in the book about motorcycles and motorcycle clubs and hill-climbing contests and it would be very good if it were only five times as intelligible as it actually is.

Mr. Clark himself is the son of a newspaper man who went to Harvard, of a newspaper woman who went to Wellesley. He himself never finished high school and at the age of 24 is a carpenter's helper. He says: "I don't write; I rewrite. For me, writing is just hard work, as tiring as manual labor." And reading his book is nearly as tiring as a twelve hour shift on the end of a shovel.

The Browser suggests "Firewall" as required reading for other ambitious young writers—as a horrible example of how not to put words end to end.

BOOKENDS: Recommended: Those "Living Biographies of the Great Painters" that the Garden City Publishing Co. is putting out. . . Little Brown & Co. report that the first edition of C. S. Forester's "To the Indies" is sold out and the second edition is about exhausted. If it's a hit, the Browser will still continue to insist that Mr. Forester rested on his thornless laurels when he wrote it. . . James Norman Hall and Charles Nordhoff are both in America now, working on their new book "Botany Bay", about the famous Australian penal colony. The outline is finish. Did either of them ever read G. A. Henty's "The Final Reckoning"? When the Browser was about ten years old he thought that story about a lad who was shipped to Botany Bay was just about perfect? . . . John Strachey who was refused admission to this country a couple years ago on the ground that he was a communist, is now in the British flying corps. . . And this is enough for now from Marsh Maslin. Lee and Pepper Reverse Henry, Johnson Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Senator Pepper wants the president to have the power to "suspend all statutes" in preparing for defense and, imagining that he is Patrick Henry, shouts: "If this be dictatorship, make the most of it." It happens to be Patrick Henry in reverse.

"But," he added, "the whole thing doubtless depends upon war developments before Nov. 5. There can be a complete switch by then."

Hurja's an Expert

What attracts one's attention to Emil is the fact that, until compartively lately, he was chief statistican for the Democratic national committee.

He calculated Franklin D. Roosevelt's majorities in advance and he calculated them with uncanny accuracy. He won the reputation of a political wizard. The Democrats swore by his predictions and they scared the opposition.

The chap is a downright marvel, with his knowledge of popular and electoral votes, down to the merest local whistling posts. In casual conversation he can tell, almost county by county, how many ballots each precinct cast the last time and how each precinct casts them. Then he analyzes as to the future and makes his forecasts.

There doesn't seem to me to be much partisanship about him. He's a scientist.

A Ford Peach Traveler

I've been accused of referring tiresomely to the Ford peace trip 25 years ago. Nevertheless, it was a notable event and it has its application to the situation of today.

So I can't refrain from remarking that my first acquaintance with Emil Hurja was made on that voyage.

I was along as a newspaperman. Emil was along as a student.

The expedition's management had an idea that it would be desirable to include in its personnel a delegation of college undergraduates, by way of making pacifists out of them. So there were a dozen or fifteen of them in the party—exceptionally bright boys and girls, chosen because of the intelligence they'd manifested in their exams.

Emil was one of the bunch.

Only a Student

I, who was pretty prominent, didn't know that Emil Hurja was one of the aggregation until a few weeks back, when the fact was mentioned in some newspaper, whereupon, encountering him at the National Press Club in Washington, I charged him with it.

"Oh," he countered, apologetically, "I was only a student."

Now he is one of the foremost political statisticians and analysts of our era.

"Of course," Emil remarks, in his magazine, "this is no time to bet one's shirt on the outcome, since numerous factors still are in a developing stage and since many things can happen to change the outlook after the campaign really grows hot.

"Even so, one thing appears definite—the race is going to be a mighty tight one."

A Poor Diet Candy Sticks

From the Industrial News Review

Few doubt the capacity of America to arm against any aggressor, once her marvelous industrial machine moves into its stride. But it takes far more than a tough military nation to live and prosper permanently as in independent sovereign power in the world of today. The world of today is a world of reality. Natural laws of survival, which during the past decade had been submerged in a mist of theory and reform, have suddenly reappeared like grim headlands on a rocky coast. France was wrecked on one of these headlands, and in the words of Wendell Willkie, was crushed "like an eggshell." She was wrecked because she "had adopted a candy stick theory of government. When a child cries you give him a piece of candy and try to quiet him."

This country has been living on the "candy stick" theory also. A $20,000,000,000 deficit in less than a decade is mute proof of that. Aside from the money that has been spent legitimately to relieve unavoidable distress, billions have inexcusably squandered. The best alibi in creation cannot hide the fact that America has been decaying internally much the same as France did. Under the plea of reform, our politicians have passed out the "candy" to thoughtless millions who naively believe that they have been getting something for nothing. Is there a community that has not bragged of its new airport, parks, swimming pools, palatial schools, public buildings, new streets, and what not, built with Federal funds? If during the past few years there existed a community that did not anxiously reach for "candy sticks" it was indeed a rarity.

Was has moved the day of reckoning forward. No one denies that more huge government deficits are in the offing. It is predicted that the Federal debt will rise at least to $60,000,000,000, and probably more before the end. This debt and the trend back of it will ultimately result in utter destruction of all that America stands for — freedom of opportunity, freedom of speech, freedom of religion—unless we are tough enough morally to face the reality which France failed to face. Armaments alone won't save us. Democracy collapses when it becomes soft internally and when its people forget how to work. "Candy sticks" are not a strengthening diet.

Profit Keeps Wheels Turning

From the Industrial News Review

A large life insurance company recently informed its policyholders that it had become necessary to reduce dividends. Reason: the return on the company's investments had been so sharply cut in late years that it was impossible to longer maintain the old dividend rates. And taxes were higher.

That is true of hundreds of companies. And it is an excellent example of how unfavorable economic conditions, legislation and taxation which reduce earnings, hit the whole country, directly and indirectly. Profit is what keeps the wheels turning—profit is what makes jobs and opportunities and good times. We all live from profits, laborer and capitalist alike. Reduce or destroy profit and you reduce the income of a life insurance policyholder, as well as every other investor or worker. Purchasing power goes down—men find it harder to get jobs—business goes hungry for orders. When you take the profit out of business, you take wages out of the average man's pockets at the same time.

Time and Speeches

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The president has declined to meet Mr. Willkie in joint debate on the ground that he cannot spare time from handling of the international situation to engage in political campaigning.

But now comes from Washington the statement that the White House, following a conference between Mr. Wallace and Mr. Roosevelt, announced that the president will make two "non-political" speeches on Labor day. He will dedicate a dam at Chattanooga, and open the Great Smoky National Park at Newfoundland Gap.

If the president is pressed for time, it would seem to this newspaper that the discussion of vital public issues in a campaign such as this is more important than dedicating dams or parks. It might be more enlightening and satisfactory all the way 'round were Mr. Roosevelt to make the political speeches himself and let Mr. Ickes do the dedicating.

Guzzling Contests Among Children Not Edifying

Edwin C. Hill

These cataclysmic days are blasting hard at many of the good old stereotypes of publicity and supposed sure-shot reader interest. For instance, here's the old stand-by of the grinning pickininny working his way through a mountainous slab of watermelon, in an eating contest.

The Children's Aid Society, at its annual watermelon carnival, refused to let the photographers stage the usual picture. Both dietetic reasons and requirements for seemly behavior were given in explanation of this startling break with precedure.

Second Thoughts Needed

Our idea when we saw the story was that the Children's Aid Society was altogether too fussy about a small matter. What's the harm in a happy pickaninny stepping into a big watermelon? But these are days when people are given to second thoughts and this secondary lubrication, if that's what it is, raised some misgiving in our minds about circusing up children's doings and staging eating contests and the like. The kids have a world of their own, with their own idioms, their own codes of chivalry, and their own unerring sense of when its tops or marble season. Aren't we intruding? A guzzling contest is quite apt to be merely a press agent's idea.

Are No Bargain

When you think it over, these freckles tournaments in which children participate are not particularly edifying. A warm sentiment for the carefree, freckled lad we will always have, and a dash of freckles is all right in its place, but doctors know a lot more about them than they used to, and a bad case means certain glandular or skin aberrations which are no bargain for anybody—except perhaps for the promoter of the tournament. Nor is the fat boy so funny as he used to be. We can remember when the "Our Gang" comedies were first out, the comedy motif was apt to be obesity or freckles or a squirrel-headed boy wolfing watermelon or pie. In deference to another hallowed tradition, the gang was usually barefooted, and there wasn't much sense in theat either. One thing that has set us apart from any other countries has been the fact that here all God's chillun got shoes.

Gounded on Science

The Children's Aid Society has given great care and much research to the matter of properly balanced meals for children. Their work has been grounded on modern scientific knowledge of diet which is all but revolutionary. It is understandable that they would not wish to dramatize or advertise an eating contest of any kind, even if it does, incidentally, publicize the society.

The popular appeal of the one-suspendered, barefoot freckled boy, with his mutt dog looking on as the boy wolfs pie or watemelon, is obviously explained by the eternal and universal desire of adults to escape to an untroubled youth. Just about all of us have an infantile hangover which makes us want to duck responsibility and get back to the security and safety which our parents both provided and symbolized.

Horrendous Dosing Era

Those were golden days, but they also were the days of more different kinds of gripes and colics, or more malnutrition and bad teeth than children of this generation will ever know about. Back in the days when Huckleberry Finn stencil of boyhood was taking shape, salad was hay and a square meal was a big slab of pork, fried potatoes, hot cakes and a big slug of pie. It was eaten with gusto and we were proud of our appetites. But that also was the era of the most horrendous dosing for stomach ailments in the history of man.

Back at the peak of the patent medicine era a Pittsburgh vendor wired to a New York house, "what is your price for 5,000 gross white pills? I have a name." Just a backward glance at this era will give one a sympathetic idea of what the doctors and dietitians and the Children's Aid Society are driving at.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Life Story of Dr. Harvey Cushing Will Be Dramatized on the Radio

Career of Noted Brain Surgeon Will Be CBS Feature

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—A young surgeon cut into the base of a patient's brain forty years ago. He was going into tissues never before explored by a surgeon's scalpel.

Today Dr. Harvey Cushing's pioneering has transformed brain surgery from a hazardous emergency procedure to an exact art. During the World war, Dr. Cushing performed as many as eight brain operations a day behind the Allied lines. His "brain registry" is a monumental tabulation of brain operations to which surgeons turn for reference.

CBS brings his life story to the air on the Chicago University Human Adventure series Saturday night at 7:30.

They're off at Saratoga! Tommy Daley, NBC's turf expert, will describe the sixtieth running of the Saratoga Cup, closing day feature of the meet, at 4:15 over WEAF-NBC. Bryan Field will be at the mike for MBS.

Reply By Seldes

George Seldes, chairman of the New York Chapter of the League of American writers, speaking on CBS at 9:15 p. m., will reply to a recent speech called "Our Faith Column" by Rep. Thomas (R-NJ). Seldes will speak on "The Real Fifth Column."

Sen. Walsh (D-Mass) is scheduled to appear on a broadcast from the Jewish War Veterans banquet in Boston on MBS at 7:30.

Maj. Al Williams' famous "blackout dive," which climaxed his experiments in inverted flight, is to be dramatized at 7 p. m. on CBS' Sky Blazers. Then the current series blacks out entirely.

Sunday Specials

Charlie's coming back! The pine-headed lad will return to the air with Edgar Bergen Sunday night at 7. Young Mortimer Snerd will be there, too, and a guest artist—Deanna Durbin. The program is on WEAF-NBC.

Columbia winds up its coverage of the P.G.A. tournament at Hershey, Pa., with summaries of the morning round by Ted Husing at 10:15 a. m. and stroke-by-stroke description of the afternoon round, beginning at 1 p. m.

Another sports item: MBS brings the National Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament from Wichita, Kas., at 10:15. The broadcasts, by Vic Rugh, will continue nightly until the end of the series.

Starts Tenth Year

CBS's Church of the Air opens its tenth year. Two sermons have been given every Sunday—a total of 936. This week the speakers will be the Rev. Earl Frederick Adams of the Northern Baptist Convention, and a Catholic, Father Daniel A. Lord of St. Louis. The time is 9 a. m. for Mr. Adams, noon for Father Lord. Should America Aid Britain? That's the topic on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. on WEAF-NBC.

Wilfred Pelletier, Metropolitan Opera conductor, and his wife, Mezzo-soprano Rose Bampton, will be guest artists on the MBS Symphonic Hour at 9 p. m.

Life Story of Dr. Harvey Cushing Will Be Dramatized on the Radio

Career of Noted Brain Surgeon Will Be CBS Feature

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—A young surgeon cut into the base of a patient's brain forty years ago. He was going into tissues never before explored by a surgeon's scalpel.

Today Dr. Harvey Cushing's pioneering has transformed brain surgery from a hazardous emergency procedure to an exact art. During the World war, Dr. Cushing performed as many as eight brain operations a day behind the Allied lines. His "brain registry" is a monumental tabulation of brain operations to which surgeons turn for reference.

CBS brings his life story to the air on the Chicago University Human Adventure series Saturday night at 7:30.

They're off at Saratoga! Tommy Daley, NBC's turf expert, will describe the sixtieth running of the Saratoga Cup, closing day feature of the meet, at 4:15 over WEAF-NBC. Bryan Field will be at the mike for MBS.

Reply By Seldes

George Seldes, chairman of the New York Chapter of the League of American writers, speaking on CBS at 9:15 p. m., will reply to a recent speech called "Our Faith Column" by Rep. Thomas (R-NJ). Seldes will speak on "The Real Fifth Column."

Sen. Walsh (D-Mass) is scheduled to appear on a broadcast from the Jewish War Veterans banquet in Boston on MBS at 7:30.

Maj. Al Williams' famous "blackout dive," which climaxed his experiments in inverted flight, is to be dramatized at 7 p. m. on CBS' Sky Blazers. Then the current series blacks out entirely.

Sunday Specials

Charlie's coming back! The pinheaded lad will return to the air with Edgar Bergen Sunday night at 7. Young Mortimer Snerd will be there, too, and a guest artist—Deanna Durbin. The program is on WEAF-NBC.

Columbia winds up its coverage of the P.G.A. tournament at Hershey, Pa., with summaries of the morning round by Ted Husing at 10:15 a. m. and stroke-by-stroke description of the afternoon round, beginning at 1 p. m.

Another sports item: MBS brings the National Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament from Wichita, Kas., at 10:15. The broadcasts, by Vic Rugh, will continue nightly until the end of the series.

Starts Tenth Year

CBS's Church of the Air opens its tenth year. Two sermons have been given every Sunday—a total of 936. This week the speakers will be the Rev. Earl Frederick Adams of the Northern Baptist Convention, and a Catholic, Father Daniel A. Lord of St. Louis. The time is 9 a. m. for Mr. Adams, noon for Father Lord.

Should America Aid Britain? That's the topic on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. on WEAF-NBC.

Wilfred Pelletier, Metropolitan Opera conductor, and his wife, Mezzo-soprano Rose Bampton, will be guest artists on the MBS Symphonic Hour at 9 p. m.

The legs of the harvest spider or daddy-long-legs contain more than fifty joints each.

The Care and Feeding Of Autumn Brides

She allows herself plenty of time for leisurely dressing.

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

If you're to be an August or September bride, you'll want to make arrangements for as cool a wedding as possible.

Start with yourself. After all, you'll be the center of attraction.

If you will buy your wedding dress a half-size larger than you usually wear, you can have it fitted to leave plenty of room, particularly over the bust, under arms, and at the back.

It's also a good idea to select shoes a half-size larger than usual.

You should plan to take about two hours to dress. That will give you time for a bath, in lukewarm water, a deodrant and removal of superfluous hair, a rub-down with cologne or alcohol, half an hour of rest, and a leisurely makeup.

Use as little makeup as possible, and rub ice over face and neck to set the powder. That's what movie stars do before they go in front of the bright lights.

Eat lightly if you really want to be cool. Drink a lot of cold fruit juice for breakfast.

That's all for you. But you can help the men in the wedding party by urging them to wear white flannels and blue coats or in white linens instead of formal dress.

You can choose decorations for home and church that will look cool.

That means leaving out the flowers with pungent odors. It means using much greenery.

The food at the wedding reception ought to be light and simple, the drinks very cold.

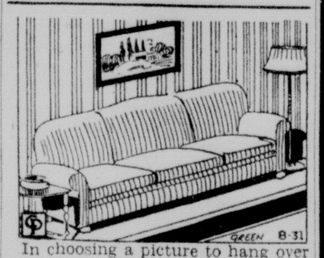

And, kindest of all, plan your guest list so that there'll be no overcrowding, either for the wedding or whatever parties go with it.

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

by RUPERT GRAYSON

READ THIS FIRST:

Returning from a nerve-wracking assignment, Gun Cotton, famous Scotland Yard agent, goes to Sleichtner's Egyptian Ray-Baths, where he becomes interested in a mysterious stranger named Pullinger, who is wearing a tattooed Egyptian symbol. Pullinger is met by a beautiful flame-haired girl at the swimming pool in the baths. Gun calls another agent, Coffin Prescott, to trail Pullinger.

CHAPTER EIGHT

AS PRESCOTT mingled with the passersby outside, Gun noticed, not without admiration, how he seemed to completely lose his identity among other people. An entirely inconspicuous figure, nobody even would glance at him twice, or remember afterward that they had seen him. An exceedingly useful trait on the part of a shadower.

Gun drank his coffee and stood up. The waiter bustled over and glanced at "Coffin" Prescott's untouched cup.

"Your frien' not thirsty after all, eh?"

"That," Gun replied, "is not a matter that I have known you long enough to discuss."

He paid and went unhurriedly out. Outside he stood for a moment looking about him. Prescott and the man he was trailing had, of course, disappeared.

Gun hailed a crawling taxi, and drove to Whitehall. But there he found that X was engaged for about three-quarters of an hour and could see no one. Gun left a message that he would be back, and went out again to kill time.

Meanwhile Prescott was following his quarry, and in the beginning found it a decidedly tiring business. But he was used to it.

They passed along the street, Pullinger on one side of it, and Prescott on the other. On the corner Pullinger paused and glanced at his wrist watch. Then he turned up the street that ran at right angles, and now his pace was a mere saunter.

"Got an appointment, and he's a bit early for it!" was Prescott's inward comment.

He crossed the road and got on the same side as his quarry, increasing the distance between them by pausing to examine a shop window.

But as the man in front approached a corner, Prescott quickened his pace. He had known men to saunter around corners and then disappear completely, before this. Never lose sight of your man.

At the corner Pullinger paused and turned around to look back along the street. Prescott turned into the porch of a shop, which was also the entrance to a block of offices. He did this naturally rather than suddenly, so that Pullinger failed to notice him. Shadowing is much a matter of timing.

It looked rather as though the fellow suspected he might be followed, and was making sure he wasn't, Prescott decided.

While with one eye he read the names of the various firms in residence, displayed in neat white-on-black on the walls, Prescott watched with the other the reflection of the man he was following in an opposite shop window. When the new non-reflector windows came into general use the task of the shadower would become a great deal more difficult.

The attitude of Pullinger was that of a careless lounger, killing time. But Prescott sensed that he was raking the street keenly with his eyes, and making a mental note of all the people he saw there. Then he turned again and, still unhurriedly, disappeared around the corner.

Prescott emerged from his shelter and, walking briskly, went straight across the street into which the other had turned. As he went he kept his eyes on it, and saw that Pullinger did not turn around and, consequently, could not have seen him. But, on the other side, he seemed to change his mind, and turned down the same street, but on the opposite pavement to the man he was following.

Prescott shifted his position to try and hear their conversation.

He saw Pullinger look at his watch again, and then quicken his pace. He turned into Shaftesbury avenue, with Prescott still tight on his trail.

"Making for Soho, for a dollar!" said Prescott to himself, as they crossed St. Giles' Circus.

He was right. His quarry led him along New Compton street, then left, right and left. Prescott still was on the opposite side of the street, but as Pullinger drew level with a public house he also crossed the road, paused to look at the name of the pub, and then recrossed and entered the saloon.

Prescott crossed also, and strolled past the doors of the saloon. As they opened to let someone out he saw that the place was fairly crowded inside. So, without further hesitation, he entered. Inside he behaved in his usual unobtrusive manner, for which he had a flair. It is doubtful if a single person in that bar noticed him at all—even the barmaid who served him with his bitter would have forgotten him a moment after.

But he observed much.

Pullinger was talking to a girl. An interesting looking girl, Prescott decided. She had flame-colored hair, and the creamy complexion that so often goes with that color, when it is natural, frank blue eyes, and a generous mouth. Good figure, and held herself well. Costume, good and probably expensive. Good legs in fine silk stockings, and well shod.

Prescott, who liked to classify people into "types," and mentally label them and tuck them away in pigeonholes, found some difficulty in placing her exactly.

She certainly was not the type of girl one usually encountered in Soho pubs—in fact, she was hardly the sort of girl you would look for in a pub anywhere—although, of course, all sorts used them today. . . . She might be an actress, or a mannequin. . . . Didn't look like the ordinary type of business girl—a secretary, or anything of that sort. And yet she might be one.

Unobtrusively Prescott shifted his position, and edged around a little behind them as they stood by the bar, to try and hear their conversation.

"Well," he heard the girl say, "we'd better go along and see to it, right away!"

An educated, cultured voice, with very clear diction. Prescott inclined more strongly to the actress theory, and felt all the better for being able to do so.

The two finished their drinks, and moved toward the outer door. Prescott's quick eyes had already noted an inner one, which led to the lavatory, via a passage into which other bars opened.

He made for this, and finally emerged from the door of the private bar adjoining, just as a taxi drew up to the curb where the two were standing, not a couple of yards away from him.

He heard the man give the driver his directions:

"Brixton road. Stop at the corner of Angel road!" He spoke almost perfect English, but so carefully as to suggest the foreigner.

"Angel road?" queried the driver. "That's by the White Horse, isn't it?"

The man hesitated and looked inquiringly at the girl. Evidently he didn't know the geography of the Brixton road, but he anticipated that she would.

"Just past it," she said briefly.

They got in and drove off, without a glance in the direction of Prescott. A bit of luck, hearing their destination like that—saved a lot of trouble.

Prescott walked quickly along the street, surveying the empty taxis he encountered with a critical eye. At last he saw the one he wanted, and hailed it.

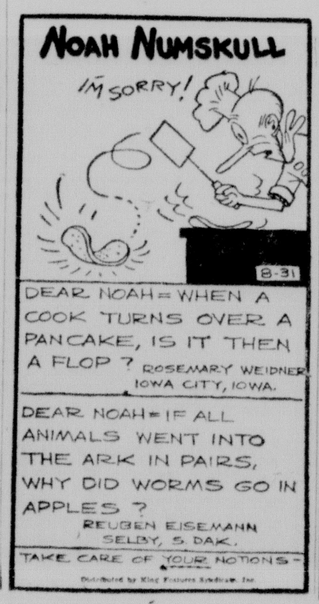

"Corner of Angel road, Brixton road," he directed. "And double fare if you break all records!"

"Sez you!" said the driver, who was a youngish man. "You just watch me splinter 'em!"

They started off, and Prescott noticed the maneuvers of his driver with approval. He had both speed and cunning, and saved a couple of hundred yards or more by the judicious use of side streets. Half-way along the Kennington road, Prescott, who had a memory for such things, saw the number of a taxi ahead of them; he leaned well back in his own as it passed it.

Then he lit another cigaret.

"The Authority on Authorities"

HONORS ON THE SIDE

CLEAR observers of results know that high honor cards usually are more valuable if they are in side suits than if they are in the suit you bid. They afford you much better defensive values if you wind up playing against the opponents' contract, as they are less likely to be ruffed. They build a better situation for No Trump play if your partner bids the suit that plugs up your weak spot. And they lure many a later double from the defender at your left if your partner supports your suit, the opponent expecting his honors to sit over yours, whereas those held by your partner are over him.

West had visions of a sure set, with his spade A and his doubly guarded trump Q, with his diamond K and club Q thrown in for good measure. South made his contract, however, like rolling off a log. The double told him to finese against West for the heart Q and not to finesse the diamonds. West led the spade A, then the 9, and the show was over. Three hearts settled that job. Then four spades furnished discards of three diamonds, and a trump was left in dummy to ruff the last club.

At another table of the same duplicate game, both North and South refused to bid hearts without a trick and a half at the top of the suit. So South opened with 1-Diamond. North bid 1-Spade, South 2-No Trumps, North 3-No Trumps, then the Blackwood convention was used as by the heart bidders and the side wound up at 6-No Trumps. West also doubled that, so the hearts again were played right, but the contract was impossible because at No Trumps you can't ruff a club. The diamond finesse had to be tried. It failed and the contract was down.

French Government Due for a Shakeup, Reports Indicate

LE VERRIERE, Franco-Swiss Frontier, Aug. 30 (AP)—Pierre Laval, vice premier of France, returned to Vichy tonight from Paris, where he has reported to have conferred with German authorities concerning the possibility of a shakeup of his government, currently headed by Phillippe Petain.

Among others, Laval talked with the German ambassador to France, Otto von Abetz.

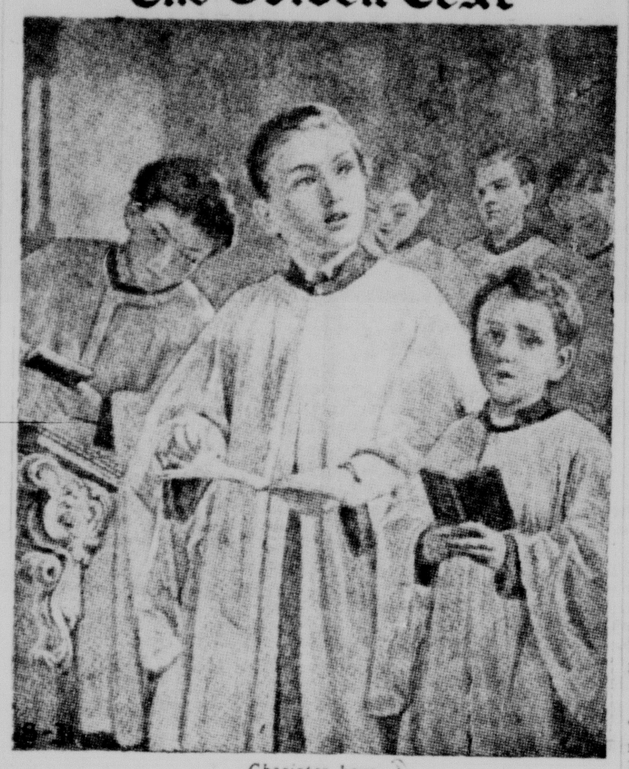

There have been persistent reports that a reorganization of the French press, "coordinating" it with the Axis press, was under consideration.

Whether Laval succeeded or failed in his mission could not be learned. It was said, however, that the Vichy government had "temporarily" abandoned its plans to move to Paris or Versailles.

The Germans, it was understood, made it plain to Laval that they wanted to be left alone in Paris until the end of the war with Britain.

It takes about 150 days to make the best grades of leather in a modern tannery.

"Bless Jehovah, O my soul; and forget not all His benefits."—Ps. 103:2.

Praising God for His Blessings

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 1 is Psalms 103, 107, the Golden Text being Psalm 103:2—"Bless Jehovah, O my soul; and forget not all His benefits.")

THE LESSON today begins with a song of praise to the Almighty for His goodness to the psalmist.

"Bless Jehovah, O my soul;
And all that is within me, bless
His holy name.
Bless Jehovah, O my soul,
And forget not all His benefits."

Suppose we forget all the terrible things that are going on in the world for the moment, and concentrate on the things we have to be thankful for—for which we can "bless Jehovah."

I sometimes think there are very, very few people who are as happy as they might be, because so few think seriously of their blessings. How many of you stop and consider your homes, your father, mother, sisters and brothers and other relatives who make life happy for you? Just having a home with parents who love you, who provide you with a comfortable place to stay, with food and clothes and playthings, should make one feel happy inside. Of course things go wrong occasionally in such homes, just as they do in the world which is such a beautiful place. There are storms and disasters. But how few they are compared with the happy times. If we really seriously take time to think of these things, joy wells up within us, and naturally we say with the psalmist, "Bless the Lord, Oh my soul, and forget not all His benefits."

How beautiful is the world we live in, and especially our own dear country, with its fertile fields, its orchards and vineyards, its hills and valleys, mountains and streams; its sunshine—even its storms! What comforts we have; what diversity of products—natural and manufactured.

Count Your Blessings

Next time you are unhappy for any reason, count up all these blessings, and your depression will roll away like mist before the sun.

The next lines of the psalm are:

"Who forgiveth all thine iniquities;
Who healeth all thy diseases;
Who redeemeth thy life from destruction:
Who crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercies;
Who satisfieth thy desire with good things,
So that thy youth is renewed like the eagle.
He hath not dealt with us after our sins,
Now rewardeth us after our iniquities."

Each of us is aware of our faults. We wrestle with them and try to do what is right, only to fall again and again into sin, or at least into wrong doing. But our lives are not made ceaselessly unhappy because of these things. We "are not dealt with after our sins," but are forgiven again and again, and loved, and our good points appreciated. "He remembereth that we are dust," that He created us so that it is easy for us to do wrong, and so we are forgiven.

The psalmist then speaks of the shortness of man's life. "As for man, his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more. But the loving kindness of Jehovah is from everlasting to everlasting."

Surely with such love and forbearance we should not only strive to what is right, but should give thanks unto Jehovah all our days.

The 107th psalm continues the theme of God's goodness, with the refrain occurring throughout at intervals:

"Oh give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth forever."

It refers to the banishment of the Jewish people from their own land and their captivity, and of their return from exile. It points out how Jehovah made that exile bearable, and at last showed them the way home. They wandered in the desert, the psalmist says, but "He led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation."

"He satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness."

"They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters:

"These see the works of the Lord, and His wonders in the deep."

He speaks of the storms that come to the sailors and that when it seems they will be lost, they cry to the Lord, and "He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still."

"Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men."

Praising God for His Blessings — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalms 103, 107.

"Oh give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth forever."

The redeemed wandered in the wilderness, hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them

Then they cried unto the Lord, and he delivered them out of their distresses.

The Golden Text

Chorister boys

"Bless Jehovah, O my soul; and forget not all His benefits."—Ps. 103:2.

Praising God for His Blessings

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 8-31

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 1 is Psalms 103, 107, the Golden Text being Psalm 103:2—"Bless Jehovah, O my soul; and forget not all His benefits.")

THE LESSON today begins with a song of praise to the Almighty for His goodness to the psalmist.

"Bless Jehovah, O my soul;
And all that is within me, bless
His holy name.
Bless Jehovah, O my soul,
And forget not all His benefits."

Suppose we forget all the terrible things that are going on in the world for the moment, and concentrate on the things we have to be thankful for—for which we can "bless Jehovah."

I sometimes think there are very, very few people who are as happy as they might be, because so few think seriously of their blessings. How many of you stop and consider your homes, your father, mother, sisters and brothers and other relatives who make life happy for you? Just having a home with parents who love you, who provide you with a comfortable place to stay, with food and clothes and playthings, should make one feel happy inside. Of course things go wrong occasionally in such homes, just as they do in the world which is such a beautiful place. There are storms and disasters. But how few they are compared with the happy times. If we really seriously take time to think of these things, joy wells up within us, and naturally we say with the psalmist, "Bless the Lord, Oh my soul, and forget not all His benefits."

How beautiful is the world we live in, and especially our own dear country, with its fertile fields, its orchards and vineyards, its hills and valleys, mountains and streams; its sunshine—even its storms! What comforts we have; what diversity of products—natural and manufactured.

Count Your Blessings

Next time you are unhappy for any reason, count up all these blessings, and your depression will roll away like mist before the sun.

The next lines of the psalm are:

"Who forgiveth all thine iniquities;
Who healeth all thy diseases;
Who redeemeth thy life from destruction:
Who crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercies;
Who satisfieth thy desire with good things,
So that thy youth is renewed like the eagle.
He hath not dealt with us after our sins,
Now rewardeth us after our iniquities."

Each of us is aware of our faults. We wrestle with them and try to do what is right, only to fall again and again into sin, or at least into wrong doing. But our lives are not made ceaselessly unhappy because of these things. We "are not dealt with after our sins," but are forgiven again and again, and loved, and our good points appreciated. "He remembereth that we are dust," that He created us so that it is easy for us to do wrong, and so we are forgiven.

The psalmist then speaks of the shortness of man's life. "As for man, his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more. But the loving kindness of Jehovah is from everlasting to everlasting."

Surely with such love and forbearance we should not only strive to what is right, but should give thanks unto Jehovah all our days.

The 107th psalm continues the theme of God's goodness, with the refrain occurring throughout at intervals:

"Oh give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth forever."

It refers to the banishment of the Jewish people from their own land and their captivity, and of their return from exile. It points out how Jehovah made that exile bearable, and at last showed them the way home. They wandered in the desert, the psalmist says, but "He led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation."

"He satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness."

"They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters:

"These see the works of the Lord, and His wonders in the deep."

He speaks of the storms that come to the sailors and that when it seems they will be lost, they cry to the Lord, and "He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still."

"Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men."

Praising God for His Blessings — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalms 103, 107.

"Oh give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth forever."

The redeemed wandered in the wilderness, hungry and thirsty, their fainted in them

Then they cried unto the Lord, and delivered them out of their distresses.

He led them forth that they might go to a city of habitation. (GOLDEN TEXT—Ps. 103:2)

French Government Due for a Shakeup, Reports Indicate

LE VERRIERE, Franco-Swiss Frontier, Aug. 30 (AP)—Pierre Laval, vice premier of France, returned to Vichy tonight from Paris, where he has reported to have conferred with German authorities concerning the possibility of a shakeup of his government, currently headed by Phillippe Petain.

Among others, Laval talked with the German ambassador to France Otto von Abetz.

There have been persistent reports that a reorganization of the French press, "coordinating" it with the Axis press, was under consideration.

Whether Laval succeeded or failed in his mission could not be learned. It was said, however, that the Vichy government had "temporarily" abandoned its plans to move to Paris or Versailles.

The Germans, it was understood, made it plain to Laval that they wanted to be left alone in Paris until the end of the war with Britain.

A New Way To Make Stuffed Sweet Potatoes

Treat the family to this super-special potato dish. Cook three large sweet potatoes (six servings) in boiling salted water until tender. Remove the skins, cut potatoes in half lengthwise and then hollow out the center of each half until it will hold three tablespoons stuffing.

While the potatoes are boiling, prepare the stuffing by combining the following: one cup cranberries or cranberry sauce, one-half cup chopped nut meats, one-fourth cup raisins and one-fourth cup sugar. Fill each hollow piece of potato with stuffing. Then place the stuffed halves in a greased pan (filled side up) and spread with a mixture of three tablespoons butter, one-third cup brown sugar and one teaspoon salt. Finally, bake in moderate oven for twenty-five minutes or until slightly browned.

Help Your Sandwiches to Full Flavor

A cinnamon stick as a stirer adds a delicate flavor to iced coffee. Use frozen cubes of coffee instead of plain water so that the iced coffee won't be weakened.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

What a relief to know that refreshments are ready, long before guests are due!

Take sandwiches, for instance. Here is a refreshment fare that really likes to wait. Flavors often are better when the sandwiches are prepared in advance, providing, of course, that care is taken to prevent their drying out or getting soggy.

Sandwich-making is no bugaboo when it is divided into three parts.

First, fix the fillings a day ahead, cover with waxed paper, and store in the refrigerator. (Cold fillings spread easier, too.)

Second, make the sandwiches hours before needed. Arrange slices of bread in pairs on a flat surface. Spread each slice with butter softened with a fork and beaten until creamy. (This butter coating helps prevent sogginess.) Cover one slice of each pair with the filling, spread evenly. Arrange the slices sandwich fashion, discard the crusts if you like, and shape as desired.

Third, arrange neat piles of three or four candwiches and wrap each pile in waxed paper. Fit the piles into a box lined with waxed paper and a damp cloth. Cover with several thicknesses of waxed paper and a lid. Keep in the refrigerator until serving time. Sandwiches stored like this will keep fresh for a day.

Now get set for sandwich filling news. This CREOLE SHRIMP will set off the simplest function. The sandwiches are perfect to serve with hot or cold beverages, for fancy tea or just a snack. Mix together 2-3 cup chopped shrimp, 1-3 cup finely chopped celery, 1 tablespoon each of minced parsley, pimento and sweet pickles. Add 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice, a speck of salt and just enough salad dressing to moisten. Chill as suggested. You have enough filling for about 18 sandwiches.

Cheese is an important part of many sandwich fillings so CHEESE SUPREME is top noth for spreading on graham or nut bread slices. Mix 2-3 cup white cream cheese with 2 tablespoons each of chopped ripe olives, green olives and green peppers (chopped fine). Add 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup chopped nuts and 2 tablespoons cream. Makes about 20 sandwiches. Try some of this cheese blend on freshly cut white bread. Discard the crusts and role up each slice. When it is time to serve, lightly spread each end with a little butter and dip in chopped cress. (The butter makes the cress stick.)

If you want a filling that men crave, serve LIVER SAVORY sandwiches. Mix together 1-2 cup liverwurst (mashed well with a fork until soft), 1-4 teaspoon each of finely chopped onions, parsley and dill pickles. Add a speck of salt, celery salt and paprika, and 2 tablespoons of cream. Use for filling graham, white or rye bread slices, and watch the men go for them to accompany hot or chilled beverages or cocktails.

* * *

Whether you are a devotee of drip coffee apparatus, a stickler for percolators or a firm believer in the traditional coffee pot, successful brewing is just as dependent on exact measurments and correct timing as the most temperamental cake project. Because coffee making is an every day affair, it's easy to fall into slap dash methods that spoil the flavor.

ICED COFFOLATE

4 tablespoons decaffeinated coffee, regular or drip grind
6 cloves
1 four-inch piece stick cinnamon
Dash of salt
4 cups milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg, well beaten

Add coffee, cloves, cinnamon, and salt to milk, and heat in double boiler until milk is scalded. Strain and return to double boiler. Add chocolate and heat until chocolate is melted. Beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Combine sugar and flour; add gradually to chocolate mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly; then continue cooking 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool slightly; pour over egg and blend. Chill. Pour over cracked ice in tall glasses. Top with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 1 quart coffolate.

Try this new flavor fling to baked or roasted chicken: When the fowl is half done, very lightly sprinkle it with powdered nutmeg—go light, remember—then baste twice. You can also add just a suggestion of basil, if you like. Subtle seasonings make a hit.

Placing Refrigerators

When placing a refrigerator in a kitchen select a spot farthest from sunny windows, the stove and radiators. Placing the refrigerator is important for efficient working. Also see that it stands level on the floor for economical manipulation.

Cutting the Cake

Angel food and sponge cakes should be cut carefully since they are so delicate in texture. Use a regular cake breaker or try two forks for separating it into serving pieces.

Retain the Green

Cook green vegetables such as kale, spinach or cabbage a short time in an uncovered utensil. This helps them to retain their color. Do not add soda to the water; it would destroy some of the valuable vitamins.

For Peeling Oranges

Soak oranges in cold water an hour, or scald them, for an extra fancy peeling job.

Frozen Meat

Meat will keep indefinitely if it is frozen, but as soon as it thaws it should be cooked.

Keeping Ham Flat

If bacon or thin slices of ham curl up at the edges during cooking, make tiny cuts in the edges of the meat about two inches apart. This helps keep the meat flat.

Good Melba Toast

Biscuit dough rolled thin makes excellent melba toast.

Serve Day After

Angel food cake is better when served the day after baking.

Help Your Sandwiches to Full Flavor

A cinnamon stick as a stirer adds a delicate flavor to iced coffee. Use frozen cubes of coffee instead of plain water so that the iced coffee won't be weakened.

What a relief to know that refreshments are ready, long before guests are due!

Take sandwiches, for instance. Here is a refreshment fare that really likes to wait. Flavors often are better when the sandwiches are prepared in advance, providing, of course, that care is taken to prevent their drying out or getting soggy.

Sandwich-making is no bugaboo when it is divided into three parts.

First, fix the fillings a day ahead, cover with waxed paper, and store in the refrigerator. (Cold fillings spread easier, too.)

Second, make the sandwiches hours before needed. Arrange slices of bread in pairs on a flat surface. Spread each slice with butter softened with a fork and beaten until creamy. (This butter coating helps prevent sogginess.) Cover one slice of each pair with the filling, spread evenly. Arrange the slices sandwich fashion, discard the crusts if you like, and shape as desired.

Third, arrange neat piles of three or four candwiches and wrap each pile in waxed paper. Fit the piles into a box lined with waxed paper and a damp cloth. Cover with several thicknesses of waxed paper and a lid. Keep in the refrigerator until serving time. Sandwiches stored like this will keep fresh for a day.

Now get set for sandwich filling news. This CREOLE SHRIMP will set off the simplest function. The sandwiches are perfect to serve with hot or cold beverages, for fancy tea or just a snack. Mix together 2-3 cup chopped shrimp, 1-3 cup finely chopped celery, 1 tablespoon each of minced parsley, pimento and sweet pickles. Add 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice, a speck of salt and just enough salad dressing to moisten. Chill as suggested. You have enough filling for about 18 sandwiches.

Cheese is an important part of many sandwich fillings so CHEESE SUPREME is top noth for spreading on graham or nut bread slices. Mix 2-3 cup white cream cheese with 2 tablespoons each of chopped ripe olives, green olives and green peppers (chopped fine). Add 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup chopped nuts and 2 tablespoons cream. Makes about 20 sandwiches. Try some of this cheese blend on freshly cut white bread. Discard the crusts and role up each slice. When it is time to serve, lightly spread each end with a little butter and dip in chopped cress. (The butter makes the cress stick.)

If you want a filling that men crave, serve LIVER SAVORY sandwiches. Mix together 1-2 cup liverwurst (mashed well with a fork until soft), 1-4 teaspoon each of finely chopped onions, parsley and dill pickles. Add a speck of salt, celery salt and paprika and 2 tablespoons of cream. Use for filling graham, white or rye bread slices, and watch the men go for them to accompany hot or chilled beverages or cocktails.

Whether you are a devotee of drip coffee apparatus, a stickler for percolators or a firm believer in the traditional coffee pot, successful brewing is just as dependent on exact measurments and correct timing as the most temperamental cake project. Because coffee making is an every day affair, it's easy to fall into slap dash methods that spoil the flavor.

ICED COFFOLATE

4 tablespoons decaffeinated coffee, regular or drip grind
6 cloves
1 four-inch piece stick cinnamon
Dash of salt
4 cups milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg, well beaten

Add coffee, cloves, cinnamon, and salt to milk and heat in double boiler until milk is scalded. Strain and return to double boiler. Add chocolate and heat until chocolate is melted. Beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Combine sugar and flour; add gradually to chocolate mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly; then continue cooking 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool slightly; pour over egg and blend. Chill. Pour over cracked ice in tall glasses. Top with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 1 quart coffolate.

Roast Chicken Tang

Try this new flavor fling to baked or roasted chicken: When the fowl is half done, very lightly sprinkle it with powdered nutmeg—go light, remember—then baste twice. You can also add just a suggestion of basil, if you like. Subtle seasonings make a hit.

Placing Refrigerators

When placing a refrigerator in a kitchen select a spot farthest from sunny windows, the stove and radiators. Placing the refrigerator is important for efficient working. Also see that it stands level on the floor for economical manipulation.

Cutting the Cake

Angel food and sponge cakes should be cut carefully since they are so delicate in texture. Use a regular cake breaker or try two forks for separating it into serving pieces.

Keeping Ham Flat

If bacon or thin slices of ham curl up at the edges during cooking, make tiny cuts in the edges of the meat about two inches apart. This helps keep the meat flat.

Good Melba Toast

Biscuit dough rolled thin makes excellent melba toast.

Serve Day After

Angel food cake is better when served the day after baking.

Retain the Green

Cook green vegetables such as kale, spinach or cabbage a short time in an uncovered utensil. This helps them to retain their color. Do not add soda to the water; it would destroy some of the valuable vitamins.

For Peeling Oranges

Soak oranges in cold water an hour, or scald them, for an extra fancy peeling job.

Frozen Meat

Meat will keep indefinitely if it is frozen, but as soon as it thaws it should be cooked.

Roosevelt Spurns Willkie's Request For Draft Views

Says President Does Not Comment on Matters Pending in Congress

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Dodging what he termed an attempt to get him into a political discussion, President Roosevelt rejected today Wendell L. Willkie's demand that he state his position on government commandeering of private plants for defense purposes.

The Republican presidential nominee, in a statement at Rushville, Ind., yesterday visualized a "potential dictatorship" in an amendment to the conscription bill which under certain conditions would enable the government to take over industrial establishments and make defense materials. He called upon the president to say whether he was for or against the amendment.

Unable to Comment

But when reporters sought an answer at the president's press conference today, Mr. Roosevelt cited what he said was a 1933 rule that the chief executive does not comment on matters pending in Congress.

"Sometimes he does," a reporter remarked, but there the discussion ended.

The president also declined to say whether he concurred in Secretary Wallace's assertion that the Republican party was the party of appeasement in the United States today.

The speech, in which Wallace accepted the Democratic vice-presidential nomination at Des Moines, Ia., last night, Mr. Roosevelt said, speaks excellently for itself.

Wallace made the appeasement statement in that address, in which he said also that replacement of the chief executive would "cause Hitler to rejoice."

Congratulates Wallace

In a congratulatory telegram, Mr. Roosevelt told his running mate that "you have made a glorious start" in a "grand speech splendidly given before an appreciative nation."

On another political subject, Mr. Roosevelt commented that the architectural fees on defense works received by the Atlanta firm of Lawrence W. Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, had produced a lot of smoke which had caught his attention.

Whereas Senator Bridges (R-NH) demanded that the president ask for Robert's resignation, Mr. Roosevelt said that if there were any proper fire behind the smoke, he hoped Congress would go right after it.

American Missionary And Wife Killed by Air Raiders in Sudan

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Aug. 30 — The United States legation informed the state department tonight that Dr. Robert Grieve, 28, an American medical missionary, and his wife, about 25, had been killed Aug. 23 in an Italian air raid on their outpost in an isolated region of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, near the Ethiopian frontier.

Information received at Khartoum from Dr. T. A. Lambie, field director of the Sudan interior mission, with which the couple was associated, confirmed British reports of their death, the legation said.

Besides Dr. and Mrs. Grieve, the Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Oglesby, also Americans of Brooklyn, N. Y., were reported by Dr. Lambie to have been gravely injured. (In Washington, the state department said Dr. and Mrs. Grieve were from Spokane, Wash.)

High British sources said the Italians dropped thirty bombs and the governor-general of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, a British official, charged the Italians with "deliberate" machine-gunning of the remote station.

An army communique later gave substantially the same report, declaring that Dr. and Mrs. Grieve were killed "by machine-gun fire as they ran out waving American flags."

Gateway Chatter

Harrison Mills of Peoria, Ill., chairman of music in international relations, have been endorsed by the board. The suggested slogan is "Inspire loyalty through music."

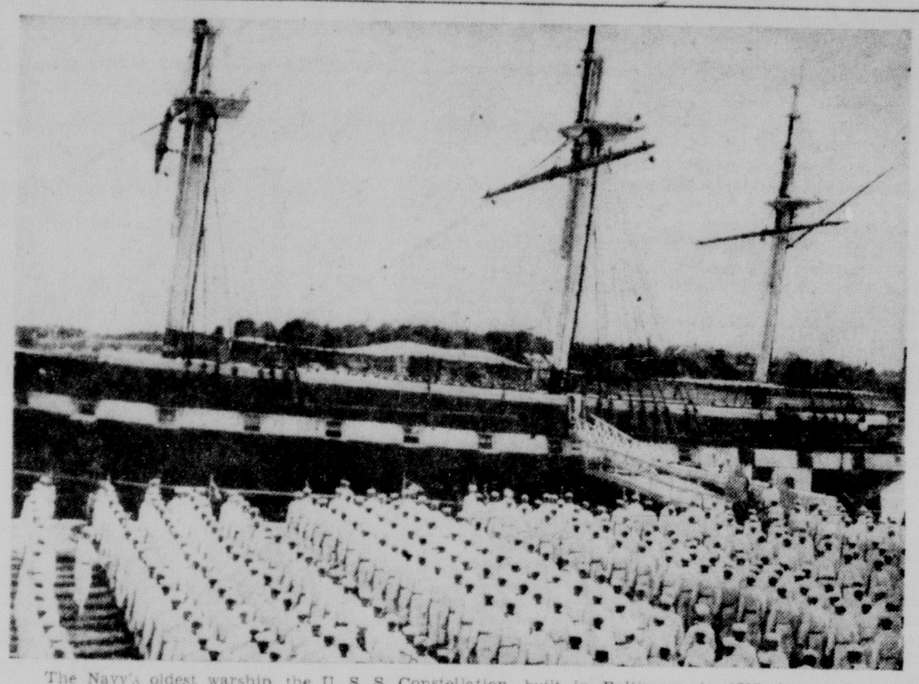

The idea of Mrs. Mills lays empshsis upon folk music rather than religious music. The first project calls for an international folk festival this winter in each of the 5,000 or more clubs affiliated with the federation.

Stress would be laid upon the history of the countries in which the folk music originated, the reasons underlying the migration of these various nationalities to America, and the advantages of American citizenship.

Coupled with this will be the recitation of a "Loyalty Collect" and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" and other American songs.

OLDEST U. S. WARSHIP AGAIN SERVES ITS COUNTRY

The Navy's oldest warship, the U. S. S. Constellation, built in Baltimore, in 1797, is put back into service as a training ship. She is shown being recommissioned at Newport, R. I., by 2,700 men and officers. One year older than the famed Constitution, the Constellation saw action against the Barbary pirates and in the War of 1812.

Willkie Woman Leader Won't Leave Her Baby Boy for Any Campaign

Ruth de Young Kohler

By HERBERT D. WILHOIT

AP Feature Service

CHICAGO — When Wendell L. Willkie appointed Ruth de Young Kohler as a member of his Republican presidential campaign advisory board, he selected "a Republican both by inheritance and conviction."

He also picked a young woman of energy, friendliness, and extensive newspaper experience who says: "I am not a professional politician and I hope to give to this work the viewpoint of the independent woman."

In private life she is Mrs. Herbert V. Kohler, wife of the president of the Kohler Company, big plumbing manufactory in the model community of Kohler, Wis. Currently she is doing a weekly column for the Chicago Tribune under the caption "Women World Wide," and a weekly broadcast on that broad topic (WGN-Mutual).

Her Son Comes First

Most important of all her activities is the job of being the mother of 17-month-old Herbert Vollrath Kohler, Jr.

"I'll not neglect my little fellow for any of these things," she says. "He's too important."

The Willkie appointment "simply dropped in my lap," as she puts it. "I went to the Republican convention in connection with my work but I didn't know Mr. Willkie had chosen me until Herbert read it in the paper in Kohler. We were flabbergasted."

Mrs. Kohler was born 33 years ago in Harvey, Ill., suburb of Chicago.

Had To Fight Freckles

"Since marriage (in 1937) my life has been devoted to my family and my home in Kohler village," she says. I came back to newspaper and radio work this June only because Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, has considerable powers of persuasion."

Mrs. Kohler is tall, smartly attired, has black hair, blue-gray eyes, and a tendency to freckle. She says she wants to be known as "Ruth de Young Kohler" for professional by-line or radio purposes but otherwise as "Mrs. Herbert V. Kohler."

Advisory Council Of Game Commission To Have Dinner

The Garrett County Advisory Council to the Maryland Inland Fish and Game Commission, will be host to the advisory councils of Washington and Allegany counties Wednesday, September 11, at a dinner meeting at McComas Beach on Deep Creek lake.

It will mark the second of a series of joint meetings in which the advisory councils of three counties hold discussions on conservation matters common to all in Western Maryland.

The Allegany county advisory council was host to Washington and Garrett representatives last June at a banquet and meeting here.

H. C. Riggs is chairman of the Garrett county council.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Harassed Rumania's crown council met in a secret, shotgun-guarded conference last night and early today (Saturday) on grave new problems in the wake of Germany's forced establishment of an embittered Balkan peace at Rumanian expense.

In Germany's bigger game in the west, the Nazi air force meanwhile maintained throughout the dark hours its regular sleep-disturbing nighthawk patrol over London and the British isles. Bombs were dropped on London's outskirts and the raiders were heard in thirteen towns in England and one in Wales.

Except to say that their subject was exceptional and important, the Rumanian council was mum as it ended its long session with King Carol at 2:30 a. m. (8:30 p. m., EST Friday).

Only yesterday Rumania unhappily agreed to cede half the province of Transylvania to Hungary, accepting in turn a German guarantee of Rumania's shrunken frontiers—a guarantee that will place Nazi troops opposite the restless Soviet army on an almost unbroken front of 1,000 miles from the Baltic to the Black sea.

Rumania lost her newest slice of land in an axis-dictated conference at Vienna where German foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and his Italian colleague, Count Galeazzo Ciano, laid down the "—or else" ultimatum.

Lose Large Territory

Confronted with the threat of immediate attack by Germany, Hungary, and possibly Bulgaria and Russia, King Carol's government capitulated, losing more than 17,000 additional square miles of territory. Previously she had agreed to cede southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, and Russia, by ultimatum, had gained Besesarabia and northern Bucovina.

Germany's guarantee, authorized Nazi sources said, was "directed against nobody in particular and against everybody in general."

They added that Germany and Italy took Moscow at its word when the Russians said their aspirations had been satisfied wtih the acquisition of Bessarabia from Rumania, part of the former Czarist regiment, and northern Bucovina in addition.

Meanwhile, Russia's Red army and navy began secret maneuvers, the fleet engaging in "mock" battle in an undisclosed area and the army maneuvering in "the western special military district," which was taken to mean opposite Rumania.

Greece Calls Reserves

Greece, wary of Italians intentions in neighboring Albania, called up nearly all of her reserve officers last night. Authoritative quarters said Greece would closely follow today's (Sat.) session of the Albanian parliament for some sign of Italy's intention toward her after weeks of a bitter anti-Greek press campaign.

Over 700 German planes hammered from noon to long after midnight at London's defenses, dropping bombs on the capital's outskirts and sending its millions into shelters during four general alarms.

The fourth alarm came after dark. British fighter planes having successfully fended off the invaders in the three previous attacks. The British claimed they shot down sixty-two Nazi planes and lost nineteen. The German high command said eighty British planes were destroyed to their twenty-one.

Earliler Nazi planes had pounded British industrial centers in the northwest, the southeast and South Wales, giving Manchester, great textile city, its worst hammering of the war.

Civilian casualties were not entirely disclosed but the toll steadily mounted as homes were smashed, ports, factories and airdromes raided.

Nazi spokesmen said great fires were left in the wake of their attacks on Liverpool and Birkenhead and the Midlands.

Petition Is Filed Asking Levy on Stock

Matthew J. Mullaney and William C. Walsh, attorneys, docketed a petition yesterday in circuit court, for a writ of execution to be levied upon shares of capital stock in the Cumberland Milling Company, in the name of C. D. Willard. The suit is to satisfy in whole or part a judgment of the Liberty Trust Company against Willard for $3,636 obtained by default, August 8, 1930, when Willard, Mary G. Weber and the Liberty Trust Company were acting as co-administrators of the estate of Harry E. Weber.

Pays $50 Yearly To Occupy First Of Novel Homes

Georgia Farmer Moves into Residence Built by Government

THOMASVILLE Ga. Aug. 30 (AP)—Officially speaking it was moving day for Farmer E. Vernon Ellis because today he started paying $50 per year rental on the first modern dwelling built in the nation in a program aimed at removing rural "slums."

Things were spic and span about the house that replaced the ramshackle place in which the Ellises lived up to a few weeks ago.

(They actually moved a couple of days ago). There was an uncommon amount of bustle with several city people about to make speeches.

Farmer Ellis and his wife swelled with pardonable pride and their two-year-old son toddled delightedly to hear Langdon W. Post special assistant to National Administrator Nathan Strause of the United States housing authority assert:

"From this day on this Georgia family will realize what the American way of living really means . . ."

The Ellises had only to look about them to see what housing man Post's "American Way" mean to them:

Three bedrooms, living room, kitchen, grouped around an air circulation hall; open fire place, a front porch and screened back porch. That was much better than those old sagging floors in the three-room house. In the rear, a bored well, cemented over and pump operated, replaced an old open well. The house is electrically wired.

The unit, constructed under supervision of a local contractor, cost about $1,300. It is the first of 250 planned in Thomas county by the County Housing Authority, working with the state housing board and the United States Housing Authority.

Under Housing Authority provisions, the renter-to-be deeds an acre to the county authority. Upon completion of the unit, some substandard farm dwelling in the county must be dismantled. The low annual rent is achieved through agreement of the farmer-renters to do ordinary repairs.

The county authority has a $357,000 loan contract with USHA for its project. Several projects in other states are being arranged by USHA.

Local Officers Will Attend Water Meeting

William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and light, Charles J. Bruce, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water company, Andrew Bender, city water superintendent, and Simon K. Carroll, city plumber, will attend the fourth annual short course for operators of water and sewage treatment plants Thursday, September 5, at the University of Maryland, College park.

The local officials plan to attend the 9 a. m. session at which Charles V. Joyce, division engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, will demonstrate the use of pipe and leak-locating instruments.

The course, scheduled September 3, 4 and 5, is held annually under the joint auspices of the university, the State Department of Health, the Maryland-Delaware Water and Sewerage Association, and the "Four States Section" of the American Water Works Association.

Good Fellowship Club To Have Corn Roast

Members of the Good Fellowship club, an organization of about 500 members, will hold their annual corn and wiener roast at Meadowbrook, near the country club on the Baltimore pike Sunday afternoon starting at 2 o'clock.

Personal Items

Miss Alice Williams, of Gephart Drive, student nurse at Union Memorial hospital, Baltimore, has returned home.

Mrs. L. B. Mouse, 9 Boone street, and Mrs. Karl D. Bachman, and son John, 426 North Centre street, are visiting in Louisville, Ky., and Nashville, Tenn.

Frostburg Man Is Fined $5 and Costs; Carder Is Acquitted

Tony Rogano, of Frostburg, was fined $5 and costs yesterday in trial magistrates court for speeding on the McMullen highway at Bowling Green. He was arrested by State Trooper A. H. Bikle.

Another driver, Albert R. White, of Cumberland, was given a suspended sentence on a charge of operating a truck, owned by M. W. Twigg, 217 Dexter Place, on an expired chauffeur's license. He had to pay seventy-five cents court costs.

State Trooper John H. Doud apprehended White on Route 36, near Barton.

In police court, Eugene Carder, 717½ Virginia avenue, and Francis C. Davis, of Central YMCA, were acquitted on charges of careless driving. Officers Condon and Kelley arrested them following a crash at Central and Baltimore avenues, Wednesday night.

Bridge Specifications Are Discussed Here By County Commissioners

The county commissioners yesterday instructed James Stevenson, clerk to the board, to write the West Virginia State roads commission in regards to plans and specifications for the proposed bridge over the Potomac river connecting Luke, Maryland, and Piedmont, W. Va.

The plans and specifications are to be sent to the Maryland state roads commission for their approval and then the work will be done under supervision of West Virginia engineers with Maryland sharing half the cost.

The bridge in question was condemned as unsafe some time ago and closed to traffic.

Alien Registrations Reach Sixty-eight

Nine additional aliens have registered at the post office, Frank L. M. Storm, in charge of the work reported last night. Ten others took home forms to fill out.

A total of sixty-eight have registered since the job began last Tuesday.

Italians still lead in number of registerants with seventeen and the English have sixteen. The next largest group is the Austrian, with seven.

Yesterday a man born in Pennsylvania came into the office to register explaining that he had once been a member of the Colorado national guard serving several years and was discharged due to a disability. He later went to Canada and his disability was overlooked evidently because he was accepted into the army. This act caused him to forfeit his U. S. citizenship and now he has to register as an alien in the country of his birth.

Six Births Are Reported Here

Mr. and Mrs. James Ellis Batdorf, 516 Cumberland street, announce the birth of a daughter last night at Memorial hospital.

A daughter was born yesterday morning at Allegany hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sweitzer, 630 Columbia avenue.

A son was born yesterday morning at Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Greenwald, of Friendsville.

Licensed To Wed

SKATER RETURNS

Among those arriving in New York on the American Legion from Petsamo, Finland, is Dorothy Olson of Boston, who returned to America with the three other members of her roller skating group. They were in Denmark when the United States consul ordered them home.

Mrs. Hazel Owens Files Cross Bill Of Complaint

Several days ago Charles Roy Owens, 112 Pennsylvania avenue, filed a bill of complaint against his wife, Hazel Owens, whose parental address is 648 Baker street, asking for a divorce alleging that he had been inveigled into the ceremony, two months ago in Winchester, Va., under duress and false representations.

He asked the court to inquire into the validity of the marriage with a view to having it declared null and void on the grounds that his consent to it had not been freely given. He is represented by Morgan C. Harris, attorney.

Yesterday in circuit court a cross bill of complaint was filed by his wife through Noel Speir Cook, attorney, denying the use of duress in leading him into matrimony and cited a history of their courtship to prove that the marriage was entered into by herself only after long and frequent solicitation.

An order was signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster directing Owens to pay attorney's fees and $20 monthly alimony pending settlement of the suit.

Cresaptown Delegation Seeks New Road

A delegation from Cresaptown, with Thomas Williams as spokesman, appeared before the county commissioners yesterday to ask that a road be constructed from the vicinity of Warner's store to the Cresaptown school.

The proposed road would run parellel to the McMullen highway and would remove the dangers confronting several hundred children who now use the main highway travelling to and from school, they said.

The commissioners told the group that the county engineer would look into the matter.

Roosevelt Spurns Willkie's Request For Draft Views

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Dodging what he termed an attempt to get him into a political discussion, President Roosevelt rejected today Wendell L. Willkie's demand that he state his position on government commandeering of private plants for defense purposes.

The Republican presidential nominee, in a statement at Rushville, Ind., yesterday, visualized a "potential dictatorship" in an amendment to the conscription bill which under certain conditions would enable the government to take over industrial establishments and make defense materials. He called upon the president to say whether he was for or against the amendment.

Unable to Comment

But when reporters sought an answer at the president's press conference today, Mr. Roosevelt cited what he said was a 1933 rule that the chief executive does not comment on matters pending in Congress.

"Sometimes he does," a reporter remarked, but there the discussion ended.

The president also declined to say whether he concurred in Secretary Wallace's assertion that the Republican party was the party of appeasement in the United States today.

The speech, in which Wallace accepted the Democratic vice-presidential nomination at Des Moines, Ia., last night, Mr. Roosevelt said, speaks excellently for itself.

Wallace made the appeasement statement in that address, in which he said also that replacement of the chief executive would "cause Hitler to rejoice."

Congratulates Wallace

In a congratulatory telegram, Mr. Roosevelt told his running mate that "you have made a glorious start" in a "grand speech splendidly given before an appreciative nation."

On another political subject, Mr. Roosevelt commented that the architectural fees on defense works received by the Atlanta firm of Lawrence W. Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, had produced a lot of smoke which had caught his attention.

Whereas Senator Bridges (R-NH) demanded that the president ask for Robert's resignation, Mr. Roosevelt said that if there were any proper fire behind the smoke, he hoped Congress would go right after it.

American Missionary And Wife Killed by Air Raiders in Sudan

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Aug. 30 — The United States legation informed the state department tonight that Dr. Robert Grieve, 28, an American medical missionary, and his wife, about 25, had been killed Aug. 23 in an Italian air raid on their outpost in an isolated region of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, near the Ethiopian frontier.

Information received at Khartoum from Dr. T. A. Lambie, field director of the Sudan interior mission, with which the couple was associated, confirmed British reports of their death, the legation said.

Besides Dr. and Mrs. Grieve, the Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Oglesby, also Americans of Brooklyn, N. Y., were reported by Dr. Lambie to have been gravely injured. (In Washington, the state department said Dr. and Mrs. Grieve were from Spokane, Wash.)

High British sources said the Italians dropped thirty bombs and the governor-general of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, a British official, charged the Italians with "deliberate" machine-gunning of the remote station.

An army communique later gave substantially the same report, declaring that Dr. and Mrs. Grieve were killed "by machine-gun fire as they ran out waving American flags."

Gateway Chatter

Harrison Mills of Peoria, Ill., chairman of music in international relations, have been endorsed by the board. The suggested slogan is "Inspire loyalty through music."

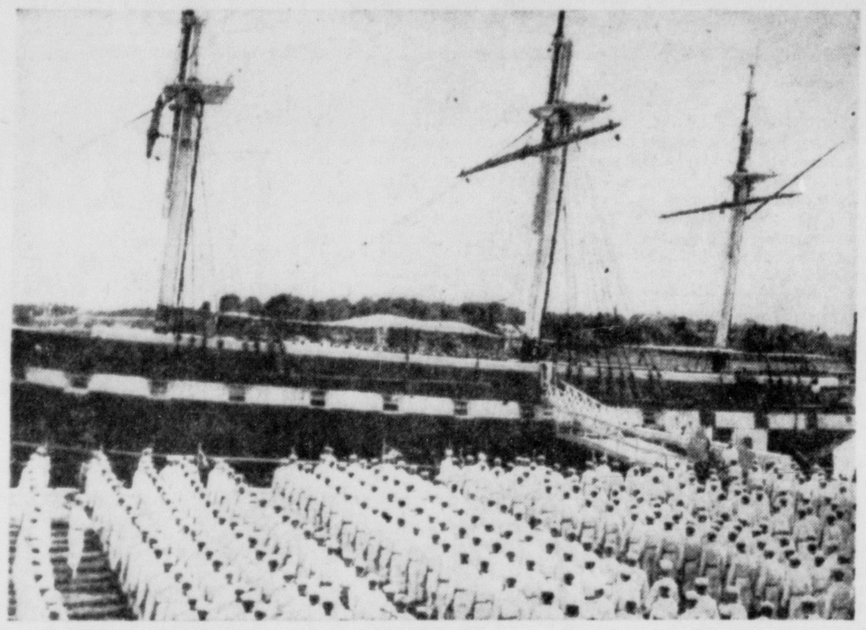

The idea of Mrs. Mills lays empshsis upon folk music rather than religious music. The first project calls for an international folk festival this winter in each of the 5,000 or more clubs affiliated with the federation.

Stress would be laid upon the history of the countries in which the folk music originated, the reasons underlying the migration of these various nationalities to America, and the advantages of American citizenship.

Coupled with this will be the recitation of a "Loyalty Collect" and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" and other American songs.

OLDEST U. S. WARSHIP AGAIN SERVES ITS COUNTRY

The Navy's oldest warship, the U. S. S. Constellation, built in Baltimore, in 1797, is put back into service as a training ship. She is shown being recommissioned at Newport, R. I., by 2,700 men and officers. One year older than the famed Constitution, the Constellation saw action against the Barbary pirates and in the War of 1812.

Willkie Woman Leader Won't Leave Her Baby Boy for Any Campaign

Ruth de Young Kohler

By HERBERT D. WILHOIT

AP Feature Service

CHICAGO — When Wendell L. Willkie appointed Ruth de Young Kohler as a member of his Republican presidential campaign advisory board, he selected "a Republican both by inheritance and conviction."

He also picked a young woman of energy, friendliness, and extensive newspaper experience who says: "I am not a professional politician and I hope to give to this work the viewpoint of the independent woman."

In private life she is Mrs. Herbert V. Kohler, wife of the president of the Kohler Company, big plumbing manufactory in the model community of Kohler, Wis. Currently she is doing a weekly column for the Chicago Tribune under the caption "Women World Wide" and a weekly broadcast on that broad topic (WGN-Mutual).

Her Son Comes First

Most important of all her activities is the job of being the mother of 17-month-old Herbert Vollrath Kohler, Jr.

"I'll not neglect my little fellow for any of these things," she says. "He's too important."

The Willkie appointment "simply dropped in my lap," as she puts it. "I went to the Republican convention in connection with my work but I didn't know Mr. Willkie had chosen me until Herbert read it in the paper in Kohler. We were flabbergasted."

Mrs. Kohler was born 33 years ago in Harvey, Ill., suburb of Chicago.

Had To Fight Freckles

"Since marriage (in 1937) my life has been devoted to my family and my home in Kohler village," she says. I came back to newspaper and radio work this June only because Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, has considerable powers of persuasion."

Mrs. Kohler is tall, smartly attired, has black hair, blue-gray eyes, and a tendency to freckle. She says she wants to be known as "Ruth de Young Kohler" for professional by-line or radio purposes but otherwise as "Mrs. Herbert V. Kohler."

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Harassed Rumania's crown council met in a secret, shotgun-guarded conference last night and early today (Saturday) on grave new problems in the wake of Germany's forced establishment of an embittered Balkan peace at Rumanian expense.

In Germany's bigger game in the west, the Nazi air force meanwhile maintained throughout the dark hours its regular sleep-disturbing nighthawk patrol over London and the British isles. Bombs were dropped on London's outskirts and the raiders were heard in thirteen towns in England and one in Wales.

Except to say that their subject was exceptional and important, the Rumanian council was mum as it ended its long session with King Carol at 2:30 a. m. (8:30 p. m. EST Friday).

Only yesterday Rumania unhappily agreed to cede half the province of Transylvania to Hungary, accepting in turn a German guarantee of Rumania's shrunken frontiers—a guarantee that will place Nazi troops opposite the restless Soviet army on an almost unbroken front of 1,000 miles from the Baltic to the Black sea.

Rumania lost her newest slice of land in an axis-dictated conference at Vienna where German foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and his Italian colleague, Count Galeazzo Ciano, laid down the "—or else" ultimatum.

Lose Large Territory

Confronted with the threat of immediate attack by Germany, Hungary, and possibly Bulgaria and Russia, King Carol's government capitulated, losing more than 17,000 additional square miles of territory. Previously she had agreed to cede southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, and Russia, by ultimatum, had gained Besesarabia and northern Bucovina.

Germany's guarantee, authorized Nazi sources said, was "directed against nobody in particular and against everybody in general."

They added that Germany and Italy took Moscow at its word when the Russians said their aspirations had been satisfied with the acquisition of Bessarabia from Rumania, part of the former Czarist regiment, and northern Bucovina in addition.

Meanwhile, Russia's Red army and navy began secret maneuvers, the fleet engaging in "mock" battle in an undisclosed area and the army maneuvering in "the western special military district," which was taken to mean opposite Rumania.

Greece Calls Reserves

Greece, wary of Italians intentions in neighboring Albania, called up nearly all of her reserve officers last night. Authoritative quarters said Greece would closely follow today's (Sat.) session of the Albanian parliament for some sign of Italy's intention toward her after weeks of a bitter anti-Greek press campaign.

Over 700 German planes hammered from noon to long after midnight at London's defenses, dropping bombs on the capital's outskirts and sending its millions into shelters during four general alarms.

The fourth alarm came after dark. British fighter planes having successfully fended off the invaders in the three previous attacks. The British claimed they shot down sixty-two Nazi planes and lost nineteen. The German high command said eighty British planes were destroyed to their twenty-one.

Earlier Nazi planes had pounded British industrial centers in the northwest, the southeast and South Wales, giving Manchester, great textile city, its worst hammering of the war.

Civilian casualties were not entirely disclosed but the toll steadily mounted as homes were smashed, ports, factories and airdromes raided.

Nazi spokesmen said great fires were left in the wake of their attacks on Liverpool and Birkenhead and the Midlands.

Georgia Farmer Moves into Residence Built by Government

THOMASVILLE Ga. Aug. 30 (AP)—Officially speaking it was moving day for Farmer E. Vernon Ellis because today he started paying $50 per year rental on the first modern dwelling built in the nation in a program aimed at removing rural "slums."

Things were spic and span about the house that replaced the ramshackle place in which the Ellises lived up to a few weeks ago.

(They actually moved a couple of days ago). There was an uncommon amount of bustle with several city people about to make speeches.

Farmer Ellis and his wife swelled with pardonable pride and their two-year-old son toddled delightedly to hear Langdon W. Post special assistant to National Administrator Nathan Strause of the United States housing authority assert:

"From this day on this Georgia family will realize what the American way of living really means . . ."

The Ellises had only to look about them to see what housing man Post's "American Way" mean to them:

Three bedrooms, living room, kitchen, grouped around an air circulation hall; open fire place, a front porch and screened back porch. That was much better than those old sagging floors in the three-room house. In the rear, a bored well, cemented over and pump operated, replaced an old open well. The house is electrically wired.

The unit, constructed under supervision of a local contractor, cost about $1,300. It is the first of 250 planned in Thomas county by the County Housing Authority, working with the state housing board and the United States Housing Authority.

Under Housing Authority provisions, the renter-to-be deeds an acre to the county authority. Upon completion of the unit, some substandard farm dwelling in the county must be dismantled. The low annual rent is achieved through agreement of the farmer-renters to do ordinary repairs.

The county authority has a $357,000 loan contract with USHA for its project. Several projects in other states are being arranged by USHA.

Carroll, city plumber, will attend the fourth annual short course for operators of water and sewage treatment plants Thursday, September 5, at the University of Maryland, College park.

The local officials plan to attend the 9 a. m. session at which Charles V. Joyce, division engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, will demonstrate the use of pipe and leak-locating instruments.

The course, scheduled September 3, 4 and 5, is held annually under the joint auspices of the university, the State Department of Health, the Maryland-Delaware Water and Sewerage Association, and the "Four States Section" of the American Water Works Association.

Bridge Specifications Are Discussed Here By County Commissioners

The county commissioners yesterday instructed James Stevenson, clerk to the board, to write the West Virginia State roads commission in regards to plans and specifications for the proposed bridge over the Potomac river connecting Luke, Maryland, and Piedmont, W. Va.

The plans and specifications are to be sent to the Maryland state roads commission for their approval and then the work will be done under supervision of West Virginia engineers with Maryland sharing half the cost.

The bridge in question was condemned as unsafe some time ago and closed to traffic.

Alien Registrations Reach Sixty-eight

Nine additional aliens have registered at the post office, Frank L. M. Storm, in charge of the work reported last night. Ten others took home forms to fill out.

A total of sixty-eight have registered since the job began last Tuesday.

Italians still lead in number of registerants with seventeen and the English have sixteen. The next largest group is the Austrian, with seven.

Yesterday a man born in Pennsylvania came into the office to register explaining that he had once been a member of the Colorado national guard serving several years and was discharged due to a disability. He later went to Canada and his disability was overlooked evidently because he was accepted into the army. This act caused him to forfeit his U. Child Should Be Examined Before Entering School

Removal of Physical Handicaps Will Help Youngster in Studies

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

In case your child is old enough to enter kindergarten or first grade, is he physically, socially and emotionally prepared?

Have you had your family doctor carefully look him over? If not, please do so at once. The ordeal ahead of him at school is not easy and you certainly do not want him to have any physical handicaps which can be removed or prevented. Has he been vaccinated against smallpox and immunized against diphtheria? Why neglect these matters when so much is at stake? Have his eyes, ears, nose, throat been examined? Your family physician will know if he needs a specialist and should be able to recommend a good one. And be sure a dentist has examined his teeth and taken care of them.

There Are Free Clinics

If you cannot afford to pay a doctor, go to a public health centre in your city or county seat and ask for free service. Many parents who do not look after such matters, easily could afford the cost. If it is a choice between going without pleasure rides in your car, buying a new hat, suit, coat, or furniture and having proper medical or dental care for your child or yourself, have the medical and dental care by all means.

Has your child been learning to get along happily with other children his own age, settling his own fights and quarrels? If not, do your best to let him learn to manage himself at play and enjoy fun with other children.

Can he get along without you for several hours at a stretch, even over a night or week-end? Now's the time to train him in these directions, if he is too much a mamma's child. Nothing can make his early days at school harder than to be strangled by his mother's apron strings.

Fear of Teacher

Does he look hopefully forward to the first day of school? Some playmates may have taken delight in picturing his teacher as an ogre and arousing fears in him of school bullies. Discovering this, you should be able to reassure your child and induce other children to assist you in doing so. Some parents, alas! will be so foolish and cruel as to "warn" him of the teacher who "will make him mind."

That child who has learned at home to manage himself, look after himself, and to get along happily with other children his own age has a favorable preparation for entering school. And don't overlook the health of the older children. Perhaps they should be examined by your doctor or dentist before school begins.

You may receive a chart of desirable hours of sleep for the child at various ages by writing me at 235 E. forty-fifth street, New York City, and enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. In like manner you may receive a chart showing how many words in the average child vocabulary at various age levels.

Q. What do you think of the mother who deliberately exposes her child three years old to measles, chicken pox, or whooping cough, so he will get over them early and be done with them, believing that the older the child when he gets such diseases the harder they go with him?

A. One should not think unkindly of such a mother; one should be sorry for her and her little children. There are such notions as hers abroad, but these notions are entirely wrong. The younger the child, the more likely he is to die from these children's diseases, or to be left with a crippled heart, infected ears or throat or other physical handicaps. The longer you can keep your child from contracting any of the children's diseases, the surer he is to keep alive and have sound health; the surer, indeed, he is to escape these diseases entirely. One more thing that mother seemed not to know, that a child may have any or all the children's diseases more than once.

The dangerous character of quicksand is due to the grains being rounded, so that when wet they do not cling together like the angular particles of ordinary sand.

Seven women were elected mayors in Kansas in 1939.

Newsosis Grips Many Persons, Doctor Says

Worry over War and Politics Is Too Much for Nervous System

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"I gave my first prescription against reading the war news and political news today," said Dr. Adrian Gibbs, as he was locking up his office. "Told a fellow he was simply suffering from acute ingrowing power politics or newsosis.

"I really found out about this disease from a study of my own case. I have a job to do which is important in the world if only from the standpoint that I keep myself and my family off relief. And that job has nothing to do with Hitler, nor Rumania, nor Stalin, nor the plans for the national defense, nor Willkie or Roosevelt, nor finding a source of aluminum or the manufacture of synthetic rubber. At least there's nothing I can do personally about these things right now.

"All in a Tension"

"This fellow is in the same fix. He has a tidy little job that is his own, that he is capable of doing and that ought to receive a large part of his attention. He's been doing it all right until lately when he found himself getting fatigued and sleepless and all in a tension. So he began to take more exercise and make dates in golf games—dates he had to keep, that kept hanging over him and praying on his mind.

"'Let's see,' he would say to himself, 'I've got to get through what I'm doing now so I can get out to the links at 2 p. m. and get through with my game in time to hear the 5 o'clock news broadcast, and then see the news-reel at 8:30 o'clock, and catch up with that look on the Persian oil situation before I go to bed.'

"He had to get up in the morning so he could read all the pronouncements from the South American capitals and the editorials, and what the candidates said at their press conferences.

Overworked Nerves

"You see he hasn't enough nervous system to stand all that. He has a pretty sound nervous system, just like all human equipment it is limited and things had crept up on him so he had just naturally swamped it.

"It was like as if you blew an oyster up to man's size but left the oyster's nervous system in its original primitive condition and then put it in command of a submarine. The oyster—and the submarine—would just naturally go to pieces.

Questions and Answers

D. M.—"Will you please tell me what causes mouth ulcers and how they can be prevented? Is this condition due to lack of certain vitamins?"

Answer—"Mouth ulcers" is a broad term. There are many different kinds of mouth ulcers caused by many different things. I presume, however, that you mean what are commonly called "canker sores." I have never seen any proof of the theory that these are caused by lack of vitamins. Some people think they are due to allergy or hypersensitiveness, and I published a letter a little while ago from a dentist who believed they were due to lack of minerals and treated them with calcium salts. They are notoriously likely to affect certain people and return frequently. My dentist correspondent claimed that he had been able to prevent their recurrence in sensitive individuals by this means.

M. P.—"Can night blindness be cured? If so, please name the pills or whatever will help it."

Answer—It is said that night blindness is due to lack of Vitamin A. This can be obtained in concentrated form or by the eating of carrots and corn.

Equatorial Africa Now British Ally

French Cameroons and Congo Enter War against Axis

LONDON, Aug. 30 (AP) — The French Cameroons and Congo have followed the lead of the Chad territory and entered the war at Britain's side, turning substantially the whole of French equatorial Africa into a British ally, General Charles De Gaulle announced here.

Thus more than a million square miles of territory has been aligned with Britain, opening a vast corridor from the South Atlantic to Italian Libya, and creating an uninterrupted British land bridge connecting the Atlantic with the Mediterranean and Red seas.

Britain, military observers remarked, will be afforded a guarantee of the maintenance of communications for attacks on the Italian Colonial Empire.

General De Gaulle, head of French forces refusing to accept the surrender to Germany ordered by the government of Marshal Philippe Petain and organizing to fight on, did not himself discuss the military implications of the action.

At his headquarters, however, it was declared that their new status as belligerents would sharply restrict Italian and German naval and air movements.

It was said, too, that not only were native troops available in those areas but that there were "a certain number" of airplanes there.

There was speculation that Colonel De Larminat, former chief of staff of the French armies of the near East, already was active in equatorial Africa. It was recalled that only recently he came here from Syria for conversations with De Gaulle, and then left hurriedly on a mission that never has been disclosed.

Child Should Be Examined Before Entering School

Removal of Physical Handicaps Will Help Youngster in Studies

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

In case your child is old enough to enter kindergarten or first grade, is he physically, socially and emotionally prepared?

Have you had your family doctor carefully look him over? If not, please do so at once. The ordeal ahead of him at school is not easy and you certainly do not want him to have any physical handicaps which can be removed or prevented. Has he been vaccinated against smallpox and immunized against diphtheria? Why neglect these matters when so much is at stake? Have his eyes, ears, nose, throat been examined? Your family physician will know if he needs a specialist and should be able to recommend a good one. And be sure a dentist has examined his teeth and taken care of them.

There Are Free Clinics

If you cannot afford to pay a doctor, go to a public health centre in your city or county seat and ask for free service. Many parents who do not look after such matters, easily could afford the cost. If it is a choice between going without pleasure rides in your car, buying a new hat, suit, coat, or furniture and having proper medical or dental care for your child or yourself, have the medical and dental care by all means.

Has your child been learning to get along happily with other children his own age, settling his own fights and quarrels? If not, do your best to let him learn to manage himself at play and enjoy fun with other children.

Can he get along without you for several hours at a stretch, even over a night or week-end? Now's the time to train him in these directions, if he is too much a mamma's child. Nothing can make his early days at school harder than to be strangled by his mother's apron strings.

Fear of Teacher

Does he look hopefully forward to the first day of school? Some playmates may have taken delight in picturing his teacher as an ogre and arousing fears in him of school bullies. Discovering this, you should be able to reassure your child and induce other children to assist you in doing so. Some parents, alas! will be so foolish and cruel as to "warn" him of the teacher who "will make him mind."

That child who has learned at home to manage himself, look after himself, and to get along happily with other children his own age has a favorable preparation for entering school. And don't overlook the health of the older children. Perhaps they should be examined by your doctor or dentist before school begins.

You may receive a chart of desirable hours of sleep for the child at various ages by writing me at 235 E. forty-fifth street, New York City, and enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. In like manner you may receive a chart showing how many words in the average child vocabulary at various age levels.

Q. What do you think of the mother who deliberately exposes her child three years old to measles, chicken pox, or whooping cough, so he will get over them early and be done with them, believing that the older the child when he gets such diseases the harder they go with him?

A. One should not think unkindly of such a mother; one should be sorry for her and her little children. There are such notions as hers abroad, but these notions are entirely wrong. The younger the child, the more likely he is to die from these children's diseases, or to be left with a crippled heart, infected ears or throat or other physical handicaps. The longer you can keep your child from contracting any of the children's diseases, the surer he is to keep alive and have sound health; the surer, indeed, he is to escape these diseases entirely. One more thing that mother seemed not to know, that a child may have any or all the children's diseases more than once.

Newsosis Grips Many Persons, Doctor Says

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"I gave my first prescription against reading the war news and political news today," said Dr. Adrian Gibbs, as he was locking up his office. "Told a fellow he was simply suffering from acute ingrowing power politics or newsosis.

"I really found out about this disease from a study of my own case. I have a job to do which is important in the world if only from the standpoint that I keep myself and my family off relief. And that job has nothing to do with Hitler, nor Rumania, nor Stalin, nor the plans for the national defense, nor Willkie or Roosevelt, nor finding a source of aluminum or the manufacture of synthetic rubber. At least there's nothing I can do personally about these things right now.

"All in a Tension"

"This fellow is in the same fix. He has a tidy little job that is his own, that he is capable of doing and that ought to receive a large part of his attention. He's been doing it all right until lately when he found himself getting fatigued and sleepless and all in a tension. So he began to take more exercise and make dates in golf games—dates he had to keep, that kept hanging over him and praying on his mind.

"'Let's see,' he would say to himself, 'I've got to get through what I'm doing now so I can get out to the links at 2 p. m. and get through with my game in time to hear the 5 o'clock news broadcast, and then see the news-reel at 8:30 o'clock, and catch up with that look on the Persian oil situation before I go to bed.'

"He had to get up in the morning so he could read all the pronouncements from the South American capitals and the editorials, and what the candidates said at their press conferences.

Overworked Nerves

"You see he hasn't enough nervous system to stand all that. He has a pretty sound nervous system, just like all human equipment it is limited and things had crept up on him so he had just naturally swamped it.

"It was like as if you blew an oyster up to man's size but left the oyster's nervous system in its original primitive condition and then put it in command of a submarine. The oyster—and the submarine—would just naturally go to pieces.

"This patient figured himself he'd beter give up the press conferences. The Prize Was Big and No Punches Were Barred, but Then Nora Fought a Different Kind of Fight Entirely

By GLENN REILLY

"I don't know whether you stand a chance of finding what I want or not, Miss Keyes," was Professor Bagley's gruding comment as the eminent scientist observed Nora's slight young body and completely feminine features. "This is a job which will require a strong physique for extended treks through the jungle!"

"I'm tougher than I look, Dr. Bagley!" Nora defended her appearance and her intellect, "and, after all, a graduate student in anthropology could hardly be called a dummy! Please let me try to find the specimen you need!"

"Would you mind informing me, young woman, why you are willing to brave physical hardship and possible failure, just to find something which I alone in the world want—and am willing to pay for?"

The girl looked at the wealthy scientist frankly. "Certainly I'll tell you! I'm nearly broke—what I mean is, I'm nearly out of money, she confessed unabashedly. "If I can find the primate bones upon which hinge the elements of your latest work on the missing link, I can continue my studies."

"I offered the sum of ten thousand for the specimen, true enough," the scientist admitted doubtfully, "but I hardly anticipated having one of my favorite students try for it! I suppose that I can't forbid you—but it is somewhat irregular!"

"Science has no genders, Dr. Bagley," Nora reminded him with a bright smile, "and if I can help you and myself at the same time, why not?"

The man of science smiled a helpless sort of smile. "I suppose you think of me as a back number who's only interested in my life study, Miss Keyes, and maybe I am! In my day . . . but I won't moralize. I wish you success, if only for purely selfish motives."

Nora smiled back. "I'll succeed, if only to prove that today's young women are good at anything."

The S. S. Melanthic swung gently on the oily turquoise water of the tiny Sumatran bay, rooted by the anchor which had for nearly a month been imbedded in the ocean floor. On the tiny passenger deck of the tramp freighter Nora Keyes leaned purposefully on the iron railing and stared with absorbed attention toward the shore and the dense jungle which came down to the water's edge.

"A lovely day, Miss Keyes," she heard a voice behind her say, and she knew without turning that it was that of the only other passenger, Fritz von Hermann. "I hope that what I'm going to say doesn't spoil it for you!" He leaned his slender figure against the railing beside her and stared toward the jungle too.

"Don't tell me that you not only decided to look for Bagley's primates, chose the same boat I did, and mapped out a duplicate itinerary—but that you found them before I did!" she hoped half-jokingly.

Von Hermann waved a hand in negation.

"Please, let us not misunderstand each other," he begged with a slight shrug. "It was you who located the chief who found the specimens quite capably—but it is I who will get them. You see, I have bribed him to deliver them to me and to no one else!"

"You . . . you chisler!" was all that Nora could find to say.

He regarded her with equanimity.

"You Americans are picturesque in language," he commented. "However, I am a confessed soldier of fortune. I'm afraid my code of chivalry has long since gone by the board . . . and so, I have turned what is to me a very profitable deal."

Nora glared at him for a long moment before she managed to bring her outraged emotions under control. She held out her hand with a wry smile.

"We'll shake on it, Mr. von Hermann! I've learned a valuable lesson, if nothing else!" she stated regretfully. "I could call you a number of unprintable things, but I won't! I put in a lot of hard work finding those specimens, I'll have you know!"

"In my business any means are the right means if they obtain the results one wishes. You might say that my motto is the golden rule a little out of focus—do others before they can do you!"

Nora afforded herself a short laugh, innocent of amusement, at his frank avowal of ethics. "It's your game, Mr. von Hermann," she told him with some bitterness. "I can't change the score now, but I wish I had known the rules you play a little sooner." Abruptly she left him, not trusting herself to further discussion.

Two days later he found her on the deck outside the radio shack.

"The captain tells me that the Melanthic is nearly finished picking up her cargo, so it won't be long before I can start in being one of the unemployed back home!"

Von Hermann shrugged and adroitly switched the trend of the conversation. They chatted for a while and his keen ears suddenly picked up the sharp click of the instrument inside the radio room, whose door was open.

"Bagley specimen discovered. Cease search," were the words he gleaned from the coded air chatter. He glanced quickly at the girl, who was oblivious to the meaningless dots and dashes he heard.

He suddenly grinned and took her arm. "I've been thinking it over, Miss Keyes, and I've decided that what I did was pretty raw! I'll make you a proposition. . . . I'll sell you the specimens I cheated you out of for a hunderd dollars. Will that redeem me?" Nora shrewdly eyed him.

"No strings and no more tricks?" she demanded.

"No strings!" he agreed. Nora thought the matter over as he guided her away from the vicinity of the radio room and the possibility of the operator's delivering the message to her at once. Within five more minutes he had the money in his hand and Nora had the boxed specimens locked within her stateroom.

"Thank you, Miss Keyes!" Von Hermann grinned, putting the bills in his wallet placidly. The girl grinned back.

"I hope that the message I paid the radio man to bang out on his practice key didn't influence your sudden decision, Mr. von Hermann!" she smiled sweetly. "If it did there's another little slogan you can add to your collection—he who lives by the sword shall also perish by the sword!" — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Justice Department Warns Foreign Born

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — The Justice Department issued a warning here that foreign born residents who have taken out first citizenship papers are not exempt from the requirement that aliens register and be fingerprinted.

Earl G. Harrison, director of the alien registration division, said in a statement that non-citizens who expect to be sworn in as citizens before December 26, last day for alien registration, might delay registration until November 15 or December 1 on the assumption they will know by that time whether they will become citizens before the deadline.

He reported that in some communities aliens held the "mistaken belief" that they could avoid the fingerprinting requirement by applying for citizenship.

The Prize Was Big and No Punches Were Barred, but Then Nora Fought a Different Kind of Fight Entirely

By GLENN REILLY

"I don't know whether you stand a chance of finding what I want or not, Miss Keyes," was Professor Bagley's grudging comment as the eminent scientist observed Nora's slight young body and completely feminine features. "This is a job which will require a strong physique for extended treks through the jungle!"

"I'm tougher than I look, Dr. Bagley!" Nora defended her appearance and her intellect, "and, after all, a graduate student in anthropology could hardly be called a dummy! Please let me try to find the specimen you need!"

"It's Your Game, Mr. Von Hermann."

"Would you mind informing me, young woman, why you are willing to brave physical hardship and possible failure, just to find something which I alone in the world want—and am willing to pay for?"

The girl looked at the wealthy scientist frankly. "Certainly I'll tell you! I'm nearly broke—what I mean is, I'm nearly out of money, she confessed unabashedly. "If I can find the primate bones upon which hinge the elements of your latest work on the missing link, I can continue my studies."

"I offered the sum of ten thousand for the specimen, true enough," the scientist admitted doubtfully, "but I hardly anticipated having one of my favorite students try for it! I suppose that I can't forbid you—but it is somewhat irregular!"

"Science has no genders, Dr. Bagley," Nora reminded him with a bright smile, "and if I can help you and myself at the same time, why not?"

The man of science smiled a helpless sort of smile. "I suppose you think of me as a back number who's only interested in my life study, Miss Keyes, and maybe I am! In my day . . . but I won't moralize. I wish you success, if only for purely selfish motives."

Nora smiled back. "I'll succeed, if only to prove that today's young women are good at anything."

The S. S. Melanthic swung gently on the oily turquoise water of the tiny Sumatran bay, rooted by the anchor which had for nearly a month been imbedded in the ocean floor. On the tiny passenger deck of the tramp freighter Nora Keyes leaned purposefully on the iron railing and stared with absorbed attention toward the shore and the dense jungle which came down to the water's edge.

"A lovely day, Miss Keyes," she heard a voice behind her say, and she knew without turning that it was that of the only other passenger, Fritz von Hermann. "I hope that what I'm going to say doesn't spoil it for you!" He leaned his slender figure against the railing beside her and stared toward the jungle too.

"Don't tell me that you not only decided to look for Bagley's primates, chose the same boat I did, and mapped out a duplicate itinerary—but that you found them before I did!" she hoped half-jokingly.

Von Hermann waved a hand in negation.

"Please, let us not misunderstand each other," he begged with a slight shrug. "It was you who located the chief who found the specimens quite capably—but it is I who will get them. You see, I have bribed him to deliver them to me and to no one else!"

"You . . . you chisler!" was all that Nora could find to say.

He regarded her with equanimity.

"You Americans are picturesque in language," he commented. "However, I am a confessed soldier of fortune. I'm afraid my code of chivalry has long since gone by the board . . . and so, I have turned what is to me a very profitable deal."

Nora glared at him for a long moment before she managed to bring her outraged emotions under control. She held out her hand with a wry smile.

"We'll shake on it, Mr. von Hermann! I've learned a valuable lesson, if nothing else!" she stated regretfully. "I could call you a number of unprintable things, but I won't! I put in a lot of hard work finding those specimens, I'll have you know!"

"In my business any means are the right means if they obtain the results one wishes. You might say that my motto is the golden rule a little out of focus—do others before they can do you!"

Nora afforded herself a short laugh, innocent of amusement, at his frank avowal of ethics. "It's your game, Mr. von Hermann," she told him with some bitterness. "I can't change the score now, but I wish I had known the rules you play a little sooner." Abruptly she left him, not trusting herself to further discussion.

Two days later he found her on the deck outside the radio shack.

"The captain tells me that the Melanthic is nearly finished picking up her cargo, so it won't be long before I can start in being one of the unemployed back home!"

Von Hermann shrugged and adroitly switched the trend of the conversation. They chatted for a while and his keen ears suddenly picked up the sharp click of the instrument inside the radio room, whose door was open.

"Bagley specimen discovered. Cease search," were the words he gleaned from the coded air chatter. He glanced quickly at the girl, who was oblivious to the meaningless dots and dashes he heard.

He suddenly grinned and took her arm. "I've been thinking it over, Miss Keyes, and I've decided that what I did was pretty raw! I'll make you a proposition. . . . I'll sell you the specimens I cheated you out of for a hunderd dollars. Will that redeem me?" Nora shrewdly eyed him.

"No strings and no more tricks?" she demanded.

"No strings!" he agreed. Nora thought the matter over as he guided her away from the vicinity of the radio room and the possibility of the operator's delivering the message to her at once. Within five more minutes he had the money in his hand and Nora had the boxed specimens locked within her stateroom.

"Thank you, Miss Keyes!" Von Hermann grinned, putting the bills in his wallet placidly. The girl grinned back.

"I hope that the message I paid the radio man to bang out on his practice key didn't influence your sudden decision, Mr. von Hermann!" she smiled sweetly. "If it did there's another little slogan you can add to your collection—he who lives by the sword shall also perish by the sword!" — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Oakland K. of P. To Hold Picnic At Park Monday

Labor Day Eve 'Becomes of Age;' Many Attractions Scheduled

OAKLAND, Aug. 30. —The Labor day picnic sponsored by the Oakland Knights of Pythias lodge will become "of age" Monday when the twenty-first annual event will be held.

A number of attractions are being offered for this celebration. A parade with cash prizes of $100 for those who participate, band concerts, a continuous carnival of rides and shows and a fireworks display are some of the features planned.

A. R. Martin, parade marshal; Floyd Leighton and Lewis Jones, committee members, announce that anyone taking part in the parade should line up at 9:30 on Alder and Oak streets east of Fourth, and on Fourth between Alder and Oak, so that the procession can move at ten o'clock. The route of the parade thence to the picnic grounds in the Community Park, formerly the Helbig Grove at the north edge of town. The awarding of cash prizes for fire companies, bands and floats will take place on the picnic grounds after the parade.

Two band concerts are scheduled, one at 3:30 by the Mt. Lake Park Loch Lynn Boys' Band, under the direction of H. S. Mickey, and one at 7:30 by the Oakland Boys' Band with Russell H. Brown, director, conducting.

The William C. Kaus Shows, consisting of ten rides and eleven shows, will be on the grounds. The committee emphasized particularly that there will be no admission charge to the grounds at any time and that the shows would be free from the common run of carnival "skin games."

Dinner and supper may be obtained on the grounds. The picnic usually attracts more than 5,000 people.

Large Grain Crop

Roy O. Winters, whose farm is adjacent to the corporate limits of Oakland on the east, completed this week the harvesting of an unusually large crop of oats and barley, the grain to be used for feed for his dairy cows during the winter.

Mr. Winters stated that 2,100 bushels of oats and barley had been harvested from forty-five acres and that it had all been stored in his granary. Mr. Winters, whose dairy provides families in Oakland with milk and cream, has thirty cows in his dairy herd and plans to add several more within a few days. He has already prepared additional room in his barn for the accommodation of the animals.

Rattler Killed

The first rattlesnake reported killed in this part of Garrett county in recent years was one on the Browning farm, about two and one-half miles west of Oakland on the Finzerboard road to Hutton. It was killed by Jack Uphold. The snake measured four feet in length and had five rattlers.

Kight was one of several members of a delegation named at Tuesday night's mass meeting at Midland to confer with Kopp.

Romney School for Deaf To Open Late as Guard Against Polio Spread

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP) — Students of Marion county public schools and the State School for Deaf and Blind at Romney were added today to the growing list of children who will report late for classes because of an infantile paralysis epidemic.

Opening of classes for the 450 pupils at Romney was set back from September 10 to 24 for precautionary reasons, Secretary David Kirby of the State Board of Education explained.

"Children at Romney come from all sections of the state," he pointed out, "and even though no poliomyelitis has been reported in Hampshire county or the neighborhood of the school, we considered it best to postpone the opening."

Marion was the first county of the northern state region to take action. Ten southern West Virginia counties, where new cases of the malady were recorded today, have deferred school opening dates.

In the southern section, many Labor Day celebrations planned by the United Mine Workers have been postponed or cancelled.

The Marion county postponement of school, from September 9 to September 23, will affect 16,000 pupils and bring to more than 200,000 the number who will start their studies late.

Frostburg Group Also To Map Campaign Plans Wednesday Night

FROSTBURG, Aug. 30 — The Young Men's Republican Club of Frostburg announces an important meeting for Wednesday evening, September 3, at its club rooms, West Main street, when plans for the presidential campaign will be discussed and a proposal to organize a Federation of Republican Clubs of Allegany county will be considered.

The meeting will be in charge of Darrell Zeller, president; Charles Elrick, vice-president; Francis Richardson, secretary and Harold Jenkins, treasurer. It is planned to have all the charter members who established the club in 1938 attend the meeting. They are Charles T. Odgers, Harry Eisel, William Rank, Robert Elias, Walter Rank, Thomas Davis, George Hager, John Grim, Harold Jenkins, Philip Jenkins, Charles Elrick and Darrell Zeller.

He said the Sixth District Republican Club of Cumberland has been contacted and has agreed to consider a plan to help form clubs in all the Creek towns as well as in the eastern section of the county.

The present membership of the Frostburg club is now well over 125, and following the election of a new advisory committee Wednesday, the club will start a campaign for new members and push plans for getting young Republicans on the registration books.

The club takes pride in the fact that the organization has been prospering from the time it was organized in July 1938. The first meetings were held in the homes of members and later the club had rooms at the corner of Bowery and Main street which were vacated when the club membership increased to a point that larger quarters were necessary to house the organization.

Another Flood Is Reported Imminent In New and Knawha River Valleys

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP)—Industrial plants, boat owners, merchants and residents along the New and Kanawha river valleys took new precautions tonight against high waters but were reasonably assured an expected flood would not be as bad as the inundation of three weeks ago.

Heavy rains in the headwaters of the New river around Radford, Va., brought forecasts of another rise in the stream which on August 15 inundated Hinton and surrounding towns and sent a damaging flood through the Kanawha valley.

W. C. Deveraux, meteorologist at Cincinnati, said that indications from late reports were that there would be about a ten-foot rise in the New and the Kanawha.

The New and Gauley meet at Gauley Bridge to form the Kanawha.

Earlier the U. S. engineers office at Huntington had warned river shippers to be on the lookout for a flood which might reach the levels of two weeks ago, when a twenty-two-foot rise in eighteen hours was recorded in the Kanawha at Charleston.

Residents of Hinton, where eighty families were made temporarily homeless by the previous "flash" flood born in Virginia, today moved household goods to upper floors. A ten-foot rise at Hinton would cause comparatively little damage, however.

The Gauley Bridge power plant of the Electro-Mettalurgical Company said late today that its New river gauge in Hinton had fallen 3 of a foot since noon.

Officials there reported "no sign of a flood but qualified their statement by saying "what is beyond Hinton, of course, we cannot say."

Project at Coney To Train Youths For Defense Jobs

Machine, Blacksmith and Sheet Metal Shops To Be Established

LONACONING, Aug. 30 (Special) —Plans for reorganization of the NYA training school here to tie in with the national defense program were announced today by E. Price Steiding, assistant district NYA supervisor.

The plans call for installation of more than $10,000 worth of new equipment and rearrangement of the project headquarters in the old Evans cutting shop along the lines of a production plant.

Three new units will be added to the present carpentry shop in order to provide training for Allegany county youths in trades essential to America's fast-growing defense program. The new units, for which the machinery has already been ordered, include a blacksmith shop, sheet metal shop and machine shop.

The entire set-up will be revamped, Steiding said, and laid out like a modern production plant in private industry. Plans are underway to rewire and relight the 60 by 150-foot building, donated by Benjamin Evans for NYA use.

The new program will be under the direction of Harry K. Zellman, of Baltimore, state NYA consultant on machine shops. Mr. Zellman, formerly plant manager of several large Baltimore concerns, has had considerable industrial experience.

Some 200 youths, about forty of them girls, will be given training in the new trade school, according to Steiding, who said that most of them will be transferred from other projects. Because Allegany county's quota is filled, there will be no new assignments, except as vacancies are created.

At the same time the youths are learning trades vital to national defense, they will be turning out useful articles for public agencies, Steiding said.

The program is expected to swing into operation within two months, according to the NYA official.

Steiding also announced plans for expansion of the automobile mechanic shop in the Community building garage, and disclosed that Eugene Briggs, of LaVale, a veteran auto mechanic, had been added to the instruction staff.

Romney School for Deaf To Open Late as Guard Against Polio Spread

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP) — Students of Marion county public schools and the State School for Deaf and Blind at Romney were added today to the growing list of children who will report late for classes because of an infantile paralysis epidemic.

Opening of classes for the 450 pupils at Romney was set back from September 10 to 24 for precautionary reasons, Secretary David Kirby of the State Board of Education explained.

"Children at Romney come from all sections of the state," he pointed out, "and even though no poliomyelitis has been reported in Hampshire county or the neighborhood of the school, we considered it best to postpone the opening."

Marion was the first county of the northern state region to take action. Ten southern West Virginia counties, where new cases of the malady were recorded today, have deferred school opening dates.

In the southern section, many Labor Day celebrations planned by the United Mine Workers have been postponed or cancelled.

The Marion county postponement of school, from September 9 to September 23, will affect 16,000 pupils and bring to more than 200,000 the number who will start their studies late.

Proposal To Organize Federation Of GOP Clubs To Be Discussed

Frostburg Group Also To Map Campaign Plans Wednesday Night

FROSTBURG, Aug. 30 — The Young Men's Republican Club of Frostburg announces an important meeting for Wednesday evening, September 3, at its club rooms, West Main street, when plans for the presidential campaign will be discussed and a proposal to organize a Federation of Republican Clubs of Allegany county will be considered.

The meeting will be in charge of Darrell Zeller, president; Charles Elrick, vice-president; Francis Richardson, secretary and Harold Jenkins, treasurer. It is planned to have all the charter members who established the club in 1938 attend the meeting. They are Charles T. Odgers, Harry Eisel, William Rank, Robert Elias, Walter Rank, Thomas Davis, George Hager, John Grim, Harold Jenkins, Philip Jenkins, Charles Elrick and Darrell Zeller.

President Zeller stated last evening that one of the principal objectives of the club when it was first organized was to organize other clubs in the county. He said the Sixth District Republican Club of Cumberland has been contacted and has agreed to consider a plan to help form clubs in all the Creek towns as well as in the eastern section of the county.

The present membership of the Frostburg club is now well over 125, and following the election of a new advisory committee Wednesday, the club will start a campaign for new members and push plans for getting young Republicans on the registration books.

The club takes pride in the fact that the organization has been prospering from the time it was organized in July 1938. The first meetings were held in the homes of members and later the club had rooms at the corner of Bowery and Main street which were vacated when the club membership increased to a point that larger quarters were necessary to house the organization.

Another Flood Is Reported Imminent In New and Knawha River Valleys

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP)—Industrial plants, boat owners, merchants and residents along the New and Kanawha river valleys took new precautions tonight against high waters but were reasonably assured an expected flood would not be as bad as the inundation of three weeks ago.

Heavy rains in the headwaters of the New river around Radford, Va., brought forecasts of another rise in the stream which on August 15 inundated Hinton and surrounding towns and sent a damaging flood through the Kanawha valley.

W. C. Deveraux, meteorologist at Cincinnati, said that indications from late reports were that there would be about a ten-foot rise in the New and the Kanawha.

The New and Gauley meet at Gauley Bridge to form the Kanawha.

Earlier the U. S. engineers office at Huntington had warned river shippers to be on the lookout for a flood which might reach the levels of two weeks ago, when a twenty-two-foot rise in eighteen hours was recorded in the Kanawha at Charleston.

Residents of Hinton, where eighty families were made temporarily homeless by the previous "flash" flood born in Virginia, today moved household goods to upper floors. A ten-foot rise at Hinton would cause comparatively little damage, however.

The Gauley Bridge power plant of the Electro-Mettalurgical Company said late today that its New river gauge in Hinton had fallen .3 of a foot since noon.

Officials there reported "no sign of a flood but qualified their statement by saying "what is beyond Hinton, of course, we cannot say."

Machine, Blacksmith and Sheet Metal Shops To Be Established

LONACONING, Aug. 30 (Special) —Plans for reorganization of the NYA training school here to tie in with the national defense program were announced today by E. Price Steiding, assistant district NYA supervisor.

The plans call for installation of more than $10,000 worth of new equipment and rearrangement of the project headquarters in the old Evans cutting shop along the lines of a production plant.

Three new units will be added to the present carpentry shop in order to provide training for Allegany county youths in trades essential to America's fast-growing defense program. The new units, for which the machinery has already been ordered, include a blacksmith shop, sheet metal shop and machine shop.

The entire set-up will be revamped, Steiding said, and laid out like a modern production plant in private industry. Plans are underway to rewire and relight the 60 by 150-foot building, donated by Benjamin Evans for NYA use.

The new program will be under the direction of Harry K. Zellman, of Baltimore, state NYA consultant on machine shops. Mr. Zellman, formerly plant manager of several large Baltimore concerns, has had considerable industrial experience.

Some 200 youths, aboit forty of them girls, will be given training in the new trade school, according to Steiding, who said that most of them will be transferred from other projects. Because Allegany county's quota is filled, there will be no new assignments, except as vacancies are created.

At the same time the youths are learning trades vital to national defense, they will be turning out useful articles for public agencies, Steiding said.

The program is expected to swing into operation within two months, according to the NYA official.

Steiding also announced plans for expansion of the automobile mechanic shop, in the Community building garage, and disclosed that Eugene Briggs, of LaVale, a veteran auto mechanic, had been added to the instruction staff.

Leadmine 'Y' Camp, near Parsons, One of Finest Resorts in W. Va.

PARSONS, W. Va., Aug. 30—Tucker county has been chosen one of the three sites in the United States for a Young Men's Christian Association vacation camp.

The one in Tucker county is located at Leadmine, about ten miles north of Parsons. It is under the supervision of Frank M. Liddle, state secretary of the 'Y', and has as its recreation director, Denver Watring, Pickens high school principal and former coach at Lost Creek. There is one life guard stationed at the camp pool.

The camp consists of one large dining hall, an infirmary and eight cabins. It accommodates 112 persons.

It was built this summer by the U. S. Forest Service. By being under the supervision of the state it is run on a non-profit basis.

The sit on which the camp is located was once a farm owned by Stephen Losh, who settled here the latter part of the eighteenth century. It was named Leadmine for the postoffice, which is about one and one-half miles farther up the creek. The postoffice took its name from a stream which empties into Horseshoe creek on which a legend says that the Indians once mined lead.

Its surrounding mountains and beautiful grounds, as well as the recreation grounds and swimming facilities makes it one of the state's finest resorts, and it has a promising future.

4-H organizations and other groups from throughout the state have vacationed here. At present the Kingwood high school foot ball team is in training here, and Elkins Girl Scouts are also guests at the camp.

Leadmine 'Y' Camp, near Parsons, One of Finest Resorts in W. Va.

PARSONS, W. Va., Aug. 30—Tucker county has been chosen one of the three sites in the United States for a Young Men's Christian Association vacation camp.

The one in Tucker county is located at Leadmine, about ten miles north of Parsons. It is under the supervision of Frank M. Liddle, state secretary of the 'Y', and has as its recreation director, Denver Watring. Pickens high school principal and former coach at Lost Creek. There is one life guard stationed at the camp pool.

The camp consists of one large dining hall, an infirmary and eight cabins. It accommodates 112 persons.

It was built this summer by the U. S. Forest Service. By being under the supervision of the state it is run on a non-profit basis.

The sit on which the camp is located was once a farm owned by Stephen Losh, who settled here the latter part of the eighteenth century. It was named Leadmine for the postoffice, which is about one and one-half miles farther up the creek. The postoffice took its name from a stream which empties into Horseshoe creek on which a legend says that the Indians once mined lead.

Its surrounding mountains and beautiful grounds, as well as the recreation grounds and swimming facilities makes it one of the state's finest resorts, and it has a promising future.

4-H organizations and other groups from throughout the state have vacationed here. At present the Kingwood high school foot ball team is in training here, and Elkins Girl Scouts are also guests at the camp.

Mrs. Michael was accompanied to Baltimore by her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Smouse, Clarksburg, W. Va., and her son Edwin Michaels, Oakland.

Dr. H. R. DuPuy, county health officer, Mrs. DuPuy and daughter, will be in Baltimore this week-end, where the former has a scheduled conference with Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health. They will return to Oakland Monday, accompanied by four Garrett county children who have spent the summer at the Miracle House, the institution supported by residents of the state for prevention of tuberculosis in undernourished children.

Rails, Steels and Motors Bid Up In More Active Day in the Market

Approach of Labor Day Holiday Fails To Halt Trading

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP) — Contrary to the opinion of many that the stock market would do nothing because of the approach of the lengthy Labor Day recess, traders stepped in today and bid up selected rails, steels, motors, aircrafts and other industrials 1 to more than 2 points.

The turnover of 563,510 shares compared with 264,760 yesterday and was the largest since Aug. 13.

While prices were shaded here and there at the close, the Associated Press average of sixty stocks held a net advance of .7 of a point at 43.5.

Brokers seemingly found it difficult to produce any single reason for the rally. They pointed out, though, that the apparently growing strength of the British in their air battles with the Nazis was a heartening speculative influence.

Aircrafts were aided by announcement of the war department an agreement had been reached with the Wright Aeronautical Corp. and Curtiss-Wright on a big order for plane engines and propellers.

Aluminum Ltd. advanced four in the Curb. Lesser improvement was shown for Bell Aircraft, Detroit Steel Products, Gulf Oil, Standard Steel Spring and Sherwin Williams. Trades here were around 78,000 shares versus 47,000 Thursday.

Robert Says He Welcomes Inquiry

Democratic Leader Replies to Charges of Senator Bridges

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 30 (AP)—Lawrence W. (Chip) Robert, Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, said here he welcomed a defense contract investigation demanded today by Senator Bridges (R-NH) and asked that it be held quickly "before he attempts further to clog up the vital defense program by petty political snipping."

Senator Bridges today urged in the Senate that President Roosevelt remove Robert from his party post because of disclosures that the Atlanta architectural firm of Robert & Co., had been granted engineering and architectural fees totaling $931,560 on defense contracts.

The senator also asked that the attorney general investigate the award of the contracts, which reportedly totaled $26,859,081.

"Senator Bridges, if he desires to be honestly constructive," Robert, president of the Atlanta company, said, "should read the record and learn that this company and its associates have been continually and without interruption doing business running into millions for the federal government since the Coolidge administration."

The firm, Robert said, has had a business volume of over $500,000,000 in the last 23 years.

"But because I as a stockholder have been elected to an honorary and payless position as secretary of the Democratic National Committee," he continued, "then this important firm of over 400 skilled architects and engineers should be counted out altogether and not use its talents and facilities at this vital period."

Robert said "my distinguished Republican friend, Albert Kahn," a Detroit architect, has obtained "far greater jobs for national defense. But this senator has not time to go into this at the moment. He evidently just wants to complain for political purposes."

Middleton Finds Germans Do Little Damage in Britain

Correspondent Says Britons Are Confident They Can "Stick It Out"

By DREW MIDDLETON

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY'S SOUTHERN COMMAND, IN THE FIELD, Aug. 31 (AP) — In three days' travel through military and naval areas which the Germans have been bombing nightly I have found little damage which would hinder Britain's war effort, an unshaken faith among soldiers and civilians that they can "stick it out" — and considerable contempt for German marksman ship.

A British officer told me service casualties have been one soldier killed and "a very few injured, and they not seriously."

Officers have allowed me to go where I wished and I personally have seen this damage:

Machines Damaged

In a machine shop where recruits are taught to use tooling machines: two machines damaged, shop partly damaged but now well on the way to reconstruction. No casualties.

A vicar, and his housekeeper, shaken up by two bombs which fell near his house, miles from any military objective.

The wing of an old folks home hit by a bomb. Twelve sick and feeble old people killed. Home considerable distance from any military objectives.

The men of this army of defenders tell you staunchly that Adolf Hitler's invasion, "which may come any night," will be defated by mobile British columns because, "we have improved on the Germans' new conception of warfare. We will defeat him at his own game as we always have."

Not only that, these officers here claim their vast training program is getting them ready for "future offensive" of their own.

Takes Lesson from Flanders

Lieut.-Gen. C. J. E. Auchinleck, commander-in-chief of the southern command, who scored Britain's sole land success in Norway, by leading a mixed force of Poles, French and British in the capture of Narvik, says:

"In Flanders and France we learned that first of all we must have increased cooperation between the army, navy and the air force.

"Now we have increased mobility so that mobile columns, working with the RAF, will be able to converge on any single stretch of flat country here if the German high command selects it as a landing port."

"The Germans will try it, all right," he concluded. "They will not care how many men are killed in landing, or how many troop carriers crash.

"But I, my commanders and men, down to the greenest recruit, know they will get a hot reception."

English Children To Be 'Guests,' Not 'Refugees'

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP)—At least ten, perhaps more, English children fleeing from the war zone will be welcomed in Huntington homes "not as refugees but as guests," the American Association of University Women has announced.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Riley Griffiths forwarded affidavits that they are prepared to accommodate six children, most of them relatives, at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Kyle took steps to qualify them to entertain two youthful cousins of Mrs. Kyle's from Somersetshire. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gohen will be hosts to two small girls.

Many others have announced willingness to care for members of the refugee group to be sponsored by the local A. A. U. charter.

Drilling of New Well Watched with Interest

LOST CREEK, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP)—Prospectors are watching with intent interest a well two miles north of here. On it depends whether lease values will jump and the volume of gas will be increased greatly, they say.

Drills operated by the Hope Natural Gas Company are sinking the well into the famed Oriskany sands which lie hundreds of feet below the average well in this area.

Producers say that if the Oriskany produces as well in this section as it has in the Kanawha valley the days of the gas boom of earlier years will be re-lived.

A rotary drill method new to this section is being used. Water is forced down the drilling hole to the rotary bit. Stone, pulverized and mixed with water, then is pumped to the surface.

1,000 to 1 Offered By Lloyds in Policy Against Bomb Deaths

LONDON, Aug. 30 (AP) — A Briton's chance of getting killed or injured by a Nazi bomb is 1,000 to 1. Lloyds insurance brokers have decided in offering policies to civilians.

The premium rate will be one shilling (about twenty cents) per month for every fifth pounds sterling (approximately $200) of insurance.

A DRAMATIC TRIANGLE

With Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy both in love with Claudette Colbert, the dramatic triangle is all set in "Boom Town," spectacular oil drama coming to the Maryland screen. But there is another woman in the case, in the person of Hedy Lamarr, who rounds out one of the most sensational casts in the history of motion pictures.

IN HER LATEST

Shirley Temple's latest picture is "Young People" the Twentieth Century Fox picture which shows Sunday and through Wednesday at the Strand theater. "Young People" stars Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood.

Theaters Today

Musical Picture Is Scheduled by Strand

With Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood, "Young People," Twentieth Century-Fox picture, will be offered tomorrow at the Strand theater.

"Young People" is Shirley Temple's first musical picture in two years. There are five songs cleverly blended with the plot. The story deals with troupers Jack, Charlotte and Shirley who decide to retire from the stage in a small New England town.

A star of the stage for many years, Charlotte Greenwood, who plays Shirley's foster mother in the film, sets off her famous elongated legs. Opposite her is funster Jack Oakie in a role that provides ample scope for his antics.

Sharing the romantic lead in "Young People" are Arleen Whelan and George Montgomery. Kathleen Howard is also featured.

Errol Has Role In "Sea Hawk"

"The Sea Hawk," starring Errol Flynn has been scheduled by the New Liberty theater as the next feature attraction, and will open there today. In the supporting cast are Brenda Marshall, Claude Rains, Donald Crisp, Flora Robson and Alan Hale.

Background of the story of "The Sea Hawk" is England in the days of Queen Elizabeth. Among England's heroes of the time are sea fighters, who prey on the Spanish galleons, stripping them of their booty and bringing it home to swell England's dwindling treasury. Most daring and fearless of these privateers is Geoffrey Thorpe, the role portrayed by Flynn.

Western Film Is Showing at Garden

Rhythm, romance and roaring six-guns took over the Garden theater yesterday as Columbia's "Butlets For Rustlers" galloped across the screen. Charles Starrett comes through with another of his portrayals in the new film with Lorna Gray as his leading lady and the Sons of the Pioneers again provide a background for the adventure-filled saga of the Old West.

When a boy's mother refuses to let him own a puppy and he adopts a stray Great Dane instead, things begin to happen in "Little Orvie," RKO Radio's screen version of Booth Tarkington's story of childhood. The cast includes youngsters John Sheffield and Ann Todd and adults Ernest Truex and Dorothy Tree. The picture is now at the Garden.

Laraine Day Is Star Of Maryland Picture

Laraine Day has the leading feminine role in Walter Wanger's drama, "Foreign Correspondent" now showing at the Maryland theater.

"Too Many Husbands" Is Billed at Embassy

"Too Many Husbands" can prove somewhat troublesome, and Jean Arthur discovers that fact in the Embassy theater's forthcoming Columbia comedy, which opens tomorrow with Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas also starred.

Briefly, the story of "Too Many Husbands" is founded upon three logical items: Jean is married to reckless Fred, who is reported dead at sea. Jean marries the more stable Melvyn, Fred's best friend. Fred returns home.

In the cast of "Too Many Husbands," in addition to its popular stars, are such well-known character players as Harry Davenport, Dorothy Peterson, Melville Cooper and Tom Dugan. Claude Binyon penned the screenplay.

Last day showing of "The Ranger and the Lady" and also "The Captain is a Lady."

Australia was once known as New Holland.

ONGAR, England (AP)—F. A. Wheelhouse was sentenced to four weeks' imprisonment for hoisting the Nazi flag over the Ongar Council offices "as a practical joke."

Rails, Steels and Motors Bid Up In More Active Day in the Market

Approach of Labor Day Holiday Fails To Halt Trading

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP) — Contrary to the opinion of many that the stock market would do nothing because of the approach of the lengthy Labor Day recess, traders stepped in today and bid up selected rails, steels, motors, aircrafts and other industrials 1 to more than 2 points.

The turnover of 563,510 shares compared with 264,760 yesterday and was the largest since Aug. 13.

While prices were shaded here and there at the close, the Associated Press average of sixty stocks held a net advance of .7 of a point at 43.5.

Brokers seemingly found it difficult to produce any single reason for the rally. They pointed out, though, that the apparently growing strength of the British in their air battles with the Nazis was a heartening speculative influence.

Aircrafts were aided by announcement of the war department an agreement had been reached with the Wright Aeronautical Corp. and Curtiss-Wright on a big order for plane engines and propellers.

Aluminum Ltd. advanced four in the Curb. Lesser improvement was shown for Bell Aircraft, Detroit Steel Products, Gulf Oil, Standard Steel Spring and Sherwin Williams. Trades here were around 78,000 shares versus 47,000 Thursday.

Robert Says He Welcomes Inquiry

Democratic Leader Replies to Charges of Senator Bridges

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 30 (AP)—Lawrence W. (Chip) Robert, Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, said here he welcomed a defense contract investigation demanded today by Senator Bridges (R-NH) and asked that it be held quickly "before he attempts further to clog up the vital defense program by petty political snipping."

Senator Bridges today urged in the Senate that President Roosevelt remove Robert from his party post because of disclosures that the Atlanta architectural firm of Robert & Co., had been granted engineering and architectural fees totaling $931,560 on defense contracts.

The senator also asked that the attorney general investigate the award of the contracts, which reportedly totaled $26,859,081.

"Senator Bridges, if he desires to be honestly constructive," Robert, president of the Atlanta company, said, "should read the record and learn that this company and its associates have been continually and without interruption doing business running into millions for the federal government since the Coolidge administration."

The firm, Robert said, has had a business volume of over $500,000,000 in the last 23 years.

"But because I as a stockholder have been elected to an honorary and payless position as secretary of the Democratic National Committee," he continued, "then this important firm of over 400 skilled architects and engineers should be counted out altogether and not use its talents and facilities at this vital period."

Robert said "my distinguished Republican friend, Albert Kahn," a Detroit architect, has obtained "far greater jobs for national defense. But this senator has not time to go into this at the moment. He evidently just wants to complain for political purposes."

Middleton Finds Germans Do Little Damage in Britain

By DREW MIDDLETON

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY'S SOUTHERN COMMAND IN THE FIELD, Aug. 31 (AP) — In three days' travel through military and naval areas which the Germans have been bombing nightly I have found little damage which would hinder Britain's war effort, an unshaken faith among soldiers and civilians that they can "stick it out" — and considerable contempt for German marksman ship.

A British officer told me service casualties have been one soldier killed and "a very few injured, and they not seriously."

Officers have allowed me to go where I wished and I personally have seen this damage:

Machines Damaged

In a machine shop where recruits are taught to use tooling machines: two machines damaged, shop partly damaged but now well on the way to reconstruction. No casualties.

A vicar, and his housekeeper, shaken up by two bombs which fell near his house, miles from any military objective.

The wing of an old folks home hit by a bomb. Twelve sick and feeble old people killed. Home considerable distance from any military objectives.

The men of this army of defenders tell you staunchly that Adolf Hitler's invasion, "which may come any night," will be defated by mobile British columns because, "we have improved on the Germans' new conception of warfare. We will defeat him at his own game as we always have."

Not only that, these officers here claim their vast training program is getting them ready for "future offensive" of their own.

Takes Lesson from Flanders

Lieut.-Gen. C. J. E. Auchinleck, commander-in-chief of the southern command, who scored Britain's sole land success in Norway, by leading a mixed force of Poles, French and British in the capture of Narvik, says:

"In Flanders and France we learned that first of all we must have increased cooperation between the army, navy and the air force.

"Now we have increased mobility so that mobile columns, working with the RAF, will be able to converge on any single stretch of flat country here if the German high command selects it as a landing port."

"The Germans will try it, all right," he concluded. "They will not care how many men are killed in landing, or how many troop carriers crash.

"But I, my commanders and men, down to the greenest recruit, know they will get a hot reception."

English Children To Be 'Guests,' Not 'Refugees'

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP)—At least ten, perhaps more, English children fleeing from the war zone will be welcomed in Huntington homes "not as refugees but as guests," the American Association of University Women has announced.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Riley Griffiths forwarded affidavits that they are prepared to accommodate six children, most of them relatives, at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Kyle took steps to qualify them to entertain two youthful cousins of Mrs. Kyle's from Somersetshire. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gohen will be hosts to two small girls.

Many others have announced willingness to care for members of the refugee group to be sponsored by the local A. A. U. charter.

Drilling of New Well Watched with Interest

LOST CREEK, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP)—Prospectors are watching with intent interest a well two miles north of here. On it depends whether lease values will jump and the volume of gas will be increased greatly, they say.

Drills operated by the Hope Natural Gas Company are sinking the well into the famed Oriskany sands which lie hundreds of feet below the average well in this area.

Producers say that if the Oriskany produces as well in this section as it has in the Kanawha valley the days of the gas boom of earlier years will be re-lived.

A rotary drill method new to this section is being used. Water is forced down the drilling hole to the rotary bit. Stone, pulverized and mixed with water, then is pumped to the surface.

1,000 to 1 Offered By Lloyds in Policy Against Bomb Deaths

LONDON, Aug. 30 (AP) — A Briton's chance of getting killed or injured by a Nazi bomb is 1,000 to 1, Lloyds insurance brokers have decided in offering policies to civilians.

The premium rate will be one shilling (about twenty cents) per month for every fifth pounds sterling (approximately $200) of insurance.

A DRAMATIC TRIANGLE

With Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy both in love with Claudette Colbert, the dramatic triangle is all set in "Boom Town," spectacular oil drama coming to the Maryland screen. But there is another woman in the case, in the person of Hedy Lamarr, who rounds out one of the most sensational casts in the history of motion pictures.

IN HER LATEST

Shirley Temple's latest picture is "Young People" the Twentieth Century Fox picture which shows Sunday and through Wednesday at the Strand theater. "Young People" stars Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood.

Theaters Today

Musical Picture Is Scheduled by Strand

With Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood, "Young People," Twentieth Century-Fox picture, will be offered tomorrow at the Strand theater.

"Young People" is Shirley Temple's first musical picture in two years. There are five songs cleverly blended with the plot. The story deals with troupers Jack, Charlotte and Shirley who decide to retire from the stage in a small New England town.

A star of the stage for many years, Charlotte Greenwood, who plays Shirley's foster mother in the film, sets off her famous elongated legs. Opposite her is funster Jack Oakie in a role that provides ample scope for his antics.

Sharing the romantic lead in "Young People" are Arleen Whelan and George Montgomery. Kathleen Howard is also featured.

Errol Has Role In "Sea Hawk"

"The Sea Hawk," starring Errol Flynn has been scheduled by the New Liberty theater as the next feature attraction, and will open there today. In the supporting cast are Brenda Marshall, Claude Rains, Donald Crisp, Flora Robson and Alan Hale.

Background of the story of "The Sea Hawk" is England in the days of Queen Elizabeth. Among England's heroes of the time are sea fighters, who prey on the Spanish galleons, stripping them of their booty and bringing it home to swell England's dwindling treasury. Most daring and fearless of these privateers is Geoffrey Thorpe, the role portrayed by Flynn.

Western Film Is Showing at Garden

Rhythm, romance and roaring six-guns took over the Garden theater yesterday as Columbia's "Bullets For Rustlers" galloped across the screen. Charles Starrett comes through with another of his portrayals in the new film with Lorna Gray as his leading lady and the Sons of the Pioneers again provide a background for the adventure-filled saga of the Old West.

When a boy's mother refuses to let him own a puppy and he adopts a stray Great Dane instead, things begin to happen in "Little Orvie," RKO Radio's screen version of Booth Tarkington's story of childhood. The cast includes youngsters John Sheffield and Ann Todd and adults Ernest Truex and Dorothy Tree. The picture is now at the Garden.

Laraine Day Is Star Of Maryland Picture

"Too Many Husbands" Is Billed at Embassy

"Too Many Husbands" can prove somewhat troublesome, and Jean Arthur discovers that fact in the Embassy theater's forthcoming Columbia comedy, which opens tomorrow with Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas also starred.

Briefly, the story of "Too Many Husbands" is founded upon three logical items: Jean is married to reckless Fred, who is reported dead at sea. Jean marries the more stable Melvyn. Fred's best friend. Fred returns home.

In the cast of "Too Many Husbands," in addition to its popular stars, are such well-known character players as Harry Davenport, Dorothy Peterson, Melville Cooper and Tom Dugan. Claude Binyon penned the screenplay.

Last day showing of "The Ranger and the Lady" and also "The Captain is a Lady."

Australia was once known as New Holland.

Snead Beats Sarazen in Thrilling Match

Little Squire's Game Falls Apart On Final Nine

Three Hole Lead Is Blown In Last Eight Holes of Contest

Ralph Guldahl, Byron Nelson and Harold McSpaden Also Win

By GAYLE TALBOT

HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP) — Most of the color and the commotion went out of the P.G.A. Championship today when Gene Sarazen was beaten by Sam Snead on the thirty-sixth green in a heartbreaker, but four powerful young golfers survived to battle in the semi-finals tomorrow.

Besides Snead, those remaining in the match play classic were Ralph Guldahl, National Open Champion in 1937 and 1938; Byron Nelson, Open King in 1939, and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who recently lost his Champion Open title to Snead in a play-off.

Guldahl, who is reputed to be only so-so as a match player, didn't display any glaring weakness as he trimmed Ben Hogan, year's biggest money winner, 3 and 2. The husky, stoop-shouldered star shot a 69 at Hogan in their morning round and was eight under par when he closed him out on the thirty-fourth green.

Nelson is Easy Winner

Nelson, who meets Guldahl tomorrow, scored an easy 6 and 5 victory over Eddie Kirk of Framington, Mich., the only dark horse to reach the quarter-finals.

McSpaden, who had a terrible time beating Walt Hagen in his previous match, gave little Paul Runyan the day's worst shellacking, 8 and 6. Nobody could remember having seen Runyan, a twice former winner, absorb such a beating. He was four over par and floundering when the end came.

All the day's drama was concentrated in the tight duel between Snead and Sarazen, which saw the popular little squire come apart like a dollar pair of pants in a final tragic nine-hole stretch. A big part of the gallery scraped the mud from its shoes and went on home after he bowed out.

Sarazen, trying to win once more a trophy he first captured in 1922, shot a great 68 in the morning to take a two-up lead over the tall mountaineer who is one of the world's longest drivers. He shot a steady par 36 on the first nine in the afternoon to stand three up at the twenty-seventh hole and it looked like it was in the bag. Three up with nine to go and he was hitting his woods and irons straight and true.

Disaster Overtakes Sarazen

There was no hint of the impending disaster when Snead holed a good putt for a birdie on the twenty-ninth to cut his deficit to two holes. They halved the next, and the veteran still was two to the good with six to play.

Then Sarazen's game, which had been magnificent all week, finally went to pot. On the thirty-first hole, a long one, he drove into the rough, put his second behind a wide-spreading bush and wound up with a six, one up.

Came the thirty-third and he sprayed his drive into the tall and uncut again, flailed his recovery beyond the green, and the match was square. Sarazen looked sick. On the next hole, the thirty-fourth, Snead studied a 12-footer for a long time and knocked it in for a birdie to take the lead for the first time in the match.

They shot pars on the final two holes and Sarazen's great bid was ended.

North End Cops Championship with Double Victor

The second game which decided the championship was also won by North End with Mullan the winning and Rose the losing pitchers. Both teams gained a total of 7 hits. Buckle and Lindsay gathered 4 of their teammates 7 hits while Hammersmith and Mullan accounted for 6 of the North Enders hits.

IS GROVE GONE FROM MOUND FOR GOOD?

Many Grid Teams Plan To Abandon Huddle System

Coaches Are Searching for Smart Quarterbacks To Call Signals

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30 (AP)—A smart defense can kick the best-laid huddle plans all over the gridiron and the family circle method of calling plays is heading for the discard, Coach Ray Morrison of Temple university said today.

Fewer college teams than ever will use the huddle this fall, predicted the veteran coach who developed Southern Methodist's aerial circus. Without it "as many as twenty-five or thirty additional plays could be run off, giving spectators more action," he observed.

Morrison is searching for a smart quarterback to call signals. Until then, however, he intends to continue the huddle at least in the early part of the season. Intelligent quarterbacking, he acknowledged, is essential to signal barking.

Penn tried out signal calling from scrimmage in spring training. Coach George Munger said he would abolish the huddle this fall when the opposition offered "several defenses."

Munger agreed with Morrison that in modern football, one minute the defense is using a six-man line and then switches into a five or four man line as the offensive team emerges from the huddle. Then "the original play won't work at all."

In the Cornell game last year, Munger struck upon an alternate system of confusing the Cornell defense. Two sets of signals were given in the huddle. If Cornell switched the line strength, a key word was shouted from scrimmage and the alternate play was tried.

Villanova had used the huddle since Clipper Smith succeeded Harry Stuhldreher in 1936 but Smith also indicated he favors a return to signal calling.

Tennis Tournament Will Start Sunday

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP) — Play in the National Singles tennis championships at Forest Hills has been postponed until Sunday because of continued rain. The nine day tournament was originally scheduled to get underway yesterday.

A week of rain has made the twenty-three grass courts of the West Side Tennis Club almost mushy and officials had no alternative but to postpone the matches after the sun failed to break through again today.

The first day's program will start at one o'clock (EDT), U.S.L.T.A. officials said. Bobby Riggs and Alice Marble will defend the titles they won last year.

Local Boys Will Enter Boxing Tourney

Johnny Gambino, local boxing manager, will enter four boys in the Diamond Belt Tournament at Baltimore September 10. They are Jimmy Childress, 126, "Chink" Davis, 126, Billy Lynch, 135, and Jimmy Bowen, 112.

Childress, Davis and Lynch will compete in boxing matches at the Tomato Festival at Berkeley Springs today.

(End of season)

The Bi-State League baseball season will come to a close with the Labor day games with the Cumberland Colts having two games over the weekend. The locals play Hyndman there Sunday and Westvaco here Monday.

Eight games are carded for the various teams, Keyser plays at Westvaco today in the only Saturday contests, while three games are scheduled for Sunday and three for Monday.

The results of the games over the weekend will have no bearing on first place as Westvaco has clinched the league leadership. The Keyser Moose are almost certain of a play-off spot.

Secretary Don Shires announced Friday that arrangements for the title series will be made at a meeting next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the Clary Club. The first four teams—or in case of a tie the first five clubs—will send representatives to the session.

Two Clubs Active Today

When the schedule was drafted, today was left open but Keyser and Westvaco will meet in a double-header at Memorial Park, Westernport. Both are postponed contests, one originally slated August 18 at Keyser and the other earlier in the season. The first tilt will get under way at 1:30.

The Moose and Pulpmen are tied for second place with 15 victories and 11 setbacks apiece. In the four meetings to date, Westvaco scored three wins with Ed McNichol and Frank Steinbugl on the peak. McNichol bested the Moose 8-7 while Steinbugl turned back the West Virginians twice by 13-2 and 9-5 margins. Keyser's verdict over the Pulpmen, a 3-2 decision, was checked in by John Casey.

During the last few weeks, Keyser has been playing a much better brand of ball than Westvaco and a double victory would give the Moose an even break with Tommy McGuire's crew for the season. Keyser has won its last four contests and seven of its last nine while the Pulpmen have copped five of their last nine starts.

Colt Chances Better

Sunday, the Colts and Midland will begin their last-ditch scuffle for a playoff berth and a shot at the loop crown. The Dobbins will go the Hyndman, Pa., for a 2:30 tussle while the Red Sox and Westvaco will tangle at Westernport at 3 o'clock. In Sunday's other battle, Keyser and Frostburg will meet on the latter's field.

Monday's holiday slate calls for the Colts to entertain Westvaco at Community Park, Midland to be host to Keyser and Frostburg and Hyndman to clash at Frostburg.

Colt fans believe the Dobbins have a better than even chance to finish ahead of Midland. The locals should turn back Hyndman Sunday while Westvaco will be slightly favored over Midland, but on Monday, both the Cumberlanders and the Red Sox will be underdogs.

Commercial Bowling League Reorganized

The Commercial Bowling League will open its eleventh annual season Thursday night, September 12, on the Savoy lanes, it was announced by President Leo E. Leasure following a reorganization meeting Thursday night at the Savoy.

The loop, the oldest in Allegany county, will consist of six teams—Rosenbaum's, Times-News, United Accessories, Eiler Chevrolet, Nelson Neon and Nehi Bottling.

The Nehi club operated last year as the Railway Express, Times-News copped the 1939-40 title with the Expressmen losing in the roll-off.

The schedule will run for 30 weeks and be divided into halves. Prizes will be awarded the championship team and individuals turning in the best average for the season, the highest score for one game and the highest score for one set.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—It's pretty hard to work up a convincing case in behalf of any club except the Cincinnati Reds in the National League pennant race. The other teams have been caught in a strange henhouse at midnight, so far as anything might be said in their behalf.

This state of affairs grieves Bill Brandt sorely. Not that he doesn't want the Reds to win. He doesn't care, out loud, anyway, who wins. Bill Brandt is the National League publicity director, and he must be strictly neutral, at least until the World Series, at which time, lately anyway, he must be just about crazy.

What grieves Bill is that the traditional National League September race promises to be about as tight as a bin of oats. And to make matters worse, that other league, as Bill refers to it, is keeping the fans guessing.

But Bill isn't a guy to give up as long as he has mathematics on his side or can make old records play a soothing tune.

"Remember back in 1935 when the Cubs, after hanging around the .500 mark a good part of the season, won twenty-one straight games and the pennant?" he asks.

"And in 1926 and again in 1934 the Cardinals won the pennant on their last road trips. Why, last year the Reds just lasted to win, as they say at the race tracks. You can't tell what might happen."

Bill paused in this graveyard whistling, leaving the impression that fire, flood and tornado not only were liable to descend upon the Reds, but virtually certain to visit them.

As a matter of fact, and record, the Reds haven't been the best team in the last couple of months. It was a couple of other clubs, as they say—the Cardinals and the Pirates.

The Cards suffered their forty-first defeat July 11, and since then have been playing .700 ball, winning 35 games and losing 15 through last Wednesday.

The Pirates suffered their thirty-ninth defeat July 5. Since then they have won 36 and lost 19 for a .655 pace. The Reds since July 5 had, through Wednesday, played .596 ball with 31 wins against 21 defeats.

At that, Cincinnati, with a season's average of .630, was a game and a half ahead of the Cincinnati team of 1939. On Aug. 29 last year the Reds had won 73 and lost 45, and were five and one-half games ahead of St. Louis. On Aug. 29 this year they had won 75 and lost 44, and were seven and one-half games ahead of Brooklyn.

For downright consistency this year the palm must go to the Cubs who have practically been sitting on the .500 mark. They've touched it eight times since July 4, and except for one lapse they always bounced upward, although they never got more than four games away.

In case all these figures might be a little confusing to you folks, you can appreciate how they must appear to Bill Brandt, who is adding and subtracting and multiplying and dividing trying to get an answer that will show there's a race left in the old league yet.

Just when he thinks his figuring is going to show a profit, he always comes out in the red, so to speak. There's no keeping that Cincinnati club anywhere except in the center of the picture. It's the eight-ball, and it looks like the seven other clubs are going to stay right behind it.

Brooklyn Takes Final Game from Cincinnati Reds

Lead of League Leaders Is Cut to Seven and One-half Games

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Cincinnati Reds 6 to 2 today in a fare-well gesture to the West, cutting the National League Champions' lead to 7½ games before heading for home.

It was a strange ball game that the two teams served up to 10,652 spectators.

The usually light-hitting Reds collected 10 safeties, including Frank McCormick's eighteenth home run and six doubles off Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin, yet were held practically helpless. McCormick's homer came in the first inning and the only other time the Reds were able to score was in the sixth when Ernie Lombardi and Jim Ripple hit successive doubles.

Furthermore the usually faultless fielding champions made three errors behind Gene (Junior) Thompson and Joe Beggs. They gave the Dodgers only 11 hits, one more than Cincinnati collected, but two of them were homers and on four different occasions Brooklyn bunched two or more hits in an inning.

Pete Reiser and Dolph Camilli hit home runs into the right field bleachers in the sixth inning, Camilli's being his 18th.

Merchants Cop Series Opener by Forfeit

The North End Merchants got the jump in the best-of-three series to determine the City Softball League championship by claiming yesterday's scheduled game with the Keegan Gassers by forfeit. The game was slated for the Community Park field and was awarded the North End team when the Gassers failed to put in an appearance.

Bill Hoff, the umpire assigned to handle the contest declared the field in a fit condition. The date of the second battle of the series will be announced in a few days by League President Clifford Fearer.

Snead Beats Sarazen in Thrilling Match

Little Squire's Game Falls Apart On Final Nine

Three Hole Lead Is Blown In Last Eight Holes of Contest

By GAYLE TALBOT

HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP) — Most of the color and the commotion went out of the P.G.A. Championship today when Gene Sarazen was beaten by Sam Snead on the thirty-sixth green in a heartbreaker, but four powerful young golfers survived to battle in the semi-finals tomorrow.

Besides Snead, those remaining in the match play classic were Ralph Guldahl, National Open Champion in 1937 and 1938; Byron Nelson, Open King in 1939, and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who recently lost his Champion Open title to Snead in a play-off.

Guldahl, who is reputed to be only so-so as a match player, didn't display any glaring weakness as he trimmed Ben Hogan, year's biggest money winner, 3 and 2. The husky, stoop-shouldered star shot a 69 at Hogan in their morning round and was eight under par when he closed him out on the thirty-fourth green.

Nelson is Easy Winner

Nelson, who meets Guldahl tomorrow, scored an easy 6 and 5 victory over Eddie Kirk of Framington, Mich., the only dark horse to reach the quarter-finals.

McSpaden, who had a terrible time beating Walt Hagen in his previous match, gave little Paul Runyan the day's worst shellacking, 8 and 6. Nobody could remember having seen Runyan, a twice former winner, absorb such a beating. He was four over par and floundering when the end came.

All the day's drama was concentrated in the tight duel between Snead and Sarazen, which saw the popular little squire come apart like a dollar pair of pants in a final tragic nine-hole stretch. A big part of the gallery scraped the mud from its shoes and went on home after he bowed out.

Sarazen, trying to win once more a trophy he first captured in 1922, shot a great 68 in the morning to take a two-up lead over the tall mountaineer who is one of the world's longest drivers. He shot a steady par 36 on the first nine in the afternoon to stand three up at the twenty-seventh hole and it looked like it was in the bag. Three up with nine to go and he was hitting his woods and irons straight and true.

Disaster Overtakes Sarazen

There was no hint of the impending disaster when Snead holed a good putt for a birdie on the twenty-ninth to cut his deficit to two holes. They halved the next, and the veteran still was two to the good with six to play.

Then Sarazen's game, which had been magnificent all week, finally went to pot. On the thirty-first hole, a long one, he drove into the rough, put his second behind a wide-spreading bush and wound up with a six, one up.

Came the thirty-third and he sprayed his drive into the tall and uncut again, flailed his recovery beyond the green, and the match was square. Sarazen looked sick. On the next hole, the thirty-fourth, Snead studied a 12-footer for a long time and knocked it in for a birdie to take the lead for the first time in the match.

They shot pars on the final two holes and Sarazen's great bid was ended.

North End Cops Championship with Double Victor

North End defeated West Side by 24-1 and 8-5 scores to take the championship of the Times-News League.

Hammersmith gave up 7 hits in the first game while his teammates rolled up a total of 16 hits. Lindsay was the losing pitcher.

R. Mackert and Cavanaugh led the winners with 3 hits apiece while Bergman and Lindsay paced the losers with 4 between them.

The second game which decided the championship was also won by North End with Mullan the winning and Rose the losing pitchers. Both teams gained a total of 7 hits. Buckle and Lindsay gathered 4 of their teammates 7 hits while Hammersmith and Mullan accounted for 6 of the North Enders hits.

The Cleveland city council is so sure the Indians are "in" that it has voted $8,000 for a new ramp at the Municipal Stadium to accommodate the world series crowd . . . Baseball men are saying the Tigers finally are getting some return on that dough ($70,000) they spent for Freddy Hutchinson because of the way he pitched Detroit out of its slump.

Challedon Will Run In Washington Handicap

LAUREL, Md., Aug. 30 (AP) — W. L. Brann's Challedon, "horse of the year" in 1939 and a leading campaigner this season, will head the list of forty-seven eligibles for the $15,000 Washington Handicap to be run at the fall meeting here in October.

The list, announced today, promises to give Challedon plenty of competition, for several of this year's outstanding handicap performers also are expected to run.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Gallahadion, winner of the Kentucky Derby; Honey Cloud, Mrs. A. J. Abel's Dixie Winner and George D. Widener's Eight Thirty, who romped off with the Massachusetts Handicap, are among those given top billing for the event.

Other well-regarded eligibles include: C. S. Howard's Kayak II, Belair Stud's Isolator, Brandywine Stable's Masked General, Arnold Hangar's Dit, Saratoga Stable's Volitant, Shandon Stable's Burning Star, A. G. Vanderbilt's Nedayr and Wheatley Stable's Gilded Knight.

IS GROVE GONE FROM MOUND FOR GOOD?

Coaches Are Searching for Smart Quarterbacks To Call Signals

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30 (AP)—A smart defense can kick the best-laid huddle plans all over the gridiron and the family circle method of calling plays is heading for the discard, Coach Ray Morrison of Temple university said today.

Fewer college teams than ever will use the huddle this fall, predicted the veteran coach who developed Southern Methodist's aerial circus. Without it "as many as twenty-five or thirty additional plays could be run off, giving spectators more action," he observed.

Morrison is searching for a smart quarterback to call signals. Until then, however, he intends to continue the huddle at least in the early part of the season. Intelligent quarterbacking, he acknowledged, is essential to signal barking.

Penn tried out signal calling from scrimmage in spring training. Coach George Munger said he would abolish the huddle this fall when the opposition offered "several defenses."

Munger agreed with Morrison that in modern football, one minute the defense is using a six-man line and then switches into a five or four man line as the offensive team emerges from the huddle. Then "the original play won't work at all."

In the Cornell game last year, Munger struck upon an alternate system of confusing the Cornell defense. Two sets of signals were given in the huddle. If Cornell switched the line strength, a key word was shouted from scrimmage and the alternate play was tried.

Villanova had used the huddle since Clipper Smith succeeded Harry Stuhldreher in 1936 but Smith also indicated he favors a return to signal calling.

Tennis Tournament Will Start Sunday

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP) — Play in the National Singles tennis championships at Forest Hills has been postponed until Sunday because of continued rain. The nine day tournament was originally scheduled to get underway yesterday.

A week of rain has made the twenty-three grass courts of the West Side Tennis Club almost mushy and officials had no alternative but to postpone the matches after the sun failed to break through again today.

The first day's program will start at one o'clock (EDT), U.S.L.T.A. officials said. Bobby Riggs and Alice Marble will defend the titles they won last year.

Local Boys Will Enter Boxing Tourney

Johnny Gambino, local boxing manager, will enter four boys in the Diamond Belt Tournament at Baltimore September 10. They are Jimmy Childress, 126, "Chink" Davis, 126, Billy Lynch, 135, and Jimmy Bowen, 112.

Childress, Davis and Lynch will compete in boxing matches at the Tomato Festival at Berkeley Springs today.

(End of season)

The Bi-State League baseball season will come to a close with the Labor day games with the Cumberland Colts having two games over the weekend. The locals play Hyndman there Sunday and Westvaco here Monday.

Eight games are carded for the various teams, Keyser plays at Westvaco today in the only Saturday contests, while three games are scheduled for Sunday and three for Monday.

The results of the games over the weekend will have no bearing on first place as Westvaco has clinched the league leadership. The Keyser Moose are almost certain of a play-off spot.

Secretary Don Shires announced Friday that arrangements for the title series will be made at a meeting next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the Clary Club. The first four teams—or in case of a tie the first five clubs—will send representatives to the session.

Two Clubs Active Today

When the schedule was drafted, today was left open but Keyser and Westvaco will meet in a doubleheader at Memorial Park, Westernport. Both are postponed contests, one originally slated August 18 at Keyser and the other earlier in the season. The first tilt will get under way at 1:30.

The Moose and Pulpmen are tied for second place with 15 victories and 11 setbacks apiece. In the four meetings to date, Westvaco scored three wins with Ed McNichol and Frank Steinbugl on the peak. McNichol bested the Moose 8-7 while Steinbugl turned back the West Virginians twice by 13-2 and 9-5 margins. Keyser's verdict over the Pulpmen, a 3-2 decision, was checked in by John Casey.

During the last few weeks, Keyser has been playing a much better brand of ball than Westvaco and a double victory would give the Moose an even break with Tommy McGuire's crew for the season. Keyser has won its last four contests and seven of its last nine while the Pulpmen have copped five of their last nine starts.

Colt Chances Better

Sunday, the Colts and Midland will begin their last-ditch scuffle for a playoff berth and a shot at the loop crown. The Dobbins will go the Hyndman, Pa., for a 2:30 tussle while the Red Sox and Westvaco will tangle at Westernport at 3 o'clock. In Sunday's other battle, Keyser and Frostburg will meet on the latter's field.

Monday's holiday slate calls for the Colts to entertain Westvaco at Community Park, Midland to be host to Keyser and Frostburg and Hyndman to clash at Frostburg.

Colt fans believe the Dobbins have a better than even chance to finish ahead of Midland. The locals should turn back Hyndman Sunday while Westvaco will be slightly favored over Midland, but on Monday, both the Cumberlanders and the Red Sox will be underdogs.

Commercial Bowling League Reorganized

The Commercial Bowling League will open its eleventh annual season Thursday night, September 12, on the Savoy lanes, it was announced by President Leo E. Leasure following a reorganization meeting Thursday night at the Savoy.

The loop, the oldest in Allegany county, will consist of six teams—Rosenbaum's, Times-News, United Accessories, Eiler Chevrolet, Nelson Neon and Nehi Bottling.

The Nehi club operated last year as the Railway Express. Times-News copped the 1939-40 title with the Expressmen losing in the roll-off.

The schedule will run for 30 weeks and be divided into halves. Prizes will be awarded the championship team and individuals turning in the best average for the season, the highest score for one game and the highest score for one set.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—It's pretty hard to work up a convincing case in behalf of any club except the Cincinnati Reds in the National League pennant race. The other teams have been caught in a strange henhouse at midnight, so far as anything might be said in their behalf.

This state of affairs grieves Bill Brandt sorely. Not that he doesn't want the Reds to win. He doesn't care, out loud, anyway, who wins. Bill Brandt is the National League publicity director, and he must be strictly neutral, at least until the World Series, at which time, lately anyway, he must be just about crazy.

What grieves Bill is that the traditional National League September race promises to be about as tight as a bin of oats. And to make matters worse, that other league, as Bill refers to it, is keeping the fans guessing.

But Bill isn't a guy to give up as long as he has mathematics on his side or can make old records play a soothing tune.

"Remember back in 1935 when the Cubs, after hanging around the .500 mark a good part of the season, won twenty-one straight games and the pennant?" he asks.

"And in 1926 and again in 1934 the Cardinals won the pennant on their last road trips. Why, last year the Reds just lasted to win, as they say at the race tracks. You can't tell what might happen."

Bill paused in this graveyard whistling, leaving the impression that fire, flood and tornado not only were liable to descend upon the Reds, but virtually certain to visit them.

As a matter of fact, and record, the Reds haven't been the best team in the last couple of months. It was a couple of other clubs, as they say—the Cardinals and the Pirates.

The Cards suffered their forty-first defeat July 11, and since then have been playing .700 ball, winning 35 games and losing 15 through last Wednesday.

The Pirates suffered their thirty-ninth defeat July 5. Since then they have won 36 and lost 19 for a .655 pace. The Reds since July 5 had, through Wednesday, played .596 ball with 31 wins against 21 defeats.

At that, Cincinnati, with a season's average of .630, was a game and a half ahead of the Cincinnati team of 1939. On Aug. 29 last year the Reds had won 73 and lost 45, and were five and one-half games ahead of St. Louis. On Aug. 29 this year they had won 75 and lost 44, and were seven and one-half games ahead of Brooklyn.

For downright consistency this year the palm must go to the Cubs who have practically been sitting on the .500 mark. They've touched it eight times since July 4, and except for one lapse they always bounced upward, although they never got more than four games away.

In case all these figures might be a little confusing to you folks, you can appreciate how they must appear to Bill Brandt, who is adding and subtracting and multiplying and dividing trying to get an answer that will show there's a race left in the old league yet.

Just when he thinks his figuring is going to show a profit, he always comes out in the red, so to speak. There's no keeping that Cincinnati club anywhere except in the center of the picture. It's the eight-ball, and it looks like the seven other clubs are going to stay right behind it.

Brooklyn Takes Final Game from Cincinnati Reds

Lead of League Leaders Is Cut to Seven and One-half Games

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Cincinnati Reds 6 to 2 today in a farewell gesture to the West, cutting the National League Champions' lead to 7½ games before heading for home.

It was a strange ball game that the two teams served up to 10,652 spectators.

The usually light-hitting Reds collected 10 safeties, including Frank McCormick's eighteenth home run and six doubles off Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin, yet were held practically helpless. McCormick's homer came in the first inning and the only other time the Reds were able to score was in the sixth when Ernie Lombardi and Jim Ripple hit successive doubles.

Furthermore the usually faultless fielding champions made three errors behind Gene (Junior) Thompson and Joe Beggs. They gave the Dodgers only 11 hits, one more than Cincinnati collected, but two of them were homers and on four different occasions Brooklyn bunched two or more hits in an inning.

Pete Reiser and Dolph Camilli hit home runs into the right field bleachers in the sixth inning, Camilli's being his 18th.

Merchants Cop Series Opener by Forfeit

The North End Merchants got the jump in the best-of-three series to determine the City Softball League championship by claiming yesterday's scheduled game with the Keegan Gassers by forfeit. The game was slated for the Community Park field and was awarded the North End team when the Gassers failed to put in an appearance.

Bill Hoff, the umpire assigned to handle the contest declared the field in a fit condition. The date of the second battle of the series will be announced in a few days by League President Clifford Fearer.

Whirlaway and New World To Race Today

Challedon and Isolater also Are Entered

Possibility of Thrilling Contest in Hopeful Stakes Is Seen

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 30, (AP) — The rubber meeting between Whirlaway and New York in the $43,000 Hopeful Stakes and possibilities of another thrilling horse race between Challedon and old Isolater give Saratoga its best getaway day card in years tomorrow.

Not since Gallant Fox and Whichone staged their now-I-win-now-you-do tour of the Eastern circuit ten years ago has the relative merits of two thoroughbreds so captured the imagination of race lovers as the current battle for the juvenile championship between Warren Wright's Whirlaway and Alfred Vanderbilt's New World.

They are outstanding contenders for the 1940 two-year-old title. Each has whipped the other once before at Saratoga and all week the racing crowd has been betting everything from boxes of cigars to an automobile or two on the outcome of their hopeful clash.

Other entries in the six-horse field for the race over six and a half furlongs are Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention, J. W. Dial's Hy-Cop, Wright's Two Tops and W. E. Boeing's Twinkippy.

In the Saratoga Cup at a mile and three-quarters, W. L. Brann's Handicap star Challedon faces the winner of last year's race in William Woodward's Isolater. Also entered is Fenelon, the Woodward three-year-old that won the Travers here two years ago.

SAYS DIZ, RECALLED, 'WON'T DISAPPOINT' CUBS

Why Cubs Probe Dean For Buried Treasure

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—Information from the Texas League says that while there is not a ghost of a hop on Jerome H. Deans fast ball any more, the old Arkansas traveller has been pitching with considerable application and relish from a notch about one-quarter over sidearm, winning eight and losing six for Tulsa since the Chicago Cubs farmed him out down there for "experience."

Giving his age (with a straight face) as 29, Mr. Dean now announces that he is ready for another whirl at the big time, and the Cubs are calling him back to work a series opener against Cincinnati next week.

It may be just a coincidence, but the last time he was 29, Diz pitched a very good ball game. That was about six years ago. As I recall it, he shut out the Pirates.

My scout in the southwest quotes me a highly optimistic Dean.

Knows What He Can Do

"What I needed," says Diz, "was a chance to practice this delivery in action. Up with the Cubs I was only working a few innings a week, and you never can find out nothing about your pitching unless you work in a game. Down in this league I've been in seventeen games in two months, and I know what I can do.

"This ain't a real sidearm delivery I got now. I still give it plenty from the shoulder. But it's the easiest motion I can find; it don't hurt my arm, and I can put the ball where I want it. Hell, I don't need no stuff in the National League as long as I can find that plate and pitch to spots. I know more about them National League hitters than their own mothers do."

Whether the Cubs really believe Diz can be a winning pitcher again, I don't know. My suspicion is that there is a business angle to this Cincinnati performance next week. Well advertised, the "New Dean" should draw a great crowd to Wrigley Field September 7. The Cubs are going nowhere this year. They could use a hatful of money at the gate, for Mr. P. K. Wrigley, though handsomely endowed with chewing-gum wealth, likes to operate his separate baseball enterprise at a profit.

Mr. Wrigley probably feels that Mr. Dean still owes him a packet. I have been studying the ramifications of the famous Chicago-St. Louis deal of two years ago, and the more I inspect it, the better it looks for Branch Rickey and the worse for Mr. Wrigley.

As you all know, when Mr. Wrigley asked trader Rickey for a price on Dean, the trader communed with his soul for a moment; rolled his eyes toward Heaven, and said in a sepulchral tone "$185,000." When he speaks in that tone, the trader is so sharp that you will cut your fingers touching him.

Asked For Some Bums

Mr. Wrigley quickly did sums in his head. A hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars meant 3,700,000 packs of gum. Mr. Wrigley stole a look at the trader. The trader was still staring upward, with his hands folded.

"All right," said Mr. Wrigley. "It's a deal."

"Ah—one moment, my dear Wrigley," said trader Rickey piously. "Money alone, you know, will not heal the breach left in my ball club by the sale of this magnificent pitching specimen. Just so I can put a team on the field—just to save my face—why not throw in two or three of the worst bums on your club? Such as—ah—Curtis Davis and that obscure left-hander, name of Shoun."

"All right," said Mr. Wrigley, whose mouth was watering for Dean by now.

The Chicago tycoon took away his Dean, and trader Rickey rolled piously off to the bank to deposit the 185 grand. He then placed Davis and Shoun in Cardinal uniforms and proceeded to watch them grow.

Last year Davis won twenty-two games while Dean was winning six. When Davis outlived his usefulness, trader Rickey did not send him free to the Texas League. He sold him to Brooklyn, along with Medwick, for $150,000 and an outfielder named Koy, who is now outhitting Medwick.

As for Shoun, he is now one of the handiest gentlemen in St. Louis uniform, with ten games won and many saved. All in all, I would estimate trader Rickey's profit on the original deal at close to half a million dollars, with possibly more to come.

No wonder the Cubs are still probing that Dean for buried treasure.

Red Sox Defeat Athletics and Gain on Yanks

Capture Opening Game of Series in Philadelphia 5 to 4

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30 (AP) — Boston's Red Sox gained a half game on the idle third-place New York Yankees today by capturing the opener of a four-game series with the Athletics 5 to 4.

Doc Cramer's double and Ted Williams' triple, scoring Cramer, broke a 4-4 deadlock in the seventh to give Boston the decision. The Sox got 11 hits off three A's pitchers.

Relieving Fritz Oestermueller on the mound in the fourth, Joe Heving held the A's to two hits in his five and one-third innings of duty.

Coach Gets 'Bird'

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Aug. 30 — Chillicothe business college students welcomed their new football coach, Bob White, with bird calls every time he stepped on the campus. The situation hit a new high after a Tinsman (Ark.) candidate asked for gridiron equipment and signed as Bob White, too.

Old Timers' Year

This has been Old Timers' Year, doubled and redoubled. Nothing quite like it. It began with the veteran Seabiscuit setting an all-time money record last March and it was still under way this week with Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen barging into the select group at Hershey.

On the way through there was the 40-year-old veteran, Ted Lyons of the White Sox, shutting out Red Ruffing, 36, in one of the Yankees' vital games—Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons pacing the National League hurlers—Jimmy Foxx still in hot pursuit of the home run top.

Hagen was playing in U. S. Opens 28 years ago—back in 1912. He was winning them 26 years ago. At the age of 48 he proved at Hershey that his skill remains.

"And that ain't money," Seabiscuit said.

Who is your nomination for 1940's top Old Timer—Seabiscuit, Hagen, Sarazen, Fitzsimmons, Foxx, Ted Lyons, Connie Mack? How about Mr. Thomas Hitchcock who has been schooling steeplechasers for 61 years and is still leading the pack? The year 1879, when he started, is a trifle more than yesterday. And a young fellow named Lonnie Stagg, at 78, is still moving in a hurry on the Pacific coast—tennis before breakfast, and coaching a football team three hours later each day. When you are good, the years slide off.

Riggs at Forest Hills

Bobby Riggs, the main winner in U. S. tennis for the last two years, will be no Bill Tilden, no Vines or Budge, in the tennis championship which opens today.

Riggs as a tennis player doesn't belong in this company. But he can stick his teeth into a tough match as well as anyone that ever played. Riggs makes up in competitive soul what he lacks as a stylist or power player. Either Kovacs or McNeill may remove his scalp, but only with the best they have.

A Tilden, a Billy Johnston, a Vines or a Budge do not stroll into the offing every other day or so. The glamour of a big name is missing, but so is the walkover.

The Main Strain

"A flock of people seem to think the big strain is on the Yankees from here out," Bill Dickey says. "I don't think so. The big strain is on the pacemakers. We either do or we don't. Just a little while back and we were counted out. They were counting nine when we finally got up and started swinging. We were in the spot where we had everything to win, and nothing much to lose that we hadn't already lost by a five-month slump.

"We know we've got to keep on going. We can't afford to blow many. Our main job is to bring down Cleveland and Detroit. We took both over for six straight at the last meeting—and I don't believe that will build up the confidence I like to have when I'm aiming at a quail."

(I can testify that Bill Dickey's confidence when it comes to Arkansas quail is practically 100 per cent).

The Ides of September

The late Mr. Caesar refused to be annoyed or concerned about the Ides of March. Now the Ides of September are here, when the "Beware" sign will be hung for many champions and challengers — the Indians and Tigers in the American League—Bud Ward in the amateur golf championship—Riggs at Forest Hills—and the Conn-Pastor pugilistic pastoral in New York.

September is loaded to the top of the main mast with action in every sport the nation follows.

Just talked with Homer Norton of Texas A. and M. "I've been around around football for a long time," he said, "but I've never seen anything like this season promises to be. Any team that can come through unbeaten in the upper brackets will be promoting a miracle—I mean Ohio State, Cornell, Tulane, Texas A. and M., Duke, Southern California, Michigan, Minnesota, Fordham, Princeton, Tennessee and a lot more. They'll be due for a hard collision before we get the next good snow.

"Honestly, minus any blarney, I've never heard of as many good teams before in one college year. As Bob Zuppke used to say, 'You can lose 'em all—and still look good.'"

After a week's visit with a flock of coaches, I asked Homer to give me a few sectional selections.

"Look out for S. M. U. in the Southwest," he said. "Tulane in the deep South—Duke in the Southeast, with Tennessee and Georgia Tech close—Cornell in the Ivy with Princeton crowding—Boston College and Fordham—Ohio State, Minnesota and Michigan in the Big Ten—Notre Dame always in there — Southern California and Washington in the Far West—Nebraska in the Big Six.

"And yet every one of these teams can be beaten by one or more rivals. And most of them will be. Maybe all of them."

Aquatic Club Enters Meet at Washington

Preparations for entering the Shoreham Hotel A. C. meet at Washington, D. C., September 21 were completed at the weekly meeting of the Cumberland Aquatic Club last night at 7:30 at the Central Y.M.C.A. A practice session in the "Y" pool will follow.

The club's activities will be switched from Constitution Park to the "Y" during the winter months. A bowling league is planned while winter swim meets at Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburgh also appear on the program.

Bagle Club Is Buying Game Refugee

SALISBURY, Md., Aug. 30 (AP) — The Peninsula Beagle Club is completing final arrangements for the purchase of a 153 acre game refugee and hunting preserve, Secretary J. Wallace B. Pollitt announced today.

The club, composed of fifty members representing every section of the Delmarva Peninsula, is buying the Hitchcock farm in Wicomico county, and the Johnson school property. The former schoolhouse will be converted into a clubhouse.

Whirlaway and New World To Race Today

Challedon and Isolater also Are Entered

Possibility of Thrilling Contest in Hopeful Stakes Is Seen

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 30, (AP) — The rubber meeting between Whirlaway and New York in the $43,000 Hopeful Stakes and possibilities of another thrilling horse race between Challedon and old Isolater give Saratoga its best getaway day card in years tomorrow.

Not since Gallant Fox and Whichone staged their now-I-win-now-you-do tour of the Eastern circuit ten years ago has the relative merits of two thoroughbreds so captured the imagination of race lovers as the current battle for the juvenile championship between Warren Wright's Whirlaway and Alfred Vanderbilt's New World.

They are outstanding contenders for the 1940 two-year-old title. Each has whipped the other once before at Saratoga and all week the racing crowd has been betting everything from boxes of cigars to an automobile or two on the outcome of their hopeful clash.

Other entries in the six-horse field for the race over six and a half furlongs are Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention, J. W. Dial's Hy-Cop, Wright's Two Tops and W. E. Boeing's Twinkippy.

In the Saratoga Cup at a mile and three-quarters, W. L. Brann's Handicap star Challedon faces the winner of last year's race in William Woodward's Isolater. Also entered is Fenelon, the Woodward three-year-old that won the Travers here two years ago.

SAYS DIZ, RECALLED, 'WON'T DISAPPOINT' CUBS

Red Sox Defeat Athletics and Gain on Yanks

Capture Opening Game of Series in Philadelphia 5 to 4

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30 (AP) — Boston's Red Sox gained a half game on the idle third-place New York Yankees today by capturing the opener of a four-game series with the Athletics 5 to 4.

Doc Cramer's double and Ted Williams' triple, scoring Cramer, broke a 4-4 deadlock in the seventh to give Boston the decision. The Sox got 11 hits off three A's pitchers.

Relieving Fritz Oestermueller on the mound in the fourth, Joe Heving held the A's to two hits in his five and one-third innings of duty.

Coach Gets 'Bird'

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Aug. 30 — Chillicothe business college students welcomed their new football coach, Bob White, with bird calls every time he stepped on the campus. The situation hit a new high after a Tinsman (Ark.) candidate asked for gridiron equipment and signed as Bob White, too.

Why Cubs Probe Dean For Buried Treasure

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—Information from the Texas League says that while there is not a ghost of a hop on Jerome H. Deans fast ball any more, the old Arkansas traveller has been pitching with considerable application and relish from a notch about one-quarter over sidearm, winning eight and losing six for Tulsa since the Chicago Cubs farmed him out down there for "experience."

Giving his age (with a straight face) as 29, Mr. Dean now announces that he is ready for another whirl at the big time, and the Cubs are calling him back to work a series opener against Cincinnati next week.

It may be just a coincidence, but the last time he was 29, Diz pitched a very good ball game. That was about six years ago. As I recall it, he shut out the Pirates.

My scout in the southwest quotes me a highly optimistic Dean.

Knows What He Can Do

"What I needed," says Diz, "was a chance to practice this delivery in action. Up with the Cubs I was only working a few innings a week, and you never can find out nothing about your pitching unless you work in a game. Down in this league I've been in seventeen games in two months, and I know what I can do.

"This ain't a real sidearm delivery I got now. I still give it plenty from the shoulder. But it's the easiest motion I can find; it don't hurt my arm, and I can put the ball where I want it. Hell, I don't need no stuff in the National League as long as I can find that plate and pitch to spots. I know more about them National League hitters than their own mothers do."

Whether the Cubs really believe Diz can be a winning pitcher again, I don't know. My suspicion is that there is a business angle to this Cincinnati performance next week. Well advertised, the "New Dean" should draw a great crowd to Wrigley Field September 7. The Cubs are going nowhere this year. They could use a hatful of money at the gate, for Mr. P. K. Wrigley, though handsomely endowed with chewing-gum wealth, likes to operate his separate baseball enterprise at a profit.

Mr. Wrigley probably feels that Mr. Dean still owes him a packet. I have been studying the ramifications of the famous Chicago-St. Louis deal of two years ago, and the more I inspect it, the better it looks for Branch Rickey and the worse for Mr. Wrigley.

As you all know, when Mr. Wrigley asked trader Rickey for a price on Dean, the trader communed with his soul for a moment, rolled his eyes toward Heaven, and said in a sepulchral tone "$185,000." When he speaks in that tone, the trader is so sharp that you will cut your fingers touching him.

Asked For Some Bums

Mr. Wrigley quickly did sums in his head. A hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars meant 3,700,000 packs of gum. Mr. Wrigley stole a look at the trader. The trader was still staring upward, with his hands folded.

"All right," said Mr. Wrigley. "It's a deal."

"Ah—one moment, my dear Wrigley," said trader Rickey piously. "Money alone, you know, will not heal the breach left in my ball club by the sale of this magnificent pitching specimen. Just so I can put a team on the field—just to save my face—why not throw in two or three of the worst bums on your club? Such as—ah—Curtis Davis and that obscure left-hander, name of Shoun."

"All right," said Mr. Wrigley, whose mouth was watering for Dean by now.

The Chicago tycoon took away his Dean, and trader Rickey rolled piously off to the bank to deposit the 185 grand. He then placed Davis and Shoun in Cardinal uniforms and proceeded to watch them grow.

Last year Davis won twenty-two games while Dean was winning six. When Davis outlived his usefulness, trader Rickey did not send him free to the Texas League. He sold him to Brooklyn, along with Medwick, for $150,000 and an outfielder named Koy, who is now outhitting Medwick.

As for Shoun, he is now one of the handiest gentlemen in St. Louis uniform, with ten games won and many saved. All in all, I would estimate trader Rickey's profit on the original deal at close to half a million dollars, with possibly more to come.

No wonder the Cubs are still probing that Dean for buried treasure.

Old Timers' Year

This has been Old Timers' Year, doubled and redoubled. Nothing quite like it. It began with the veteran Seabiscuit setting an all-time money record last March and it was still under way this week with Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen barging into the select group at Hershey.

On the way through there was the 40-year-old veteran, Ted Lyons of the White Sox, shutting out Red Ruffing, 36, in one of the Yankees' vital games—Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons pacing the National League hurlers—Jimmy Foxx still in hot pursuit of the home run top.

Hagen was playing in U. S. Opens 28 years ago—back in 1912. He was winning them 26 years ago. At the age of 48 he proved at Hershey that his skill remains.

Time is one of the true tests, when you start sizing up champions. No one knows how far Challedon might have gone along the road of gold if W. L. Brann, his owner, hadn't decided to retire the Maryland champion at an early date with over $250,000 for a target in the next nine months.

"And that ain't money," Seabiscuit said.

Who is your nomination for 1940's top Old Timer—Seabiscuit, Hagen, Sarazen, Fitzsimmons, Foxx, Ted Lyons, Connie Mack? How about Mr. Thomas Hitchcock who has been schooling steeplechasers for 61 years and is still leading the pack? The year 1879, when he started, is a trifle more than yesterday. And a young fellow named Lonnie Stagg, at 78, is still moving in a hurry on the Pacific coast—tennis before breakfast, and coaching a football team three hours later each day. When you are good, the years slide off.

Riggs at Forest Hills

Bobby Riggs, the main winner in U. S. tennis for the last two years, will be no Bill Tilden, no Vines or Budge, in the tennis championship which opens today.

Riggs as a tennis player doesn't belong in this company. But he can stick his teeth into a tough match as well as anyone that ever played. Riggs makes up in competitive soul what he lacks as a stylist or power player. Either Kovacs or McNeill may remove his scalp, but only with the best they have.

A Tilden, a Billy Johnston, a Vines or a Budge do not stroll into the offing every other day or so. The glamour of a big name is missing, but so is the walkover.

The Main Strain

"A flock of people seem to think the big strain is on the Yankees from here out," Bill Dickey says. "I don't think so. The big strain is on the pacemakers. We either do or we don't. Just a little while back and we were counted out. They were counting nine when we finally got up and started swinging. We were in the spot where we had everything to win, and nothing much to lose that we hadn't already lost by a five-month slump.

"We know we've got to keep on going. We can't afford to blow many. Our main job is to bring down Cleveland and Detroit. We took both over for six straight at the last meeting—and I don't believe that will build up the confidence I like to have when I'm aiming at a quail."

(I can testify that Bill Dickey's confidence when it comes to Arkansas quail is practically 100 per cent).

The Ides of September

The late Mr. Caesar refused to be annoyed or concerned about the Ides of March. Now the Ides of September are here, when the "Beware" sign will be hung for many champions and challengers — the Indians and Tigers in the American League—Bud Ward in the amateur golf championship—Riggs at Forest Hills—and the Conn-Pastor pugilistic pastoral in New York.

September is loaded to the top of the main mast with action in every sport the nation follows.

Just talked with Homer Norton of Texas A. and M. "I've been around around football for a long time," he said, "but I've never seen anything like this season promises to be. Any team that can come through unbeaten in the upper brackets will be promoting a miracle—I mean Ohio State, Cornell, Tulane, Texas A. and M., Duke, Southern California, Michigan, Minnesota, Fordham, Princeton, Tennessee and a lot more. They'll be due for a hard collision before we get the next good snow.

"Honestly, minus any blarney, I've never heard of as many good teams before in one college year. As Bob Zuppke used to say, 'You can lose 'em all—and still look good.'"

After a week's visit with a flock of coaches, I asked Homer to give me a few sectional selections.

"Look out for S. M. U. in the Southwest," he said. "Tulane in the deep South—Duke in the Southeast, with Tennessee and Georgia Tech close—Cornell in the Ivy with Princeton crowding—Boston College and Fordham—Ohio State, Minnesota and Michigan in the Big Ten—Notre Dame always in there — Southern California and Washington in the Far West—Nebraska in the Big Six.

"And yet every one of these teams can be beaten by one or more rivals. And most of them will be. Maybe all of them."

Aquatic Club Enters Meet at Washington

Preparations for entering the Shoreham Hotel A. C. meet at Washington, D. C., September 21 were completed at the weekly meeting of the Cumberland Aquatic Club last night at 7:30 at the Central Y.M.C.A. A practice session in the "Y" pool will follow.

The club's activities will be switched from Constitution Park to the "Y" during the winter months. A bowling league is planned while winter swim meets at Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburgh also appear on the program.

Bagle Club Is Buying Game Refugee

SALISBURY, Md., Aug. 30 (AP) — The Peninsula Beagle Club is completing final arrangements for the purchase of a 153 acre game refugee and hunting preserve, Secretary J. Wallace B. Pollitt announced today.

The club, composed of fifty members representing every section of the Delmarva Peninsula, is buying the Hitchcock farm in Wicomico county, and the Johnson school property. The former schoolhouse will be converted into a clubhouse.

Star Swimmers To Take Part in Championships In Park Pool Sunday

Washington Will Be Well Represented in Cumberland Swimming and Diving Meet

Washington will be well represented tomorrow in the various events of the Queen City Championship Swimming and Diving Meet at Constitution park, William H. Buchholtz, director, announces.

The meet, sponsored by the City Park Pool Board, will start at 2 p. m.

Stars to Perform

The entry list includes such notable performers as Betty Frances Ott, of the Shoreham Swimming Club, who holds a leg on the President's Regatta club, Patsy Palmer, of the Shoreham club, high point scorer in the recent Western Maryland championship meet at Celanese pool, who will appear in eight events and Tom Hopwood, Marjorie Lowery Kight, Blakely Martin, William Oswald, Jr., and Miss Wilda Lovenstein, all local champions.

Buchholtz said that the Washington Golf and Country Club will be represented by Bill Wright, Al Hamman, Tom Harrell, Gordon Mustin and Charles Kanlious in the men's division, Dud Walker in the junior boys' division and John Preston and Bryan Haddaway in the midget boys' class.

Representatives of the Shoreham Swimming Club will be Betty Roland, Patsy and Phyllis Palmer, Betty Frances Ott, Lucille Kirsch, Jean Brunson, Helen V. Fleet, Kay Tillinghast and Jean Dodder.

Airport Club Represented

The Airport Swimming Club, of Washington, is sending twenty men and women to compete in tomorrow's program.

Cumberland will be well represented by members of the Cumberland Aquatic Club.

There will be eight events for men, seven for women, two for junior boys 14 to 17 years, two for junior girls 14 to 17 years, five for midget boys and a similar number for midgets girls.

Director Buchholtz last night said he was hopeful that a number of entries from the K. of C. of Baltimore, and Fairmont and Clarksburg clubs will be received before the meets get under way tomorrow.

Chauncey W. Ashley, chairman of the South Atlantic Association Swimming Committee, will be here to witness the contests. This association has granted a sanction for the staging of the A.A.U. meet here.

Officials will be William Oswald, Sr., timer; John J. Cavanaugh, starter; Elmer Gower, Herman Ball and Eugene Hopkins, finish judges; Chauncey W. Ashley and Kenneth Mowen, diving judges and Robert Metz, clerk of the course.

Lane Lines Placed

Ten new lane lines containing bobbins eighteen inches apart have been placed in the park pool and all that is needed now to assure a successful meet is the appearance of Old Sol, who has been conspicuous by his absence for the past week.

Hotel Manager and Housekeeper Honored At Farewell Party

A farewell party was given last evening at the Boulevard hotel in honor of Bruce Cook, manager, and Mrs. Alpha Payne, housekeeper, who are severing their connections with the hotel tomorrow.

The party was given by one hundred guests of the hotel, employes and friends. A buffet luncheon was served and games and dancing featured.

Mr. Cook, who has served as manager of the hotel the past four months after being assistant manager for six years, and Mrs. Payne, housekeeper for five years, both received gifts which were presented to them by Mr. Klagg, of Pittsburgh, who acted in behalf of the friends of the retiring employes.

Official Board Of Homemakers Clubs Convenes

A meeting of the official board of the County Council of Homemakers' Clubs was held yesterday at the courthouse in the office of Miss Maude Bean, county home demonstration agent.

City License of $5 Must Be Paid On Each Five Cent Vending Machine

City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett yesterday told Clarence Doolittle, representative of a vending machine firm that the latter will be required to pay a city license fee of $5 for each five-cent candy vending machine to which there is attached two machines containing one-cent candy, peanuts or chewing gum.

Under the city licensing ordinance $3 is charged for the machines vending the nickel candies and $1 for each of the one-cent machines.

School Bus Law Explained

A special section of the leaflet is devoted to the school bus law which requires motorists approaching a halted school bus to stop ten feet away and wait until the bus gets under way again before proceeding.

"All school buses in Maryland are painted orange," the section states, "and have the words SCHOOL BUS painted on the front and rear. When meeting or overtaking a school bus motorists must stop at least ten feet from the front or rear and remain there until the bus gets under way. The only exception is when a school bus is approached from the front on a dual highway," it states.

Proper hand signs to indicate to other motorists that a machine is about to slow up, stop or make a right or left turn are diagramed. All of the road signs now in use also are printed on the leaflet and their meanings explained.

Ten Rules Listed

The ten rules of the road listed in the leaflet are as follows:

1. Come to a full stop before entering a through-traffic boulevard.
2. Stop after a collision with a pedestrian, animal or vehicle and render assistance. If a person is hurt, report the accident in writing to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.
3. Obey the speed laws and never operate a machine too fast for the road conditions.
4. Keep to the right of the center of the road.
5. Always have lights and brakes properly adjusted.
6. Do not pass a vehicle when the view ahead is obstructed.
7. Park off the highway and not on a curve or at the top of a hill.
8. Give the right of way to pedestrians at a street crossing.
9. At night a standing vehicle should not be left without a parking light.

In conclusion Commissioner Elgin states that if some of the rules and regulations set forth are observed, Maryland shall have fewer fatal accidents in the future.

Gateway Chatter

by News Staff Members

The telephone rang Thursday night in the NEWS office. It was a young lady, who inquired in a hopeful voice if "Happy Miss" had run in the money in the first race at Marlboro.

Scanning the results, we found a couple of other "Misses"—"Miss Mud" and "Misprint," but no "Happy Miss."

And, judging from the resigned tone in which the caller thanked us for the information, she was no happy Miss.

Here's one for the books. Police Sgt. W. B. Lovenstein drove his car to work the other day and parked it behind headquarters. When he finished work, he forgot about his car and took a bus home. Needless to say his fellow-officers are having a lot of fun with him.

Usually most persons try to stay out of jail but Police Commissioner James Orr tells Gateway Chatter that while in his office the other day a local woman he termed as "pretty drunk" walked in and begged to be locked up before she got into trouble.

Bet the local Moose lodge would easily win a popularity poll among members of the NEWS editorial staff as the most thoughtful organization in Cumberland.

Each time the Moose have a feed at the lodge hall they send "eats" over to the NEWS. A couple of nights ago the force dined on corn which they sent over when they held a big corn roast.

In months gone by they have favored the staff with roast turkey, chicken, oysters, sandwiches and many other nice things to eat for which all say "thanks."

Weather Blamed for the Condition Of Barrelville-Corriganville Road

Cool and rainy weather yesterday was given as the reason for the messy condition of the Mt. Savage road between Barrelville and Corriganville, which was oiled last week by the Maryland State Roads Commission.

Leo T. Downey, district road engineer, explained that it requires warm weather and sunny days for the oil to work through the chips and harden the surface but he regretted to state that rainy and cool weather has prevailed ever since the Mt. Savage road job was completed.

"It's hard to figure out the weather in advance," declared Downey. "If we had known that a rainy spell was in the offing the job never would have been started."

As to the rumor in circulation that an inferior grade of oil had caused the condition on the Mt. Savage road, Downey termed such talk as idle gossip."

The engineer said that the roads commission had the same kind of tough luck with the weather last year when it oiled the road near Hancock and a messy job was the result.

Downey gave assurance that the stretch of road between the Six Mile House and Frostburg will not be chipped and oiled until dry weather puts in its appearance. He added that this job may be started next week-end if the weather makes a change for the better.

The State Roads Commission office in Baltimore yesterday announced that bids will be opened next Tuesday for the laying of bituminous surface course to resurface Williams street from Maryland avenue to Louisiana avenue, and along Louisiana avenue from Williams street to Keny avenue.

Gateway Chatter

by News Staff Members

The telephone rang Thursday night in the NEWS office. It was a young lady, who inquired in a hopeful voice if "Happy Miss" had run in the money in the first race at Marlboro.

Scanning the results, we found a couple of other "Misses"—"Miss Mud" and "Misprint," but no "Happy Miss."

And, judging from the resigned tone in which the caller thanked us for the information, she was no happy Miss.

Here's one for the books. Police Sgt. W. B. Lovenstein drove his car to work the other day and parked it behind headquarters. When he finished work, he forgot about his car and took a bus home. Needless to say his fellow-officers are having a lot of fun with him.

Usually most persons try to stay out of jail but Police Commissioner James Orr tells Gateway Chatter that while in his office the other day a local woman he termed as "pretty drunk" walked in and begged to be locked up before she got into trouble.

Bet the local Moose lodge would easily win a popularity poll among members of the NEWS editorial staff as the most thoughtful organization in Cumberland.

Each time the Moose have a feed at the lodge hall they send "eats" over to the NEWS. A couple of nights ago the force dined on corn which they sent over when they held a big corn roast.

In months gone by they have favored the staff with roast turkey, chicken, oysters, sandwiches and many other nice things to eat for which all say "thanks."

Under the city licensing ordinance $3 is charged for the machines vending the nickel candies and $1 for each of the one-cent machines.

Weather Blamed for the Condition Of Barrelville-Corriganville Road

Cool and rainy weather yesterday was given as the reason for the messy condition of the Mt. Savage road between Barrelville and Corriganville, which was oiled last week by the Maryland State Roads Commission.

Leo T. Downey, district road engineer, explained that it requires warm weather and sunny days for the oil to work through the chips and harden the surface but he regretted to state that rainy and cool weather has prevailed ever since the Mt. Savage road job was completed.

"It's hard to figure out the weather in advance," declared Downey. "If we had known that a rainy spell was in the offing the job never would have been started."

As to the rumor in circulation that an inferior grade of oil had caused the condition on the Mt. Savage road, Downey termed such talk as idle gossip."

The engineer said that the roads commission had the same kind of tough luck with the weather last year when it oiled the road near Hancock and a messy job was the result.

Downey gave assurance that the stretch of road between the Six Mile House and Frostburg will not be chipped and oiled until dry weather puts in its appearance. He added that this job may be started next week-end if the weather makes a change for the better.
